No-Till Farmer Field Days Coming Up In Gap, Peach Bottom

Activities will start at 9 a.m. and continue through lunch. A simple lunch will be provided.

These field days, sponsored by local agricultural industries and organized by Penn State Cooperative Extension, are for farmers using 3-row to 6-row corn planters.

This is the third year for the 3-row to 6-row no-till corn and crop field days on the Gap and Peach Bottom farms.

For more information, contact Mark Goodson, York County extension agent, at (717) 840-7408. Photo is of a Dauphin County Amish no-till farmer.

Public, Industry Demand Certification

Seminars Popular At Wood Products Expo

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Wood harvest and processing are looking a lot different these days.

Just ask Dave Bubser, regional manager/northern U.S. of SmartWood.

Bubser noted a recent study that indicated 62 percent of homeowners "want wood to be responsibly harvested," Bubser said. Sixty percent of the consumers interviewed would pay more for the wood as well.

The HomeCenter News Survey interviewed 450 households in April 2001. As a result, the move to certification, including by SmartWood's accreditor, the Forest Stewardship Council (FSC), has continued to escalate as green building programs are becoming prevalent throughout the U.S.

Bubser spoke during the special seminar program of the Timber 2003 Forest Products Equipment and Technology Exposition late last week at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

Hundreds of woodlot managers, forestry professionals, and agri-industry representatives attended the event, which included a trade show both inside and outside the new Exhibition Hall at the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex. Show sponsor is the Pennsylvania Forest Products Association (PFPA) in Hershey.

Slaughter Sheep: Utility and Good 1-3 120-250 lbs mostly 29.00-42.00.

Slaughter Goats: Compared to last Monday, Kids sold steady to 4.00 higher; with 40-60 lb Kids in both the Selection One and Two categories trading with a sharply higher undertone due to the good demand. Kid receipts have not been real heavy over the past few weeks; however, a very good run of Kids early Monday morning drew good buyer attention. Yearlings were not well tested. Nannies sold steady to 6.00 higher as long as they had some meat on them. However, buyers remain fairly reluctant to purchase the Selection Three Nannies. Billies sold weak to instances of sharply lower in mixed trading. The top Billie sold for 148.00, which is well below the prices being paid over the last month. A good heavy (100-175 lbs) Wether supply sold with a higher undertone. All goats are sold by the head, with estimated weights. Kids: Selection 1 20-40 lbs 37.00-58.00; 40-60 lbs 58.00-72.00. Compared to Thursday, slaughter steers sold mostly steady. The Monday run included around 250 head of steers which provided for a good market test. However, on Tuesday most area producers were busy in the fields as the weather finally cooperated enough to allow them to roll up some hay; with Tuesday's receipts barely breaking 100 head, the market was not fully tested. The quality of the two-run was mixed, but did include some well-fed lots that continue to bring from 80.00-83.00 if they are high Choice or Prime. There were also quite a few under finished steers that were weighing from 1000-1150 lbs, and sold at a discount to the Choice supply; which comes to no surprise as there are several local producers that have run very low on feed. The slaughter Holstein steer, and the slaughter heifer supplies were to light to test. Breaking and Boning cows sold steady to 1.00 lower, with Lean slaughter cows trending steady to 1.00 higher as the cutter cow carcass cutout value was 2.26 higher on Tuesday.

Slaughter bulls sold 2.00-3.00 lower. The two-day run included 346 steers, 12 heifers, 326 cows, 22 bulls, with 14 head of feeder cattle.

Slaughter Steers: High Choice and Prime 2-4 1145-1430 lbs 81.50-83.50. Choice 2-3 1100-1480 lbs 77.00-80.25, few full 76.25-77.00. Select and low Choice 2-3 1005-1485 lbs 75.00-77.75, few higher yielding up to 79.25. Select 1-2 1060-1400 lbs 71.50-75.50, few returning to feed 70.50-75.50. Few Standard 1-2 1120-1415 lbs 68.00-71.50.

Holstein Steers: Few Choice 2-3 1435-1450 lbs 69.00-69.25. Select and low Choice 2-3 1150-1575 lbs 64.75-68.25. Select 1-2 1195-1585 lbs 58.50-63.25. Slaughter Heifers: Few Choice 2-3 1190-1440 lbs 74.00-78.25. Couple Select 1-2 1040-1365 lbs 70.00-74.75.

Slaughter Cows: Percent Lean Weight Bulk Low Dressing Breakers 70-75 Over 1400 lbs 43.00-48.25, 38.50-43.50 few 49.00-51.75 Boners 75-80 Over 1200 lbs 38.00-42.75 35.50-38.75 Lean (Hi-Yield) 85-90 Over 1200 lbs 38.00-41.50 Lean 85-90 Over 1000 lbs 33.50-39.25, 29.75-32.75 mostly 34.00-38.00 Lean (Light-wgt) 85-90 Over 750 lbs 30.00-33.00 28.50-30.75 Slaughter Bulls: Yield Grade 1-2 1380-1895 lbs 47.75-53.25.

Calves: Compared to Thursday's graded sale, veal calves sold 5.00 lower. Holstein bull calves suitable for special-fed veal barns sold 15.00-25.00 higher in active trading and good buyer attendance. The PA Department of Ag graded 630 head of bulls and heifers for the graded sale, with around 95 percent of the graded run going back on feed.

Veal Calves: Standard and Utility 60-110 lbs 20.00-40.00, weaker 11.00- 15.00. Returning to Feed: Graded Number One Holstein Bulls 110-125 lbs 150.00-165.00, three head 145.00; 95-105 lbs 170.00-185.00; one lot 90 lbs 167.00; 80-85 lbs 147.00-150.00. Compared to the light Tuesday run, high Choice and Prime slaughter steers sold .50-1.00 lower, up to 2.00 lower at times. Choice steers sold .50-1.00 lower. Average Choice and lower quality grades trended near steady at times, but the bulk of the Select and low Choice run sold with a weaker tone. The quality and the size of the Thursday steer runs both remain good, as there were several sets of high Choice steers on offer, and the run was comprised of over 650 head. Prices in New Holland remain very good, especially when compared to the Western trade and what local steers were bringing at this time a year ago. The Western direct feed yards have moved the bulk of their Choice steers from 74.00-75.00 this week, which is 3.00 lower. Dressed sales were fully 5.00 lower at mostly 119.00. Prices for Choice and Prime steers are 10.00-13.00 higher in New Holland when compared to this time last year; so many producers are keeping a positive outlook even though prices may turn weaker over the next few weeks. The early week slaughter Holstein and heifer run was very light, therefore the late week run was not tested. There was a very good supply of well-finished heifers on hand, which drew some pretty good interest. Slaughter cows sold 2.00-4.00 higher, with bids up to 5.00 higher at times. The quality of the cow run was very good and included a good supply of Breaking and Premium White cows. Slaughter bulls sold with a higher undertone when compared to the light Tuesday supply. The supply included 658 head of slaughter steers, 492 slaughter cows, 96 slaughter heifers, 99 slaughter bulls, with 107 head of feeder cattle.

Slaughter Steers: High Choice and Prime 2-4 1145-1460 lbs 78.00-83.85, mostly 79.50-83.00, fancy singles up to 84.25, full 77.00-77.50. Choice 2-3 1060-1480 lbs 75.75-79.75, mostly 76.50-78.50, Charolais-crosses 76.50-80.00, heavyweights 1500-1620 lbs 72.50-77.00. Couple Choice 1-2 1270-1415 lbs 79.75- 81.25. Choice 4 few full 1110-1450 lbs 70.50-75.50. Select and low Choice 2-3 1020-1460 lbs 74.00-77.00. Select 1-2 1000-1440 lbs 71.00-73.75, few heavier muscled up to 76.00.

Holstein Steers: Small Supply of High Choice and Prime 2-3 1420-1550 lbs 68.75-70.75, heavy single 1655 lbs 63.75. Choice 2-3 1200-1570 lbs 65.00- 69.00. Select and low Choice 2-3 1285-1585 lbs 63.00-67.25. Select 1-2 1280- 1590 lbs 60.00-62.75. Standard 1-2 1210-1430 lbs 56.00-60.00.

Slaughter Heifers: Choice 2-3 1010-1285 lbs 74.75-77.25, individual 79.25. Choice 4 1025-1285 lbs 69.50-73.00. Select and low Choice 2-3 1150-1375 lbs 72.50-74.25, higher yielding up to 79.50.

Slaughter Cows: Percent Lean, Weight, Bulk, Low Dressing. Premium White, 65-70, over 1600 lbs, 50.50-54.25. Breakers, 70-75, over 1400 lbs, 46.00-50.50, 43.00-46.25. Boners, 75-80, over 1200 lbs, 42.00-47.00, 37.00-43.75. Lean (Hi-Yield), 80-85, over 1200 lbs, 39.00-43.75. Lean, 85-90, over 1000 lbs, 36.00-41.00, 33.00-36.50. Lean (Light-wgt), 85-90, 750-100 lbs, 33.00-37.25, 28.00-32.75.

Slaughter Bulls: Yield Grade 1 1135-2010 lbs 48.75-54.00, high dressers 59.00-64.00, thin 955-1295 lbs 46.75-50.00. Yield Grade 2 1015-1935 lbs 44.50- 48.25, couple 2275-2505 lbs 46.00-50.00. Nine head of young, black 1050-1180 lb bulls suitable to put into service 53.00-60.50.

Calves: Compared to Tuesday, veal calves comparable to the early week runs sold steady. Holstein bull calves suitable for special-fed veal barns sold 10.00-30.00 lower. Holstein heifer calves sold with a lower undertone. The PA Department of Ag graded 427 head of bulls for the graded sale, with an estimated 90 percent of the run going back on feed.

Veal Calves: Standard and Utility 110-150 lbs 40.00-62.00; 70-110 lbs 27.00- 40.00.

Going Into Special-fed Veal Barns: Graded Number One Holstein Bulls 105-125 lbs 148.00-154.00; 95-105 lbs 137.00-147.00; 90-95 lbs 120.00; 80-90 lbs 110.00. New Holland Feeder Pig Auction

NEW HOLLAND, PA
June 18, 2003
Report Supplied By USDA

Receipts: 298; Last Week: 199 Year Ago: 489.

Compared to last week's light run, slaughter pigs sold 20.00-35.00 lower on the lots that were comparable. All pigs continue to go to slaughter as mandated, until further notice. The finished hog market is beginning to show some weakness as 220-270 lb barrows and gilts sold 3.00 lower on Wednesday in Sioux Falls, at 45.00. All sectors of livestock seem to be walking on eggshells, as slaughter steers in Sioux Falls sold 2.00-4.00 lower on Wednesday, with the direct feed yards moving steers from 74.00-75.00 in the early rounds. All pigs are graded on arrival, and sold on their in-weights; with prices below quoted per hundred weight.

Head Weight Price U.S. 1-2 18 19 lbs 150.00, 30 22-26 lbs 40.00-50.00, 16 30 lbs 155.00, 44 35-38 lbs 175.00-190.00, 7 44 lbs 90.00, 13 48 lbs 102.00, 6 50 lbs 140.00, 4 56 lbs 82.00, 27 62-65 lbs 87.00, three head 105.00 15 75-77 lbs 80.00-90.00, colored package 62.00, 2 80 lbs 82.00, 2 92 lbs 82.00, 2 117 lbs 70.00, U.S. 2 13 20 lbs 40.00, 4 38 lbs 160.00, 2 45 lbs 65.00, 7 51 lbs 90.00, 10 58 lbs 72.00, 2 62 lbs 77.00, 4 81 lbs 80.00, 5 107 lbs 75.00, 2 135 lbs 50.00 No-Grades 3 21 lbs 55.00 boars, 5 34 lbs 180.00 boars, 3 41 lbs 50.00 boars

ALL PIGS CONSIGNED TO WEDNESDAY FEEDER PIG SALE MUST ORIGINATE FROM A QUALIFIED NEGATIVE OR MONITORED HERD.

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer
ATLANTA, GA.
Report Supplied By USDA

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was fair to moderate and generally sufficient in keeping the bulk of offerings in good balance. Live supplies were moderate with weights ranging desirable to heavy, mostly desirable. Processing schedules were moderately heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 59 to 67 cents. Trade sentiment was steady. In the parts complex, bone-in breasts were readily available and slow to clear; boneless skinless breasts were fully sufficient. Leg items were mostly adequate. Wings and tendersloins were available.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
Report Supplied By USDA

Grain and soybean bids were mostly higher for the day. Wheat bids were mix as funds rolling long positions was noted lowering the market. In the Midwest soft red winter wheat fields are drying out but hard red winter wheat areas are looking good for harvest the rest of the week. Corn found support from the stronger soybean trade, while soybean was sparked by strength in the oil trade. Wheat was uneven, from 4 cents lower to 3 cents higher. Corn 2-3 cents higher. Sorghum 4 cents higher. Soybeans 6-8 cents higher, except Kansas City which was 11 cents higher.

Delivered Eastern Cornbelt prices include freight.

Most lots of 40-60 weight pigs have a sliding value from the negotiated weight basis which is calculated on the actual average weight of the lot plus or minus .35-.40 cents per pound. Some lots of early weaned pigs are discounted 1.00-10.00 per head on pigs weighing under 10 pounds.Early weaned pigs are under 19 days old.

Estimated lean value is projected to base slaughter weights with normal confinement feeding conditions.

Vaccination and health program values are not included but health status should be disclosed.

Corn Belt Feedstuff

St. Joseph, Mo.
Report Supplied By USDA

CORN BELT FEEDSTUFF: Feedstuff prices were mixed this past week across the Corn Belt and upper Midwest regions. Demand was steady as ingredient supplies remained available. Hot temperatures and moisture across the Midwest last week have new crops green and growing tall. Some cooler temperatures continued in parts of the North, slowing growth in some crops. Good export demand last week offered support.

SOYBAN MEAL: 48 percent rail was 6.50-7.50 lower from 187.00-190.00. 48 percent truck was 6.50-8.50 lower from 188.00-198.00 per ton.

CORN BY-PRODUCTS: Gluten Feed 21 percent, Interior Points was steady to 1.00 higher from 60.00-66.00; Chicago was steady from 62.00-68.00. 60 percent Gluten Meal, Interior Points was 5.00 higher from 230.00-235.00; Chicago 5.00 higher to 5.00 lower from 230.00-235.00 per ton. Rail Hominy Feed, Central Illinois Points was steady to 2.00 higher from 68.00-75.00; truck steady to 2.00 higher from 70.00-82.00. Crude Corn Oil was steady to .50 higher from 29.50-31.00 cents per pound.

MILLFEEDS: Northwest were steady from 52.00-60.00; Buffalo 6.00 to 8.00 lower from 48.00-53.00 per ton.

ALFALFA PELLETS: Toledo, Ohio 17 percent dehydrated was steady to 6.00 lower from 148.00-165.00; meal .50 to 6.00 lower from 151.00-168.50. 15 percent pellets were steady to 5.00 lower from 145.50-159.00 per ton; meal was steady to 5.00 lower from 149.00-162.50.

DISTILLER'S DRIED GRAINS: Central Illinois were steady from 80.00-87.00; Chicago steady to 2.00 lower from 82.00-90.00; Lawrenceburg, Il., steady at 81.00; Kansas was 5.00 higher at 90.00; Nebraska steady to 2.00 higher at 80.00-82.00; Minnesota was steady at 85.00 per ton.

BREWER'S DRIED GRAINS: Newark, NJ was steady at 94.00; Williamsburg, VA was steady at 84.00 per ton.

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
June 18, 2003
Report Supplied by USDA

Spot prices of class II cream, dollars per lb. butterfat: F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: 1.4408-1.5738. Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta: 1.4630-1.5960 mostly 1.4851-1.5516.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb. wet solids, F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: Class II, includes monthly formula prices: .8500-.9300; Class III - spot prices - .7400-.8200.

SPOT SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK: FLORIDA: This Week: In 0, Out 131; Last Week: In 0, Out 153; Last Year: In 0, Out 32. SOUTHEAST STATES: This week: In 0, Out 0; last week: In 0, Out 0; last year: In 0, Out 0.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Due to recent changes in milk supply agreements, milk import/export totals are not directly comparable to year ago figures and to shipments prior to April 1, 2003.

Regional Milk Market Administrators announced the following, May 2003 uniform prices: Northeast $11.60, Mideast $10.63, Southeast $11.99, Florida $13.10, and Western New York (a state order) $11.22 at the base city or county in the orders. (For the Northeast, Mideast, and Western New York orders, statistical uniform prices are reported.) During May, milk production in the 20 major states totaled 12.99 billion pounds, down 0.4% from May 2002. The following are the May-to-May changes for selected states: Texas [5] .8%, New York -1.8%, Pennsylvania -3.0%, Vermont -3.7%, Florida -5.9%, Virginia -7.0%, and Kentucky - 9.3%. For the above-mentioned states, the combined milk cow numbers are down 12,000 head from last May. Milk cows in the twenty major states total 7,786,000 head, up 17,000 from a year earlier.

Milk production is easing lower in most sections of the region. Declines are more noticeable in the Deep South where temperatures are increasing and taking its toll on the cows. It continues to rain in the Middle Atlantic and New England areas. This is hampering first cutting alfalfa harvests and feeding of green chop. Contacts continue to report a real drop in the levels of butterfat and protein in the milk. Fluid milk supplies are lighter in most of the East, but a few northern states still have schools in session this week and manufacturing plant receipts may "bounce" a little next week when all schools will be done for the year. Some bottlers do comment that there will be some summer school programs that take milk, but volumes are not very large. Commercial sales of bottled milk are fairly steady, but some wide spread features in the Southeast are keeping bottlers relatively busy. Manufacturing plants are less active. Some seasonal balancing plants in the Southeast are either down or operating just on weekends. In the Northeast, surplus milk volumes are easing and plant operating schedules are lighter.

The condensed skim market is little changed. Prices and spot demand are steady. Occasionally, contacts report a few additional loads moving, but most sales are contractual.

The fluid cream market remains firm. Local cream supplies are tight and more Western (California) cream is being shipped across the country to supplement local supplies. Prices are higher as both the multiples and the CME average increased. Delivered price multiples are getting into the mid-to-high 140's, with f.o.b. prices generally in the mid 130's to low 140's. Demand has held up surprisingly well during the past few weeks. Buyers are having a difficult time finding desired volumes from regular sources. Contacts also report that the internet-based marketing program has few, if any offers to sell being posted. Ice cream and ice cream mix production is starting to pick up, but the weather along the shore is doing little to boost consumption of soft serve or hard ice cream. Cream cheese production is about steady. Even with cream prices jumping relatively quickly, cream cheese makers are calling suppliers, looking for cream. Bottled cream sales are improving seasonally. Churning is lighter as some butter makers sell their cream.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

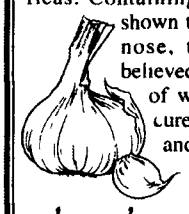
GARLIC GOODNESS

Mosquitoes evidently don't like garlic Some people swallow slivered garlic to ward off these summer pests Pet owners often give a small clove of garlic, wrapped in a bit of meat, to dogs or cats to help repel fleas. Containing crotonaldehyde, garlic has been shown to be effective against diseases of the nose, throat, and intestines. Aristotle believed that garlic cured hydrophobia (fear of water), and folklorists list it among cures for jealousy, sneezing fits, baldness, and narcolepsy Garlic bread, anyone?



A nickel will get you on the subway, but garlic will get you a seat.

–New York Yiddish proverb

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ For better results, wash fresh spinach in salted water.

JAMAICAN BAKED BEANS

2 cups white pea or navy beans
1 small onion, studded with cloves
3/4 pound salt pork, cubed
1/2 cup dark brown sugar
1/4 cup dark rum
2 teaspoons dry mustard
1 teaspoon ground lemon pepper
pinch of thyme

Soak beans overnight in water to cover. Drain and add water to cover by two inches Simmer for 30 minutes Preheat oven to 250°F. Place onion in a deep casserole dish, then layer half the beans, half the salt pork, then the remaining beans and salt pork Combine the remaining ingredients and pour over beans. Add boiling water to barely cover Cover the casserole and bake for 4 to 5 hours, adding a little more boiling water if beans become dry. Bake uncovered for the last half-hour.

Makes 6 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Red lightning foretells a dry spell.

An Institution At Risk

Guest Editorial By
Dr. Thomas A. Fretz
Dean, College of Agriculture And Natural Resources Director, Maryland Cooperative Extension And Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station
University of Maryland

The future of Maryland Cooperative Extension is at risk. Faced with a fiscal crisis, University of Maryland administrators are unfairly targeting Extension for excessive cuts that could seriously impair our ability to serve Maryland residents with the strong, research-based programs that they have come to expect from the state's 1862 land-grant university.

Even in times of plenty, Extension has fared less well than the University of Maryland as a whole. For example, between 1995-2002, when the university saw a 70 percent increase in funding to its state unrestricted accounts, increases to Maryland Cooperative Extension were significantly lower — about 26 percent. To put it bluntly, we did not receive our full share.

I think it ironic, therefore, that in the budget crisis we now face, Extension is being asked to cut into its budget deeper than the rest of the campus community. While proposed reductions are planned for all units on campus, the current strategy is to more heavily tax those units (that is, Extension) that do not have an associated fee structure, such as tuition, and benefit learners and clients across the state rather than students in degree programs on campus. This suggests to me that the outreach mission of the university is not on an equal footing with its research and instruction missions.

By placing a disproportionate fiscal demand on Extension, the cam-

To Scout For Bagworms

As I travel around the county, I'm often surprised by the number of damaged evergreen trees I see from the feeding of bagworms. Damage from these easily-controlled pests can cause unsightly bare spots or even death of mature trees and shrubs.

While limbs on broad-leaved trees such as oak and ash are able to grow a new set of leaves after insect feeding, most evergreens cannot. Therefore, if a spruce tree has all of it's needles eaten by bagworms on a branch, that branch will die. And an evergreen totally consumed by bagworms will die. Favored host plants for this pest are spruce and arborvitae.

Bagworm eggs have begun to hatch in Lancaster County. The small caterpillars will immediately start to feed on needles and weave a protective bag of needle pieces and silk. This bag protects the caterpillar from both natural pests and spray materials. The caterpillar will enlarge its bag as it grows and the bag will eventually reach up to 2 inches in length.

Upon maturing, the caterpillar pupates inside the bag. Adult male moths emerge in late summer and fly to the females, which cannot fly. After mating, the female lays her eggs in the bag and dies. The eggs overwinter in the bag and hatch the following season.

Control of this pest is easier when the caterpillars are small. If you only want to make one application of pesticide to control this pest, the trick is to wait until all of the eggs have hatched but before the caterpillars are more than an inch long. This year that time will be late June or very early July. There are several materials labeled to control bagworms. Select the one that suits your needs and be sure to read the label and follow the use directions carefully.

To Prevent The Outbreak Of Serious Fly Problems In Livestock Through IPM

Flies are a common pest in livestock farming operations. Like any other pest, they need to be controlled.

Dr. Gregory Martin, Capitol Region poultry agent, wrote the following on using Integrated Pest Management procedures to manage flies on the farm.

Integrated pest management or IPM is not really a new concept. Farmers who have adopted IPM controls in their crops have been successful at controlling insect pests while reducing the overall cost of pest control. Livestock producers too can use this program as well to help both in reducing the amounts of chemicals used to control insects while timing the use of spraying and other control methods to optimize their effects in reducing fly populations. The cornerstone of this approach is to use best management practices (BMPs) on the farm that actually helps keep populations from growing out of hand.

A key feature of fly IPM on the farm is the use of scouting to determine the types of flies and number of flies present. "Spec" cards are 3 x 5-inch white cards that can be hung throughout the livestock building to help determine fly outbreaks. Fly spec counts that reach more than 50 on 50 percent of the card are considered high. These cards should be changed weekly and tallied so that fly numbers can be monitored on the farm on a constant basis. The use of sticky tape exposed for short durations also can be used to determine fly counts as well as the type of flies that are in the area.

Controlling the environment is crucial to the success of a Livestock IPM program. Flies that do not have food or water resources will quickly die out or move on. Since most feedstocks contain some forms of protein, there are many potential feeding sites on a farm. By controlling water and feed spillage, along with drying the manure or litter, managers can go a long way toward fly control. Other areas to watch are the compost areas and feed bins near livestock housing.

Manure and bedding materials should be handled to help reduce fly numbers prior to spreading. The use of tarping manure piles for 14 days prior to spreading and the use of stacking sheds to lower moisture counts have been successful in poultry operations. Spread materials according to your nutrient management plans and try to get the manure into the growing zone. Spot check the fields to determine if successful incorporation of the materials has been achieved.

When it is time for fly population control, try to match the severity of the cure to the level of the population encountered. At times a "knock down" spray may be called for, while with lower populations natural insect predators could be used. With flies in the household/backyard, it is important to read and use controls appropriate to location. Fly traps are very effective in catching insects but are best used 30-50 feet away from the house to help draw them away. Fly electrocution devices are best used in closed housing ("zappers"). With any controls, please read, understand, and follow all instructions that come with your fly control sprays and devices.

Good IPM doesn't require extra ordinary efforts, but you will get out of it what you put into it. As with all other management programs on the farm, the better you are at it, the more it pays in the long run.

Editor:

For the first time ever, we dairy farmers have the opportunity to develop and implement our own program that can lead to milk price improvement. The National Milk Producers Federation's (NMPF) Cooperatives Working Together Program, or CWT, is really about dairy farmers, from across this country, coming together to take care of the excess milk supply that has pushed our milk prices to intolerably low levels. I believe CWT can dramatically improve our milk prices, and do so in a very short amount of time.

While all dairy farmers don't agree with all of the concepts of the CWT program, it is the only game in town. There are no other proposals out there with the broad national support of dairy farmers — which is necessary in order to enact a national dairy program without the assistance of the federal government.

HOW DO WE STACK UP?

Background Scripture:
Zechariah 8.
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 48:1-14.

From time to time I read in the local newspaper of a periodic poll taken to determine which cities in the U.S. are the most livable for their citizens. The cities that consistently place high in the polls are generally those that provide the best living conditions for their population.

The Prophet Zechariah did not take a poll, but received from God a vision of what Jerusalem would be like if the exiles all returned. It is an idyllic painting he paints with his words: "I will return to Zion, and will dwell in the midst of Jerusalem, and Jerusalem shall be called the faithful city and the mountain of the Lord of hosts, the holy mountain" (Zechariah 8:3). The new Jerusalem would be a city to which God himself returns. But how can the people know that God has returned?

The evidence for the new Jerusalem will not be tall, impressive buildings or monuments, a high level of commerce or gigantic facilities for sports events. While all these add to the luster of a municipality, there is something much more important for a city in which God is to dwell. No, the Lord looks for two telltale signs: "Old men and old women shall again sit in the streets of Jerusalem, each with staff in hand for very age. And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in its streets" (8:4,5).

The Very Young And Old

I'm sure that what the Lord is looking for is the last thing that most of our city councils would look for. The new Jerusalem, as God sees it, is the city in which both old people and children are happy and fulfilled.

Most of our cities are in a tight financial pinch. Tax revenues are down because people, many of them out of work, are spending less. Some services formerly provided by the federal government have been laid on the backs of the states. The states, in turn, have passed on these tasks to the cities. And what is first to be cut from the budgets? Services for the young and the old!

In Texas the criterion is "no new taxes" so that hundreds of thousands of children and elderly people will be denied vital health services. I suspect it may be happening in your state, too.

When the exiles began to return to Jerusalem, probably those who first returned were the age groups that could stand the strain of the unhealthy conditions and the daunting task of rebuilding. So, the old and the young would be likely the last to return, waiting until the work of reconstruction had progressed enough to meet the requirements of young and old. The arrival of children and elderly people would be a signal that this Jerusalem was ready to be the New Jerusalem.

"Make your city a haven for young and old, and I will be in the midst of her," says God. But, instead of making our cities more congenial to chidden and the elderly, we often make them hostile environments. Not only do we overlook these people in our planning, but there is often a hostility that makes them unwelcome. I see it in the letters to the editor section of our editorial page. It has somehow become "OK" to look down on those who cannot help themselves.

Our Nuisances

When James T. Cleland wrote his exposition of the Book of Zechariah for The Interpreter's Bible about 50 years ago, we lived in a more sympathetic and charitable age. So his observations on Zechariah 8 are even more pertinent today: "In the hurry and bustle of city life, the very old and the very young, who cannot look out for themselves and who serve no productive social or economic function, are to apt to be considered a nuisance, to be brushed out of the way." (Vol. VII, pp. 1085 and 1086).

God was calling the returned exiles to a higher spiritual sensibility, just as he calls us today. The promises, if we respond to that call, are exciting: "For there shall be a sowing of peace and prosperity; the vine shall yield its fruit, and the ground shall give its increase, and the heavens shall give their dew; and I will cause the remnant of this people to posses all these things" (8;12,13).

So how do you and your city stack up?

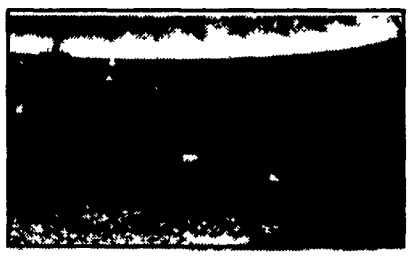
Silo Unloader Technology Takes a Giant Leap Forward!

BIG JIM Quantum™ SYSTEM

TOWER SILOS REALLY MEASURE UP!



Measure for measure, nothing beats a tower silo for storing forage. Just compare them to bunkers which have up to 45% storage loss, lower capacity, increased labor and lots of inconvenience.

Towers lose just 3% to 7% because of gravity, feed weight and a good unloader like the Big Jim QUANTUM System.

QUANTUM can be installed in any type of 20' to 30' forage silo. . . conventional or oxygen limited and will make your tower silo even better!

VOLUMAXX

HI-LIFT LEGS

The new advance design Volumaxx unloader gives you the best of both worlds... your choice of distribution. New HI-LIFT legs let you raise the unloader an extra 15" into the silo roof, so you can use a conventional side distributor. Or, choose the Jamesway Powermaxx™ broad pan silage distributor. With proper distribution, you'll have better quality feed, and you'll increase your silo's capacity up to 35%. And we can prove it!

ITC LAUNCHES MPC INVESTIGATION

- Chicago markets remain steady.
- Milk production report next week.
- ITC study to focus on farm-level impacts.

Cheese and butter prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange remained steady this week with block cheese averaging $1.1450 per pound, barrel cheese averaging $1.1060 per pound, and Grade AA butter averaging $1.1083 per pound. Surprisingly, all three prices are just above the respective support price levels.

The market is awaiting the verdict of USDA's Milk Production report due out next Tuesday (June 17). This report will provide direction for where milk production is trending. The big question will be whether the U.S. milk supply is continuing to trend downward, especially with regard to cow numbers.

The U.S. International Trade Commission (USITC) announced this Monday that it has launched a general fact-finding investigation regarding U.S. market conditions for milk protein products (http://www.usitc.gov/er/nl2003/er0609aa1.htm). This investigation was requested by the Senate Committee on Finance. The purpose of the study will be to provide information on the competitiveness of a variety of milk proteins in the U.S. market, focusing on milk protein concentrate, casein, and caseinate, as well as other protein products.

One of the major issues to be addressed will be the impact of imports of milk protein concentrates on the U.S. dairy industry, particularly on the farm gate price of milk. The USITC will report their findings to the Senate Committee by May 14, 2004.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Most lots of 40-60 weight pigs have a sliding value from the negotiated weight basis which is calculated on the actual average weight of the load plus or minus .30-.40 per pound. Some early weaned lots have a slide of .50-1.00 per pound. Early weaned pigs are under 19 days old. Estimated lean value is projected to use slaughter weights with normal confinement feeding conditions. Vaccination and health program values are not included but health status should be disclosed.

PIT POWER

Farmers and composters - Here is a breakdown for compost and manure pits and manure piles! Pit Power is bacteria and bacteria feeders that break down solids in manure pits and septic tanks and breakdown compost faster.

Clean out your pit with ease, use Pit Power! One gallon of Pit Power per 10,000 to 20,000 gal. of pit volume. Should be repeated approx. 2 times a year! If aeration of the pit is possible, it will help the bacteria to grow and work faster to break down solids. Pit Power's purpose is to add life (bacteria) in the manure, which then is returned to the soil where a bacteria is working The smell of pit manure is not so strong. Pit Power is a non-toxic product - Life to Feed Life!

Price is $58.00 per gallon

VEGETABLES AND OUR COOL, WET WEATHER

Just like last year, I've talked with many growers who cannot remember a season like we have had so far this year. Last year was the earliest anyone could remember being done with field preparation. This year I would not be surprised if there are some fields that have not been worked yet!

I'm not telling you anything that you don't already know regarding the weather, but how is this season affecting your vegetable crops? What can/should you be doing now?

Let me start by saying that an extended period of warm, dry weather could cure many of the problems we are seeing now. Improved light would cause increased plant growth while warmer temperatures would both increase shoot and root growth and nutrient uptake from the soil. It would also reduce disease development both above and below ground.

While we have no control over the weather, there are some things to do and/or watch for in your vegetable fields.

Many vegetable crops are growing poorly and have a yellowish coloration to them which generally indicates nutrient problems. Excessive rain and cool conditions will reduce nutrient uptake in most crops. This is a result of the vegetables we grow being warm-temperature plants and, in general, nutrient uptake being reduced by low soil temperatures.

Crops in bare soil might need an application of fertilizer, particularly nitrogen. Nitrogen is readily washed out of the soil with excessive moisture and unless you used some type of slow-release fertilizer, a portion of your applied nitrogen could be gone.

Corn growers should consider using a PSNT to determine the amount of nitrogen in the soil and apply any additional nitrogen needed to mature the crop. Pumpkin growers on bare soil will need to watch nitrogen as well, but I would wait until the weather breaks and the vines start to grow to evaluate your nitrogen situation. Too much nitrogen will result in all vine and few pumpkins, so be cautions about overfertilization of this crop.

Growers using plasticulture should still have most of their applied fertilizer in the soil under the plastic. While nitrogen and other nutrients can easily be added to the crop through the drip system, plants will not use much water in cool, cloudy, or rainy weather and thus added nutrients will not quickly reach the foliage.

Although I generally do not recommend it, this might be the time for a foliar application of fertilizer. Nitrogen will again be the most important nutrient to apply, but there may be some benefit to phosphorus and potassium as well.

Darryl Warnicke from Michigan State University also notes that for crops such as onions, radishes, muskmelon, and cucumbers, including manganese helps improve early growth.

Sweet corn may also benefit from zinc. He suggests foliar fertilization rates of 5 pound N, 1 pound phosphorus and 1 pound potassium per acre and for plants that will respond to manganese or zinc rates of 0.5 pound manganese and 0.25 pound zinc per acre.

When the weather finally breaks and your crops are actively growing, consider using tissue testing this season as well. This will let you know the exact nutrient status of your crop and, if done during fruit set and early development, you should have time to correct any deficiencies. The cost of a few tests (about $20 each) can be more than recovered through improved yields and crop quality.

The next problem resulting from our recent cool, wet weather is a potential increase in disease problems. One disease that may be more common than normal this season is bacterial speck on tomatoes, which thrives in this type of weather. Look for lesions on the leaves that appear as small, dark brown to black spots which then develop a yellow halo. These spots may grow together, killing large areas or the entire leaf. Fruit can also be infected by this disease.

To control this disease, apply the following on a seven-day schedule: fixed copper at 1 pound active ingredient per acre plus mancozeb (Dithane, Manex II, Manzate or Pencozeb) at 1.5 pound 75 WP per acre or OLF, or use ManKocide 2.6 to 5.3 pound 61 WP per acre.

A disease that I have not heard about in our area but which weather conditions have been ideal for is late blight. Dr. Alan MacNab, vegetable disease specialist at Penn State, notes that only three factors are necessary for a potentially serious late blight situation to develop.

These are (1) availability of late blight spores, sometimes found on potato plants in cull piles or on volunteer plants where potatoes were grown last year; (2) persistence of wet mild conditions (and we have had this for several weeks); and (3) presence of tomato and potato plants that are not protected by fungicides.

He goes on to suggest that all growers in Pennsylvania who believe late blight inoculum could be nearby (in your county or in an adjacent county) apply a protective spray as soon as possible unless an application was made within the past seven days. He also notes that spores from this disease can travel more than 50 miles by the wind, so if late blight gets started somewhere in the state, in can rapidly spread around.

Finally, what about the insects? Generally, conditions that favor disease development do not favor insect population growth. In addition, the cool weather we are having has delayed the appearance of some of our common pests but it has extended the season for others.

One insect you need to be concerned about now is the European Corn Borer (ECB). Our trapping here in the county indicates we are in the first flight of this pest and the counts on one site suggest a four-day spray interval! Consider applying an insecticide to any silking corn in your fields as this stage of development of a corn crop is very attractive to ECB.

Pepper growers with fruit ½-inch and larger should take note of this ECB flight as well. The absence of a large number of silking corn fields (which we would normally have by now) will make your pepper fields much more attractive to this pest than normal for this time of year. Based on the counts I've seen, fields should be sprayed on a seven-day schedule to prevent excessive losses to ECB in your early (and potentially most valuable) pepper crop.

I suggest taking some time to carefully examine your vegetable crops to evaluate their condition. A timely fertilizer application may make a big difference this season on your crops. In addition, controlling any disease or insect infestations while they are small is always a sound management practice. Don't think that just because the weather is poor and your vegetables are growing slowly there is no need for you to be out in the fields! Have your crops ready to go when the weather finally returns to normal.

are certified. About 18.5 million are in the U.S. and Canada. About 3,400 companies have received certification.

Bubser noted that there are 556 members in about 61 countries certified under FSC. Estimated value of the products and service total about $6.12 billion worldwide.

Certification, Bubser said, is scheduled to double in the next three years.

The government has the most active participation in certification programs for green building programs. The green building programs link their birth to the Earth Summit in Rio in 1992, Bubser said, when "environmentalism" became a movement.

FSC formed in 1993. The need for certification was recognized when it became harder "to conduct commercial forest management on properties," he said, because of various environmental group political pressures.

The first public land certification under FSC began in 1997. Through the years, the program developed. In 2004, noted Bubser, the tree farm "Standards for Sustainable Forest Certification" may be implemented.

Federal, state, and local building projects are well under way, with the directives supplied by the Green Building Council. All state projects in Pennsylvania have to conform to the "silver requirements" of the Council's program.

Pennsylvania falls in second place, nationally, for registered projects, totaling 45. California has the lead at 83.

Major home improvement and lumber stores, including Home Depot and Lowe's, have enacted certified preference policies.

The U.S. stands apart as the world's leader in wood consumption, in front of Western Europe and Japan, countries who are also big importers, Bubser noted.

Bubser noted that SmartWood, Richmond, Vt., is the "oldest forest certification organization in the world," accredited by FSC. SmartWood has customers in nine different countries.

What makes certification successful is that it provides the following key elements, according to Bubser:

- Credibility through rigorous standards.
- On-product labeling.
- Third-party certification through manufacturing and distribution.
- International recognition and approval.
- Addressing the "triple bottom line" — the environment, the economy, and social responsibility.

The certification process provides best management practices to use in place of regulation. Bubser called certification the "antithesis of regulation." He said regulation is the "extreme expression of frustration — if we can't or won't do it, someone else is going to do it for us."

Certification provides the "standards of responsible forestry," he said. It allows homeowners to "reward responsible companies."

Benefits include healthy, productive forests, sound forestry management, stronger industry relationships, access to world markets, improved company image and morale, and better business-to-business recognition.

The third-party certification is critical, because with consumers, credibility is an issue. When a company decides to simply "certify" its own product, trust could be lost. "Only 13 percent of consumers believe companies are credible," noted Bubser. (Half the consumers believe newspapers are credible, according to Bubser.)

Certification, while an involved process, takes more than three months to complete.

The bulk of certified lumber in North America is hardwood, through there is a growing need for softwood certification to meet increasing demand. Some publishers, such as Times-Warner, noted Bubser, require at least 80 percent of their paper to come from certified companies by 2006.

Butch Rogers, manager of Timber Wolf Wood Processing Equipment, Rutland, Vt., operates the Pro-MX Inline cutter/processor during Timber 2003.

Public Relations

Companies would do well to offset criticism and conflict from the general public through some type of public relations strategy.

And good PR is not all that complicated, according to Pat Wood, senior account manager with William J. Green and Associates, Hummelstown.

Wood, who also spoke during Timer 2003, noted PR can be as simple as having a checklist of what your company is about, your certification, and other information on a fact sheet with contact names. Printed or photocopied fact sheets can be sent to customers, neighbors, and community leaders.

Wood said, "I enjoy working with reporters." She noted that if handled correctly, the company could be portrayed in the correct way to the general public if a public relations strategy was in place.

She noted the importance of knowing the reporter and the managing editor, prepare well before speaking to them, expect tough questions, "ID your 'sound bites,'" she said, and prepare facts and resources. Also, "be positive, never, never rush, and don't talk too much," Wood said. "And don't say it if you don't want it reported."

Wood noted also to "never lie" and don't lecture or use jargon. Follow up with reporters. "If you don't set the standard of truth, then you let others do it," she said.

Good public relations can be as simple as having open houses, tours, and picnics; inviting schools in to see your business; hosting events for elected and appointed officials; helping with community projects; and publishing a company newsletter with features on families and news about the organization as a whole.

Also, she noted, "think about community giving" programs she said.

Trade Show

The trade show featured more than 100 exhibitors. A demonstration area was set up directly outside the Farm Show to show equipment at work.

Family Farm Days A Real Treat

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — From left Addie Moore, 3, Lancaster, and Hannah Miller, 2, Denver, alternate between sips of milk and bites of ice cream cone at the annual Family Farm Days event conducted at Oregon Dairy this week. Based on the quantity of ice cream cones handed out to visitors, last year approximately 10,000 people attended the event, and organizers were hoping for another large turnout this year. See page B10.

WHAT'S NEW AT THE FAIR?

The Mason-Dixon Fair will be July 7 - 12 at the fairgrounds located off of Rt. 74 in Delta. Each year, organizers try to add new events and activities to the fair and this year is no exception.

The pie contest will now be moved from Saturday to Monday, July 7. This means all entries have to be entered on Sunday from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. The judging will take place on Monday at 10 a.m. with the other small exhibits. Awards will follow and the pies will be auctioned off that night after the Queen contest.

Organizers have also added a dairy goat section. This will include both open and youth departments. Dairy goats are slated to arrive on Thursday, July 10 and show on Friday at 11 a.m. during the annual Senior Day.

On Friday, July 11, at 7:30 p.m. there will be an animal dress-up contest for dairy, beef, sheep, swine, and goat exhibits. Registration will be Friday at 7 p.m. There will be two age divisions and there must be two member teams. Each team will have 15 minutes to dress themselves and their animals.

Admission has also been changed to $2.

Family night will run from Monday through Thursday. Ride all the rides for only $10. There will be great, live entertainment nightly including Amanda, Chosen Few, and the Marquees (Sha Boom). There will be bingo, raffles, animal shows, great food, parade, fireworks, and much more. Parking remains free.

Penn State Offers Short Course

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. — The "Fundamentals of Food Science" short course will be offered by Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, Sept. 22-26 at The Atherton Hotel in State College, Pa.

The short course is intended for engineers and scientists with little or no experience in the food industry who wish to learn basic concepts of food microbiology, food engineering, food chemistry and nutrition.

The course also is designed for entry-level employees with minimal food science experience; mid-career professionals transitioning into the food industry; plant managers, technicians and production supervisors; non-technical food industry employees, including sales and marketing personnel; and any person requiring a refresher course in food science fundamentals.

Registrations will be accepted until Sept. 8. The registration fee of $1,495 covers tuition, lab materials, course manual, certificate of completion, breaks, reception, dinner and lunches. For registration information, contact the Office of Conferences and Short Courses by phone at (814) 865-8301 or by e-mail at shortcourse@psu.edu, or visit the Web at http://conferences.cas.psu.edu.

Free Farm Market Brochure Available

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — The Chester County Agricultural Development Council has printed a 2003 Farm Market brochure that lists farm markets and stands, farmers markets, and Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) operations in Chester County.

The council is offering the free brochure to the public. Brochures will be available at the 17 libraries in the County Library System and also certain municipal offices.

The brochure can be viewed on the Chester County Website at www.chesco.org by selecting Farm Market Directory under the Quick Index. Consumers may also call the Chester County Planning Commission at (610) 344-6285 to request a copy.

The brochure lists more than 40 places to purchase farm fresh produce. It includes a map to help locate the stands and markets. The purpose of the brochure is to support Chester County farmers and growers by encouraging producer to consumer sales.

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Review

St. Joseph, Mo.
Friday, June 13, 2003
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER & STOCKER CATTLE SUMMARY - Week Ending June 13 — Total Receipts: 358,000, last week 331,900; last year 305,200. Direct: 89,200, last week 97,800, last year 53,000. Video/Internet: 33,400, last week 1,000, last year 39,000. Auctions: 235,400, last week 233,100, last year 213,200. This week's reported auction volume included 46 percent over 600 lb and 44 percent heifers. Compared to last week, feeder steers and heifers sold steady to 2.00 lower with the full extent of the weakness noted late in the week. Receipts were unusually large again this week as sellers rushed to take advantage of the handsome price levels. Many producers are marketing early and foregoing the extra weight gain, as they can't foresee a better time to sell. Midwestern stockyards were swelling with numbers, as Oklahoma City and Joplin each marketed around 17,000 head this week. These areas have been depleted of feeder cattle but many trucks came in from southeast of town, several hundred miles south and east that is. Shipped-in cattle with increased Brahman influence are helping to make-up Midwestern auction receipts and buyers are learning to like 'em to fill orders and cheapen-up their other purchases.

For the past couple of months the beef sector has been happily clicking up the roller-coaster incline with record dressed beef values and near record feeder and fat cattle prices. This week the clicking stopped; boxed beef cut-outs lost ground and feedlots were forced to sell showlists 2.00 lower live at mostly 78.00 and 4.00 lower dressed at mostly 124.00. The spot June CME Live Cattle Futures have lost 3.40 since June 2nd and continue their trend of trading at a significant discount to cash and then racing back to the real market a few days before the contract matures. This scenario is actually working magnificently for cattle feeders with short hedges as they can pocket the negative basis.

Futures traders continue to ignore the numerous bullish factors and instead are focusing on building plenty of negative cushion into the market for the anticipated opening of the Canadian border to beef products. By the time the border actually opens the damage will have already been done, and if all goes well the market may be in for a boost. Expect feeder cattle receipts to taper off dramatically next week as the first signs of a southbound market came out in flashing neon.

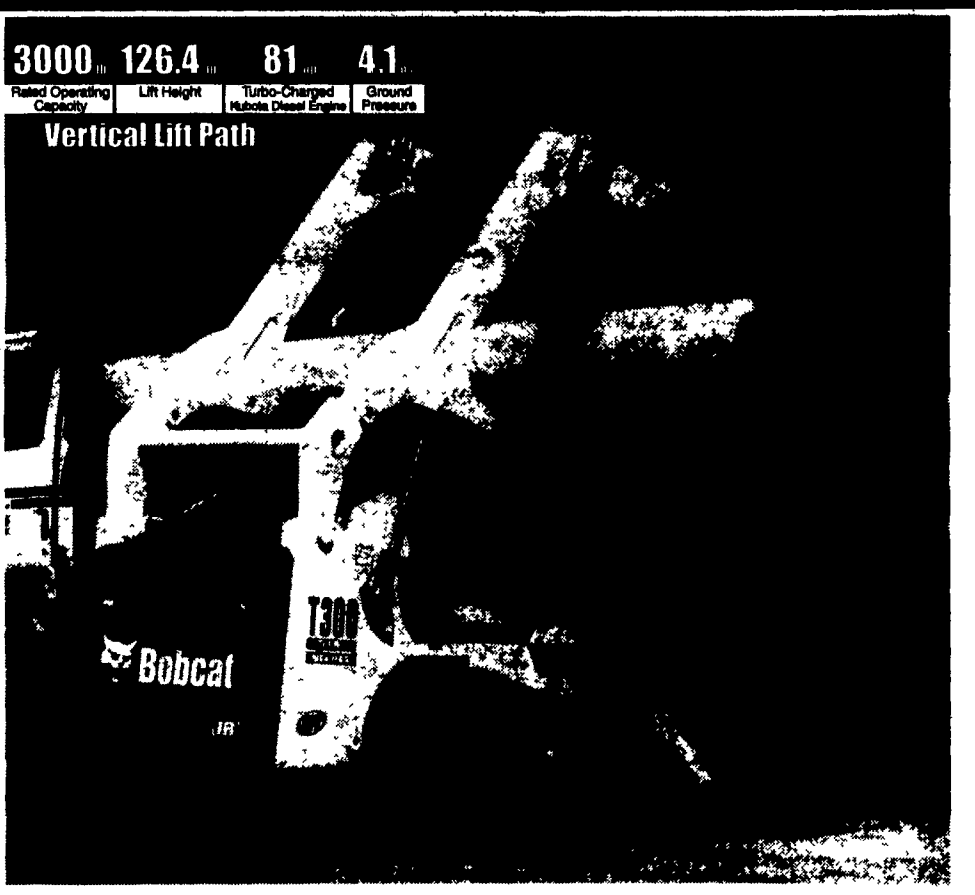
Tough Tracks for Tough Tasks

New Bobcat T300 Compact Track Loader delivers superior traction and loads of lift!



Get in earlier, finish faster
Extend your working season with the powerful, versatile T300 compact track loader! Keep crews working even when the weather won't cooperate!

Greater performance, comfort and value
Rugged rubber tracks give the T300 extra traction, greatly reduced ground pressure and low ground disturbance. Superior flotation, too, for working on soft, wet, or muddy ground where other machines stop dead!

Power to spare
You get great pushing power, plus lots more for running attachments, including the Brushcat® rotary cutter, dozer blade, landscape rake, stump grinder, tiller and others.

Vertical lift path
The T300's low-profile lift arms give the operator a great view to all four corners of the machine — and the vertical lift path delivers excellent reach and lift capacity for handling heavy loads!

Maryland Poultry Industry Lauds Environmental Ruling

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — The attempt by former Maryland Governor Parris N. Glendening and his Department of the Environment (MDE) to create environmental "co-permitting" between Maryland's poultry companies and the independent farm families that grow their chickens has been brought to an end thanks to a ruling by the independent, Final Decision Maker of the Maryland Department of the Environment.

The decision means the state of Maryland will not seek modifications of the poultry companies' wastewater discharge permits to make them responsible for on-farm litter/manure handling practices of the poultry growers.

The ruling affirms an August 2002 decision by administrative law judge Neile S. Friedman with the Maryland Office of Administrative Hearings who wrote that MDE did not have the authority to create the co-permitting.

Poultry industry officials expressed pleasure with the ruling. DPI President Douglas W. Green, himself a poultry grower, said, "This is a victory for farm families that grow chickens, the poultry companies with facilities in Maryland, and the citizens of the state whose tax money was wasted in this clearly illegal scheme by the former governor."

Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. (DPI) and the Maryland Farm Bureau, representing their poultry grower and farmer members, and Delmarva's poultry companies spent nearly two million dollars to fight co-permitting while the state of Maryland spent countless dollars and man-hours supporting it.

DPI President Green said, "This huge amount of money and resources could have been used for legitimate water quality improvement programs instead of wasting it on this legal fight. This decision is total vindication for the poultry industry's arguments that co-permitting is illegal. It's time to move ahead and work voluntarily with Governor Robert L. Ehrlich's government on matters that will actually improve the quality of Maryland's water."

Already the poultry industry voluntarily is working to make better use of chicken litter. These programs include transporting the litter to other farming areas that have need for it and converting raw litter into a pelletized, fertilizer product. In addition, Delmarva's poultry companies are amending the chicken feed so fewer nutrients are in the manure.

Farm Group President Criticizes NAFTA

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — During testimony before the Pennsylvania Democratic Legislative Caucus recently, Pennsylvania Farmers Union President Larry Breech emphasized the adverse effects that current trade treaties have had on employment and income levels at the local and state levels.

"NAFTA and GATS have not been good for Pennsylvania," Breech said of the North American Free Trade Agreement and General Agreement on Trade in Services. "These treaties have cost us jobs and economic growth and endanger the rights of our citizens to govern themselves at the state and local level.

"Treaty laws trump local and state laws and give multinational corporations virtually unlimited power to wage economic war against working people without having to be held accountable for their actions," Breech said. "What we really need are agreements that level the field, not tilt it toward corporate special interests."

Leon Oboler, state organizer for the Pennsylvania Fair Trade Coalition, offered supporting data illustrating the significant loss of Pennsylvania jobs and income. Oboler said that, according to the U.S. Labor Department's NAFTA Trade Adjustment Assistance program records, Pennsylvania has lost 30,226 jobs at 274 facilities as a result of NAFTA.

"The share of Pennsylvania jobs certified as NAFTA losses under NAFTA-TAA certifications is significantly greater than Pennsylvania's share of the national workforce," Oboler said. Although the layoffs happened throughout Pennsylvania, one in five layoffs occurred in rural areas and were concentrated in the manufacturing sector.

PennAg Industries Support Part Of Proposed Plan

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — PennAg President, Robert Gueldner of Best Feed and Farm Supplies, recently expressed the Association's support of portions of Gov. Rendell's proposed Plan for a New Pennsylvania, which includes reducing taxes and stimulating economic development in rural Pennsylvania.

In a ceremony conducted at the Capitol last week, Gueldner stood to support the plan along with the leaders from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, and the Pennsylvania State Grange.

Gueldner opened his remarks by stating, "Times are tough down on the farm. The number one industry in Pennsylvania, agriculture, is doomed to follow some of our other major industries if agriculture and rural Pennsylvania aren't given some kind of an economic boost."

Gueldner continued by expressing the farmers' concerns with the current tax rates. "As owners of the largest land base in the state, farmers are paying a disproportionate share of taxes to rural school districts and other forms of government that rely on estate taxes to sustain them. We believe that the Plan for a New Pennsylvania will help address this problem by helping to alleviate some of the burden on farmers," Gueldner said.

Wolff Appointed To Milk Marketing Board

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Senate voted recently to confirm former Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Boyd Wolff's appointment to the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB). Gov. Rendell named Mr. Wolff Chairman of the board on April 25.

Wolff was born and raised on a dairy farm in Westmoreland County. After graduating from Penn State in 1953 with a Bachelor's degree in dairy husbandry, he returned to his home farm. Over the next 33 years, Wolff expanded the farm from 110 acres to 410 acres and the herd from 30 to 100 cows. During that time, Wolff was active in many agricultural and community organizations.

Wolff served as Pennsylvania's secretary of agriculture from 1987 to 1995. As secretary, Wolff worked with all segments of the dairy industry. His accomplishments included working with dairy processors to extend the shelf life of milk to match the improved technology in the industry. Wolff worked with the legislature to pass legislation allowing Pennsylvania's dairy and other commodity producers to control how their promotion monies are spent. He was also a member of the State Ethics Commission from 1995-1998.

Wolff served on the Penn State Board of Trustees from 1984 to 2001 and received the Distinguished Alumnus Award in 2002. Since 1996, he has completed 14 projects in eight different developing countries for the United States Agency for International Development, including helping farmers understand and develop cooperative marketing organizations and, in Ukraine, helping dairy processors form an organization similar to the Pennsylvania Association of Milk Dealers.

Wolff serves on the Board of 10,000 Friends of Pennsylvania and the South Central Assembly for Effective Government. He is also active in many other professional and civic organizations, including Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, Pennsylvania Grange, Pennsylvania and National Holstein Association, and Pennsylvania Farmers Union.

Pennsylvania Holstein Summer Picnic Set

ALTOONA (Blair Co.) — This year's Pennsylvania Holstein Association Picnic will feature a Double A baseball game — the Altoona Curve vs. the Akron Aeros.

The picnic is set for Sunday, July 13 at 4 p.m. at the Blair County Ballpark, Altoona. The stadium is located at the Frankstown Road Exit off of I-99.

Ticket prices of $20, and $14 for those 10 years and under, will include an all-you-can-eat buffet sponsored by Dairy Promotion. The buffet will include barbeque ribs and chicken, hamburgers, hot dogs, salads, baked beans, cookies, ice cream and beverages.

Fireworks will follow the game.

This will be a great opportunity to enjoy a day away from the farm and visit with Holstein friends from around the state. As dairy farmers, the group will be recognized during the festivities.

For more information, contact the Pennsylvania Holstein Association at (814) 234-0364.

Mid-Atlantic Mixes It With Milk

PHILADELPHIA — Nearly 800 kids and adults alike concocted their own unique milk recipes during Mix It With Milk promotions conducted at two local colleges this spring.

Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association sponsored the milk promotions at Delaware Valley College's A-Day and the University of Maryland's "Maryland Day." These two community outreach efforts each boast annual crowds of more than 35,000 visitors.

Eighteen gallons of milk were used to create fun flavors of milk using JELL-O brand pudding, JELL-O brand gelatin, flavored syrups, powdered drink mixes, sprinkles and peanut butter. While sampling their creations, kids were encouraged to enter the monthly Mix It With Milk 'n JELL-O recipe contest, while adults received coupons for JELL-O brand products. Visit www.mixitwithmilk.com for complete contest rules.

Kids today are in a calcium crisis and often fail to meet the daily calcium recommendation of 800 milligrams for ages 4-8 and 1,300 milligrams for pre-teens and teens.

"This campaign was designed to show kids how to have fun while drinking their nutrient-packed milk," said Deanna Rose, a registered dietitian for Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association. "In addition to providing bone-strengthening calcium, milk offers eight other essential nutrients, including protein, riboflavin and potassium, to keep kids performing at their best."

County dairy promotion groups, as well as Pennsylvania Alternate Dairy Princess Rachel Ebert and Maryland Dairy Princess Emily Yeiser, were on hand to encourage consumer participation.

Mix It With Milk 'n JELL-O promotions are planned for the Baltimore, Md., and Harrisburg markets this summer.

Survey Says Equine Industry Builds Ag Viability, Preservation

Secretary of Agriculture Dennis Wolff, standing third from left, joins others who spoke at the introduction of the 2002 Economic and Population Study of the Pennsylvania Equine Industry late last week. From left, Cheryl Cook, deputy secretary of agriculture; Commissioner Richard Abbott, Pennsylvania Horse Racing Commission; Wolff; James W. Simpson, president and CEO of Hanover Shoe Farms; Ann Swinker, Penn State; Dr. Terry Etherton, department head, dairy and animal science, Penn State; and Commissioner C. HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Perhaps now the state knows full well just how important the equine industry is.

Not only does the horse industry generate a lot of money for the state, but it actually helps to preserve farming as a way of life and open space, according to several speakers late last week.

State Secretary of Agriculture Dennis Wolff and others spoke about the impact the horse industry has to about 75 who attended a ceremony introducing the 2002 Economic and Population study of the Pennsylvania Equine Industry in the new Equine Arena of the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

Wolff noted that a study of the state's equine industry indicates that horses and the many businesses that support the state's equine industry contribute significantly to the state's economy.

Wolff was joined by faculty from Penn State University's School of Agriculture Sciences, who conducted the economic impact survey, and state officials.

"As an $8.27 billion industry, of which racing alone represents $1.4 billion, the equine industry contributes generously to the state's economy," Wolff said. "This report demonstrates the importance of horses to the state's agriculture industry and to the future of its growth and development."

The survey measured the growth of the industry over a 10-year period, including statistics on the number of horses involved in the racing industry and those utilized for other purposes. In addition, it demonstrates the value of the equine industry to Pennsylvania in terms of revenue generated, job creation, and the ripple effect of the industry on other equine-related businesses.

Commissioner Richard Abbott, state horse racing commission, noted that Lancaster and Chester counties represent "the most intense development pressure of any counties in the state and the (state's) highest horse population." Abbott noted that while traditional agricultural enterprises are no longer economically viable in places, horse farms represent "a tremendous force toward preservation of open space and a source of revenue."

James W. Simpson, president and CEO of Hanover Shoe Farms (profiled in the May 10 issue of Lancaster Farming's Boarder & Trainer), noted there are now one million acres of green space in Pennsylvania, thanks to the "equine farmland preservation industry," he noted. That industry contributes about $10 billion in economic activity to the commonwealth.

Hanover, at 3,000 acres, noted Simpson, is just "another cog in the giant equine industry wheel," but does its best to "protect the animal called the horse."

Tom Kauffman, executive director of the Pennsylvania Horse Racing Association, noted that the state's four racetracks point to how large the equine industry is. The association finds the results of the survey "very encouraging," he said. The industry has about 26,000 horses in 52 counties. The industry helps preserve "one million acres in the state," he said, helping sustain thousands of jobs.

According to the equine census report, there are 216,000 equine living in Pennsylvania, representing about 50 different breeds. That is up from 170,000 horses just 10 years ago. Of those, more than 26,000 are racehorses, compared to 8,500 in 1990.

The number of jobs associated with the equine industry has doubled since the last census in 1990. Today, the equine industry employs about 15,000 people, compared to 7,500 in 1990.

Lancaster County has the highest equine population in the state, followed by Chester, York, Washington, and Berks counties.

Ayrshire Association Field Day July 12

ELVERSON (Chester Co.) — The Pennsylvania Ayrshire Association will be conducting its annual state Field Day, Saturday, July 12.

Hosts will be Don and Pam Gable and their three sons, Josh, Tyler, and Kevin, and Don's mother, Josie of Conebella Farm.

The day will be filled with activities for everyone beginning at 10 a.m. There will be judging, dam/daughter contests, and identification contests to fill the morning time.

After the noon meal, there will be an informational meeting about the state association's plan to host the 2005 National Ayrshire Convention. Everyone's help is needed in order for the Convention to be successful, so come to hear the plans to date and decide how you can be involved. Following the meeting, the contest winners will be announced, door prizes awarded, and additional tours or information on the Conebella herd will be given.

Conebella Farm is home to 110 Ayrshire cows, along with 90 head of young stock. In 2002 the herd was moved to a new freestall barn. Over the years the herd has received many production awards from the National Ayrshire Association.

Please RSVP by July 7, if possible, by calling Don and Pam at (610) 286-2967. Directions from Morgantown: Rt. 23 east to Rt. 401 east. Turn right onto Rt. 82 south. Turn right onto the first road, Chestnut Tree Road. The farm is one mile on the right with an Ayrshire farm sign at the end of the lane.

MARKETING PRODUCE TO RESTAURANTS
Steve Bogash
Horticulture Agent
Capitol Region

Steve Bogash

Marketing produce directly to restaurants is one of the least explored and exploited market avenues for produce growers in our region. Since restaurants are listed in the telephone book and most produce farmers are not, it is up to the grower to make the contact.

Is this for you and your operation? This article will point out some features of this type of produce marketing.

First and foremost, any would-be produce seller to a restaurant needs to recognize that there are many kinds of restaurants. Each will have different needs and approaches. Fortunately, all restaurants use produce and lots of it. Whether you as a seller can get your foot in the door will take some homework. This is some of the most enjoyable studying you can do — the best method to research a restaurant's produce needs is to read the menu and eat there.

Think broadly in your definition of a restaurant. There are a lot more out there than those that are open to the public and advertise in telephone books. Start with those that advertise, but look also at nursing homes; retirement communities; hospitals; college, university, and school food systems; country and other private clubs; caterers; service organizations, etc.

We Americans eat an incredible number of our meals out of the home and we eat an incredible variety of foods as well. As you explore this marketing niche, ask lots of questions. Just because you don't currently grow it and probably would not eat it, does not mean you could not or should not grow it for a restaurant. Think about garlic, shallots, leeks, baby greens, edible flowers, basil, and many ethnic specialties as you talk to potential buyers.

Here are a few things to think about as you explore this niche:

- Never approach a restaurant during peak meal times. This is a great way to have the door permanently close in your face.
- Think samples. One of the best ways to establish an open conversation with a restaurant buyer is to drop off a usable quantity of sample product. Leave a tray of tomatoes, a box of garlic, or any standard package of your best product.
- Leave your card with the sample and call back in a day or two.
- Don't try to fill all of their needs. Just getting a piece of the action is all you need.
- Let the relationship develop.
- Not everyone is a customer. Don't be surprised if they love your product but cannot or will not buy from you. Your produce may be too good, and although priced fairly, too expensive for their uses.
- Build trust. Be ready to communicate honestly and often. Restaurants rely heavily on their suppliers being up to the task. They will need to know that you will keep them in the know as your availability changes during the growing season.

There is much more to know than this short article can cover. For more information, as well as stories about producers doing business with restaurants, contact me at (717) 263-9226, via e-mail at smb13@psu.edu , or do a simple Web search with the expression "selling produce to restaurants."

Pa. Senate Confirms McGinty

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Senate recently confirmed Kathleen A. McGinty as Secretary of the Department of Environmental Protection. She is the first woman ever to hold the state's top environmental post.

"Secretary McGinty has the creativity, drive, and spirit to reinvent environmental regulation and build with the people of Pennsylvania a very bright and promising future," Governor Edward Rendell said.

"With her experience at the federal level and in the private sector, we have someone who not only has a realistic view of what needs to be done and but also knows how to do it." "DEP can and should be an engine for economic revitalization in Pennsylvania. Where others see environmental challenges, I see economic opportunities," Secretary McGinty said.

"This department will play an integral role in sustained growth by encouraging technological innovations that make the state more competitive and ensure a cleaner environment."

A Philadelphia native, McGinty served as a top counselor and senior advisor on environmental, natural resources and sustainable development issues for the federal government. In 1995, she was confirmed by the U.S. Senate as chair of the White House Council on Environmental Quality.

Virginia BCIA Announces Plans For Test Station Program

CULPEPER, Va. — Rules and regulations for the 2003-04 Virginia Central Bull Tests and Sales are now available through the Virginia Beef Cattle Improvement Association. This will be the 46th year for the Central Bull Test Stations in Virginia. A total of four tests will be conducted at the two test stations located in Culpeper and Wytheville.

The Culpeper station at Glenmary Farm in Rapidan will test two sets of bulls. Senior bulls (born August 15 to December 15, 2002) will be delivered July 15 and tested for 112 days with eligible bulls selling December 13. The junior test group (bulls born December 16, 2002 to March 31, 2003) will be taken in at the station November 4, tested for 112 days, and sold April 2, 2004.

The Southwest Bull Test Station in Wytheville will test two age groups of bulls — senior bulls born October 1 to December 31, 2002 and junior bulls born January 1 to March 31, 2003. Both sets of bulls are scheduled to arrive at the station September 30. Senior bulls will be tested for 112 days, and junior bulls for 133 days. Eligible bulls in both test groups will be sold on March 20, 2004.

In addition to the traditional tests, the opportunity exists for breeders to custom feed bulls through the BCIA program so that contemporary groups may be maintained. Additionally, provisions to the program have been added to allow breeders more flexibility in developing both sale-eligible and custom tests bulls.

Registered bulls of any recognized beef breed, or recorded percentage bulls of breeds which have an open herd book are eligible for the central tests. All bulls must be recorded in their respective breed association, and have a complete performance record (including EPDs). Bulls must also meet breed-specific minimum YW EPD requirements, individual performance specifications, as well as pre-delivery health and management protocol to be eligible for the tests.

Breeders in Virginia and bordering states who are members of Virginia BCIA are eligible to consign bulls. For copies of the rules and regulations as well as entry information regarding the 2003-04 central bull tests, contact the Virginia BCIA office at (540) 231-9163 or visit http://bcia.apsc.vt.edu.

Tree Fruit Expert Predicts Big Crop, Despite Wet Spring

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Cool, wet, foggy and windy — this spring has been bad news across Pennsylvania — unless you are a plant.

Fruit trees, in particular, seem to be growing extremely well, according to an expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, who predicts a bumper crop this summer and fall.

As miserable as the weather has been for people, there have been no late frosts and conditions have been just warm and dry enough for fruit crops to get a good start. The only factor that may hold back fruit yields this year will be last year's drought, according to horticulture professor Robert Crassweller.

"We have seen some effects of drought last year — we haven't had the dense 'snowball' blooms we get occasionally," he said. "But we have had medium to moderate blooms across the state, which indicate we'll have lots of fruit."

Crassweller noted this has been an unusual spring. "It stayed so cold for so long there was little difference north to south — normally there is a 10-day difference as the early growing season progresses," he said. "But once it got warmer, things progressed rapidly. Cherries, peaches, and apples were all in bloom at the same time. Normally one dies out by the time another starts to bloom. This is the first time in 25 years I have seen them all bloom together."

The past five years brought drought conditions, but this spring has been almost too wet, bringing growers concerns about disease. "We came into spring in pretty good shape across most of the state with moist soils. But all the rain we have had in May might cause an increase in diseases such as apple scab, peach scab, peach leaf curl, brown rot, and fire blight.

"Fruit growers are never happy with the weather, but they will take what they can get," said Crassweller. "It's ironic that after so much drought, we are getting too much rain. But despite wet conditions, there is potential this year for a really good crop."

Quality hay production is the focus of the July 12 edition of the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council's Foraging Around newsletter in Lancaster Farming. Also scheduled: Project Grass youth contest coverage, conservation updates, reports on forage preservation, and a calendar of events.

PASS Reveals Vegetable Contract Intentions

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Processors in Pennsylvania intend to contract 7,300 acres of snap beans in 2003, 4 percent less than the 7,600 acres contracted in 2002, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service (PASS).

Sweet corn processors intend to contract 1,000 acres, down 29 percent from the 1,400 contracted in 2002. Tomato processor data is not published for Pennsylvania in an effort not to disclose individual operations.

U.S. processors plan to contract 1.28 million acres of vegetables in 2003 for the nation's five major vegetable crops (snap beans, sweet corn, cucumbers for pickles, green peas, and tomatoes), unchanged from 2002.

Acreage for freezing at 411,300 acres is down 2 percent, while acreage for canning forecast at 873,100 acres is up 1 percent from 2002. Increased acreage for cucumbers for pickles, green peas, and tomatoes offsets decreased acreage for snap beans and sweet corn.

U.S. snap bean processors intend to contract 194,400 acres, down 12 percent from last year. Contracted acres for freezing are at 59,800, down 8 percent from 2002. Contracted acreage for canning, at 134,600 acres, is down 13 percent from 2002.

Sweet corn processors intend to contract 438,600 acres, down 1 percent from the previous year. Contracted acreage for freezing at 216,400 acres is 3 percent less then last year's total, and contacted acreage for canning, at 222,200 acres is 1 percent more than last year.

Tomato processors plan to contract 312,600 acres in 2003, up less than 1 percent from last year. Contract production at 11.49 million tons is 1 percent above 2002.

U.S. green pea processors intend to contract 243,200 acres, up 6 percent from last year. Contracted acreage for freezing, at 135,100 acres is 4 percent more than last year's total, and contracted acreage for canning at 108,100 acres is 10 percent above last year.

THIN ISN'T IN

Thin females may be popular in fashion magazines, but in the breeding shed and milking parlor it will cost you money.

First estrus is a function of both age and weight. Therefore, heavier heifers breed earlier, enter the milking herd earlier and offer a return on investment earlier. Sweetlix GainPro® Poured Blocks put added weight on heifers for just pennies per day.

Easy to use and proven to work, the economical supplement comes in convenient, non-returnable plastic tubs. Patented EnProAl® technology results in a consistent block with known consumption rates. Simply place tubs in the pasture with replacement heifers for a convenient self-fed supplement program.

IPM Course Offered For Teachers

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The three Rs and the ABCs long have been staples of the public school curriculum. Now, Pennsylvania students are required to learn their IPM. For teachers, this means switching roles and going back to school.

In response to the new academic standards that call for integrated pest management, or IPM, to be taught as part of units on the environment and ecology, the Pennsylvania Integrated Pest Management Program is offering a course to help teachers incorporate IPM into their curriculum.

IPM aims to control pests — such as insects, diseases, weeds and animals — by combining physical, biological and chemical tactics that are safe and environmentally compatible.

"IPM for Teachers: Meeting New Academic Standards for Environment and Ecology," will be conducted June 24-27 at Penn State's University Park Campus. "The course will provide the basis for teaching IPM concepts in the classroom, as well as indoor and outdoor activities to demonstrate real-world pest management decision-making skills," says Lyn Garling, education specialist at Penn State.

For more information on the course content, contact Lyn Garling by e-mail at ljg5@psu.edu or by phone at (814) 863-8884, or visit the Web at http://paipm.cas.psu.edu/schools/ipmcourse.html. To register, contact the office of Conferences and Short Courses at (814) 865-8301.

N.Y. Fruit Growers Can Apply For IPM Funds

ITHACA, N. Y. — Fruit growers in New York are eligible to apply to the Natural Resources Conservation Service branch of USDA for reimbursement for integrated pest management (IPM) practices that contribute to environmental conservation.

According to Frances Tucker of the NYS Agricultural & Environmental Management Program (AEM), farmers should visit their local NRCS office to apply for the reimbursement.

Depending on whether a farm is a standard, limited resource, or beginning farm, reimbursement opportunities for IPM practice can vary from 50/50 to 90/10 cost sharing. It is a competitive application process.

An IPM Standard (595) has been developed for the US and adapted for New York. NRCS will use the IPM Elements developed cooperatively by growers, processors, Cornell faculty, Cornell Cooperative Extension staff and others as a basis for determining specific IPM practices.

IPM Elements are available for sweet cherries, strawberries, raspberries, and blueberries at: http://www.nysipm.cornell.edu/elements/index.html. IPM Elements for apples are in development and will be posted as soon as possible.

Most funding for IPM practices is through the EQIP or Environmental Quality Improvement Program. However, New York NRCS has indicated that IPM reimbursement could also be available under CRP (Conservation Reserve Program), WRP (Wetlands Reserve Program), and AMA (Agricultural Management Assistance Program).

In addition, there is funding under these programs for reimbursement of Technical Service Providers (private consultants and extension personnel) who provide IPM services for farmers. To learn more about the technical service categories and Technical Service Providers see http://techreg.usda.gov/.

For information on a variety of small farm topics, visit Cornell's Small Farms Web Site at www.smallfarms.cornell.edu.

Penn State Entomologist Awarded Grants

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. — Consuelo De Moraes, assistant professor of entomology in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, will receive a personal research grant from the Arnold and Mabel Beckman Foundation.

De Moraes' research on the chemical relationships between plants and insects will be supported by an award of $240,000 from the foundation's Young Investigator Program to be allocated over a three-year period. The foundation awards grants to nonprofit research institutions to promote research in chemistry and life sciences. Each year, the Beckman Young Investigator Program provides support to the most promising young faculty members in the early stages of their academic careers.

De Moraes also recently received a research grant from the David and Lucile Packard Foundation Fellowship for Science and Engineering. She will receive $625,000 from the Packard Foundation to be allocated over a five-year period.

De Moraes' research focuses on the chemical communication of plants and the defensive responses of plants to insect feeding.

De Moraes received her bachelor's degree in ecology in 1992 from the Universidade Federal de Minas Gerais in Brazil. In 1998, she earned a doctoral degree in entomology from the University of Georgia. She joined Penn State's department of entomology in 2001.

$110 Million Allotted For Ag Trade

WASHINGTON, D.C.— USDA Secretary Ann Veneman has announced fiscal year 2003 allocations of $110 million to 65 U.S. trade organizations to promote agricultural products overseas under the Market Access Program (MAP).

Veneman said that exports are expected to reach $56 billion this year, which support 840,000 jobs and that for every $1 billion more, 15,000 new jobs are created.

Part 2: If It's Not Milk Fever, What Is It?

Peter Dippel, DVM

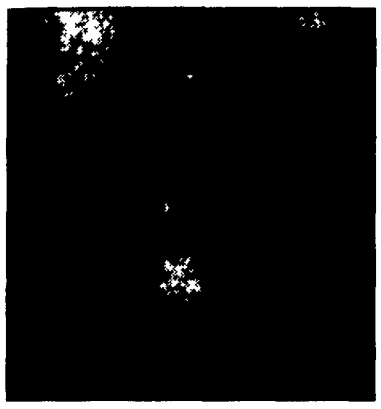
This article is the second in a three-part series discussing down cows. This article explores more reasons of why a cow may be down. Watch for the last article in an upcoming issue that examines treatment options. Dippel is a veterinarian with Lancaster Veterinary Associates, Salunga.

SALUNGA (Lancaster Co.) — Thus far we have covered the most common cause of cows being down. Now, let's say that the dairy producer is positive that it is not milk fever, or has given her a bottle of calcium in the vein and she still won't get up.

There are three likely possibilities as to why she is still down.

If she is recently fresh, chances are she is down due to calving paralysis (calving paralysis usually results from a big calf coming through the birth canal and compressing the obturator or sciatic nerve inside the canal).

If she had milk fever, and was down for a long time, possibly overnight, she probably is down due to pressure necrosis of muscle or nerve damage in her legs.



After being assisted her to get up, she stands with one of her fetlocks buckled forward. When she walks, both buckle forward. This is a classic symptom of "calving paralysis."

If she is not recently fresh, and did not have milk fever recently, she would most likely be down from trauma, i.e. falling on the cement, etc. Whether or not one of these is more likely than the others depends on the history of the cow and the circumstances the cow is in.

All three of these can be put under the category of muscle/nerve damage, or paralysis. But before producers assume that it is muscle/nerve damage, they first must rule out other disease processes.

Simple Observations

This may be determined by simple observations, her history, and by examining the cow. One of the best ways to determine if something else is causing her to be down, other than muscle/nerve damage, is if she is eating or drinking.

This assumes that there is fresh water and feed in front of her. If she is down she can't make it to the water feeder or the bunk, it must be brought to her.

If she is eating and drinking normally this will rule out many other disease processes, and point toward muscle/nerve damage as the probable cause.

For example, if a cow is down from heat stress in the summer, she will not be interested in eating, not to mention her temperature usually is sky high (greater than 105).

If she has suffered severe blood loss, her eyes will be sunken and she will most likely not be interested in eating until you correct her dehydration.

If she has nervous ketosis, it is possible to smell ketones on her breath, and she most likely will not be eating normally. As there are many potential possibilities, veterinary assistance might be needed in helping you determine what the problem is, as well as advice about the prognosis for the future.

For example, diagnosing spinal cord cancer can be difficult because cows usually will still eat when they first go down. Sometimes broken legs can be difficult to diagnose depending on where the fracture is or if there is a lot of swelling in the area. Fractured pelvises are not too common, but they should be checked for as well.

If the producer or the veterinarian has not been able to find any obvious cause as to why she is down, then she may be down from muscle/nerve damage, whatever the initial reason — a hard calving, too long of recumbency from milk fever, or trauma.

Sometimes the cause is obviously muscle/nerve damage and it is not hard to diagnose. For example, the cow had an extremely difficult calving, or the dairy producer saw her go down in the freestall when she was being ridden by another cow.

If there is no history that can be depended on, then prodding her lower extremities is one way to help with diagnosis. If the producer prods her and she has no response, then there is a good chance she has nerve damage.

However, many times they will still be responsive, and yet they cannot rise to their feet.

Also, if she favors one leg while attempting to get up, this is a clue that she might have muscle/nerve damage in that leg.

Keep Treating?

If the producer or the veterinarian determines that muscle/nerve damage is likely, they are now faced with a decision — should the producer spend time and money on treating her, or send her to a down cow renderer?

Since dairymen nowadays do not receive much money anymore for down cows, they are slightly more willing to try and save her. However, there are some good renderers that will do it on the farm, and the dairymen can use the meat for themselves.

Whether or not the meat will be good, and what she has been treated with, are certainly factors in deciding on this option. The extent of her muscle/nerve damage should be one of the factors in determining if treatment should be tried.

If the cow makes no attempt whatsoever to get up, and she has no feeling in either of her legs, than treating her might not be the best option. If she can almost rise to her feet getting of the way up, then treatment would probably be worthwhile. Anything in between can make it a difficult decision to make.

The value of the cow should also be a factor in considering whether or not to treat, as well as the time the dairyman has available to spend on her.

Treating down cows properly can be a big time commitment. If treatment is decided as the course to take, there are many things that a dairyman can do to give her a better chance of standing on her own.

The very first thing to do is to make sure she is on soft ground or in a well bedded area or manure pack. A mattress in a stall is soft enough, but it is not ideal because of the restraints and confinement of the stall which can make it difficult for her to attempt to get up when she finally does try.

This is especially true in a tie-stall barn because of the risk of the cow sliding back into the gutter, which is one of the worst situations a cow can get herself in.

Not On Cement

A boxstall with cement as the floor with one inch of shavings on it is not soft ground. If the cow can dig herself down to the cement in a pen, move her someplace else. None of her body should be touching cement — this simple fact is very important in down cow treatment.

Down cows should not be on cement, and the sooner the cow gets her off the cement, the better her chances of getting up are. This should be one of the first priorities with a down cow.

The longer she is down on the cement, the worse her prognosis is with each passing hour. There are many ways to move a cow, but it is preferable to push her on a gate or a big board and pull that, rather than drag the cow. Be very careful of her teats when doing this.

If she is down outside on pasture, make sure she is protected from the elements, with a canopy in the summer to protect her from the sun, and a windbreak in the winter.

After she is someplace comfortable, make sure she has feed and water in front of her. Hopefully there are not other cows around that might spill or drink her water.

A big, low, tub for the water is ideal, as five gallon buckets tend to spill and are sometimes hard for down cows to drink out of.

After she is moved slowly to dry ground, the cow has much better footing, and is less likely to slip and fall and damage herself further.

BSE FACTS

As you may know, USDA has placed Canada under its BSE restriction guidelines and will not accept any ruminants or ruminant products from Canada pending further investigation in the recent case involving an 8-year-old cow.

The United States remains diligent in its BSE surveillance and prevention efforts. In fiscal year 2002, USDA tested 19,990 cattle for BSE using a targeted surveillance approach designed to test the highest risk animals, including downer animals, animals that died on the farm, older animals and animals exhibiting signs of neurological distress.

BSE is not Foot and Mouth Disease (FMD). BSE is not contagious; is not spread via animal to animal contact; does not have a rapid, short incubation period; and is not a virus. BSE is spread via consumption of contaminated feed. The primary contamination concern is rendered protein products containing brain and/or spinal cord from BSE infected cattle.

This recent BSE event re-emphasizes the continual need for education, for full implementation of the feed ban and for prevention and surveillance activities.

The U.S. has import exclusions since 1989, a feed ban to prevent recycling of potentially infective materials since 1997 and an aggressive surveillance program. Despite the UK success in controlling their BSE epidemic, we in the U.S. must not be complacent.

FSA Now Accepting Crop Reports

The Lancaster County Farm Service Agency (FSA) is accepting 2003 crop acreage reports.

The deadlines for reporting free of charge are June 16 for small grains and July 15 for corn, soybeans, and all other crops.

Reports can still be accepted after these dates by paying a late fee of $35 per farm with an additional nominal charge for acreage.

Crop reporting is now a requirement for those farms enrolled in the Direct Countercyclical Payment program (DCP), Loan Deficiency Payments (LDP's), and many other programs.

FSA expects a heavy reporting season, so come prepared to know the location of your crops on an aerial map, or prepare your own map with the crop locations and acreage totaled.

Aerial photos are available ahead of time, and also on the Mapquest web site, www.mapquest.com. This will save time at the county office. We encourage large operations to call ahead of time to schedule an appointment.

The Lancaster County FSA office is located at the Farm and Home Center, 1383 Arcadia Rd., Lancaster, PA.

Automatic Swine Sorting

Finishing barns with automatic sorting technology have a direct impact on the swine industry's most important goals uniformity, product quality, food safety, and economics.

The technology offers the following advantages to producers: more efficient management of pigs in large pens, an environment where pigs learn to sort themselves into marketing groups, less pig stress during load-out and transport, improved meat quality, and more hogs in the packer's premium box.

Broken Needles

When administering injectable drugs to livestock, broken needles can happen even with great attention to detail.

So what happens if a needle breaks off in the hide of your animal?

If the metal piece is still visible, restrain the animal immediately and attempt to retrieve the broken piece.

If unsuccessful or the metal piece is not visible, mark the animal with a special eartag and record the incident in your health records. If the animal is to be retained for breeding ensure the identification remains with it for its lifetime.

At the end of its useful breeding life, the animal must not go to slaughter for human consumption. For feedlot animals, slaughtering is acceptable within seven days of the occurrence if you haven't violated the drug withdrawal time and have notified the packer with a declaration of a casualty slaughter.

Make sure to advise the packer about the injection site damage. Market animals can also be processed for home consumption, but cannot be sold to anyone else. When in doubt the animal should be euthanized, rather than risking a bad experience for a consumer.

Cattlemen's Field Day

The 2003 Pennsylvania Summer Cattlemen's Field Day is scheduled for Saturday, July 19 with the main location at Em-Tran on Bossler Rd, Elizabethtown.

Tours will also be conducted to the Dwight Hess Feedlot and to Donegal Stream, where there are unique environmentally friendly enhancements to stream bank and related improvements.

The field day presentations at Em Tran will include technological advancements in artificial insemination, embryo transfer, estrus detection and synchronization and livestock cloning. The Hess Feedlot includes a slatted floor barn, a feed commodity shed and excellent animal handling facilities.

For more information about the field day contact The Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association at 814-238-5888.

Ag Progress Days

Agriculture is a demanding business. To compete, you need information on the latest management practices, research, technology and ever-changing regulations.

Mark your calendar for the 2003 Ag Progress Days, August 19-21 at the traditional Rock Springs site, where you'll find one-stop shopping that includes commercial exhibits, machinery demonstrations, cutting edge Penn State research and much more.

Livestock producers may want to visit the new Pennsylvania Livestock Evaluation Center, located next to the Ag Progress Days site.

Pennsylvania Egg Production Up 4 Percent In April

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Egg production in Pennsylvania during April 2002 totaled 554 million eggs, 4 percent more than the 534 million produced in April 2002, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service.

The total number of layers averaged 24.4 million during April, 4 percent more than the 23.3 million one year earlier. Production per 100 layers was 2,275 eggs during the month, compared with 2,288 the same month last year.

Egg-type chicks hatched during April 2003 totaled 4.74 million, 8 percent more than the 4.40 million hatched the previous April. Broiler-type chicks hatched totaled 12.8 million during April 2003, down 2 percent from the previous year.

United States' egg production totaled 7.13 billion during April 2003, up slightly from last year. The total number of layers during April averaged 336 million, slightly lower than the average number of layers from a year ago. April egg production per 100 layers was 2,123 eggs, slightly higher than the 2,109 eggs in April 2002.

Turkey Census Reveals Good, Bad News

PITTSBORO, N.C. — The American Livestock Breeds Conservancy (ALBC) conducted a census of turkeys in the winter of 2002-2003. The results contained good as well as bad news.

The good news is that the populations of standard varieties of turkeys are increasing. The bad news is that the number of hatcheries actually breeding standard turkeys is declining. The reality is that while standard turkeys are being brought back from the brink of extinction, they are not yet safe from peril.

Breeding populations are increasing. Turkeys produce many offspring in a single year, but most end up on the dinner tables and never pass on their genes to another generation. ALBC, therefore, monitors breeding populations to determine the number of birds that are reproducing themselves.

Fifty-two hatcheries and significant breeders of standard turkeys were contacted. These included the 25 hatcheries originally surveyed in ALBC's 1997 turkey census plus 27 additional hatcheries and individual breeders that have since sold turkeys.

To obtain the ALBC's complete report containing data tables, a list of participants, and hatcheries selling heritage turkeys, please send $5 to ALBC, Turkey Census List, P.O. Box 477, Pittsboro, NC 27312

To obtain a copy of "Birds of a Feather: Saving Rare Turkeys From Extinction" containing the 1997 ALBC census report, as well as variety descriptions and a history of the domestication of turkeys, send $21.95 and $6 shipping and handling (North Carolina residents, please add 7 percent sales tax) to ALBC, P.O. Box 477, Pittsboro, NC 27312.

To obtain a copy of the SPPA census, send $5 with your request to Paula Johnson, SPPA Turkey Census, 2442 Mayfield Lane, Las Cruces, NM 88005-5108.

pus is relegating Cooperative Extension to second-class status. University leaders apparently view Extension as a "state service agency." I would argue, however, that Extension is in reality an educational program in its pure form, providing practical, research-based education and information to diverse audiences across Maryland.

Meeting the Extension budget reductions proposed by the university will require draconian measures that would make it difficult if not impossible to provide the practical education that so many have become accustomed to. For example, these measures could include switching from a county-based to a regional Extension presence and eliminating state support for the Master Gardener program, Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program, and the Home & Garden Information Center.

Such drastic actions would lead to a direct loss of county funds, a significant decline in grant funds, and downsizing in terms of both people and facilities. The ultimate result, I believe, would be an inability to meet our mandated obligation to serve the residents of Maryland.

The University of Maryland is fast becoming recognized as a first-class research institution, which is as it should be. But there's no reason it can't also continue to be respected as a land-grant university that supports America's historic tripartite mission of research, instruction, and outreach.

The bottom line is that Extension is perfectly willing to shoulder its share of the university's budget cuts; however, we do not think it appropriate to take cuts that are higher than other academic and research units. If some action is not taken to correct the imbalance imposed by the proposed university budget, we might as well declare Extension dead, close the doors, turn out the lights, and go home.

There seems to be two ways to tackle our current pricing situation. One is CWT, which attacks our supply and demand imbalance to increase milk prices. The other is to wait for enough dairy farmers to go out of business to bring markets into alignment so milk prices will increase for a short period of time.

As a dairy farmer involved in an 80-cow herd, I know how difficult it is to invest $0.179 per hundredweight right now. However, I also recognize that CWT will increase milk prices very quickly. Additionally, I know that the $.179 per hundredweight investment in CWT will be for 12 months and 12 months only, and the investment rate will not increase. The assignment form that cooperatives or independent farmers sign will clearly state this.

CWT sets out to reduce the milk supply by offering farmers incentives to reduce milk production — as opposed to forcing all farms to cut back on production. Although it cannot restrict imports, CWT does attack international trade by going on the offensive as it will significantly increase the amount of butter and cheese this country exports. There has been much work done to try and get the federal government to help create fairer trade for dairy farmers. That work will continue and will be accomplished if farmers find ways to work together. However, the expectation that imports will be cut to zero is not even remotely possible and those that suggest it is possible are doing a disservice to our dairy industry.

We dairy farmers are at an historic point in time in the dairy industry. Right now, CWT is supported by farmers producing 75-80 percent of the milk in the country. NMPF is very close to having the support it needs to go forward with CWT. As dairy farmers, our greatest opportunity for success is to work together under one program. CWT will provide us with that opportunity. I urge you to support and invest in the CWT program — like I am doing. Thank you for your time.

The June 7 letter by Legg of Parkesburg to me is a typical New Age type of stupidity. The township ran through two new beer joints locally in the last several years with no respect whatsoever to local opposition. It's the same in Harrisburg, where the Casino lobby is aggressively pursuing their interests.

Money talks, you know. Forget the moral side.

Judgement could follow as it did after Hurricane Agnes in 1972 when the New Agers approved horserace gambling. The next letter reminded me of mushroom farming in Chester County and the imports which forever changed life around here. Two personal friends sold out — one a bankrupcy.

IPM Course Offered For Teachers

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The three Rs and the ABCs long have been staples of the public school curriculum. Now, Pennsylvania students are required to learn their IPM. For teachers, this means switching roles and going back to school.

In response to the new academic standards that call for integrated pest management, or IPM, to be taught as part of units on the environment and ecology, the Pennsylvania Integrated Pest Management Program is offering a course to help teachers incorporate IPM into their curriculum.

IPM aims to control pests — such as insects, diseases, weeds and animals — by combining physical, biological and chemical tactics that are safe and environmentally compatible.

"IPM for Teachers: Meeting New Academic Standards for Environment and Ecology," will be conducted June 24-27 at Penn State's University Park Campus. "The course will provide the basis for teaching IPM concepts in the classroom, as well as indoor and outdoor activities to demonstrate real-world pest management decision-making skills," says Lyn Garling, education specialist at Penn State.

For more information on the course content, contact Lyn Garling by e-mail at ljg5@psu.edu or by phone at (814) 863-8884, or visit the Web at http://paipm.cas.psu.edu/schools/ipmcourse.html. To register, contact the office of Conferences and Short Courses at (814) 865-8301.

Farm Show Leaders Planning For '04

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Farm Show has a solid foundation to build on and it needs to keep getting better, according to members of the Commercial Ag Exhibit Committee.

The committee met with about 50 exhibitors and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Farm Show management team for a dinner at the Farm Show Complex Wednesday evening.

The committee reviewed successes and shortfalls of the 2003 show and introduced plans for the future.

Possible changes for the the 2004 Farm Show include:

- extending the number of farmer days from three to four;
- having dairy show animals brought in earlier in the week;
- adding a 20,000 square foot auxiliary structure to provide more commercial exhibition space; and
- drawing a more diverse group of commercial ag exhibitors, including dairy product suppliers.

Some ag equipment exhibitors expressed concern about having staff on hand for an additional farmer day. Others noted that farmers and potential customers were present throughout the entire eight days at the show this past January.

Last year's farmer days, which included free parking and refreshments for farmers as well as fully-manned commercial exhibits, were set for Monday through Wednesday. For 2004, the committee is proposing adding Thursday as an additional farmer day.

Based on the discussion Wednesday evening, the committee will be reviewing that proposal, according to Tom Yohe, general manager of ag exhibits.

The first-ever live machinery demonstrations in 2003 were a success, but product seminars were poorly attended, Yohe noted. The committee will consider adding more demonstrations. It will also determine whether or not to continue the seminars and, if so, how to better promote them.

According to committee member Don Hoover, the Farm Show is an excellent venue for entire farm families as well as an opportunity to communicate with people from non-farm backgrounds.

"We need to help them understand (agriculture) and here is a golden opportunity to do that," Hoover said.

Ed Nielsen, new Farm Show director, suggested that commercial exhibitors "profile" potential customers who come to the show to help determine buying patterns and improve exhibitors' return on their investment of time and money in the show.

Nielsen spoke about his goal of increasing international presence at the Farm Show, which has traditionally been a place where local equipment dealers meet local customers.

The challenge of balancing local flavor with a global marketing plan: "How big do you get without losing your soul?" Nielsen said.

The new Farm Show management team includes Bill Wehry, a Schuylkill County farmer, deputy secretary; and Larry Weaver, a Lancaster County cattleman, as chief of show management.

Also on hand were Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Dennis Wolff, and Deputy Secretary Russ Redding, moderator of the meeting.

Redding said logistical glitches in last year's show, such as overcrowding in the main corridor, will be resolved at the 2004 show.

NASS
Agriculture Counts

By Marc Tosiano
Pa. State Statistician

Editor's note: This is a monthly column from the Pennsylvania Ag Statistics Service (PASS), a field office of USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS) in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA). The Website is www.usda.gov/nass/.

DAIRY HERD BUYOUT

The Cooperatives Working Together, or CWT program to reduce dairy herd numbers, has generated much discussion and it has received a lot of press lately.

You may not realize that statistics from USDA's National Ag Statistics Service were and continue to be a major source of information for the cooperatives that have been planning this buyout. Our monthly state-level statistics of cow numbers, milk per cow, and production no doubt will take a role in the implementation of the plan if it is approved.

Most folks see or hear about our statistics and never realize that NASS and the Pennsylvania Ag Statistics Service is the source of the numbers. These days, everyone uses statistics to make their point or promote their cause. Our cause is agriculture. Our data is public information so we don't have to be credited as the source. Often our data is only credited to "USDA" and the agency name is never mentioned.

You have probably seen or heard NASS numbers in articles in agricultural magazines and newspapers, talks or reports from extension specialists and other educators, grower association or cooperative meetings and conferences, publications and handouts from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA) or Penn State, pamphlets from chambers of commerce promoting agriculture, or speeches from various leaders of Pennsylvania agriculture.

By helping us with our surveys, you are helping yourselves to have accurate information that is used in these ways and many more.

Ag Census Continues On The Phone

Response to the Ag Census by Pennsylvania growers is only about average compared to other states. This means that half of the states have a better response than here in the Keystone State.

You may still get a phone call if we haven't received your form for the 2002 Census of Agriculture. We are making phone calls in an attempt to improve response here in Pennsylvania.

After so many growers have already responded, it would be a shame to come up short in the final tally! We want Pennsylvania agriculture to be properly represented compared to the other states. Every response is important because the numbers that come from the Ag Census will be used for the next five years as part of the decisions that affect agriculture and you.

If you have questions about the census or need a census form, call 1-888-4AG-STAT or 1-888-424-7828.

U.S. Cattle Counted

Cattle inventories, births, and deaths are measured twice a year, in January and July. In July, about 9,400 of the largest cattle operations (including dairies) are contacted nationwide to help establish official statistics at the national level.

In Pennsylvania, only 125 of the largest cattle and dairy operations are asked for their help with

Milk Production Finally Declines

Ken Bailey
Dairy Economist
Penn State

USDA just released its May milk production report and the numbers look good. Milk production for 20 select states was down 0.4 percent from the same month a year ago. Cow numbers on dairy farms have fallen two months in a row.

California, the nation's number one dairy state, actually had no growth in cow numbers from April to May 2003. And, only five of the top 20 dairy producing states had positive growth rates for May relative to a year ago.

This news will be viewed as favorable by the dairy industry. It indicates that the marketplace is finally realigning supply with demand.

The market may have already factored in some of the expectation for lower milk output. The Class III price is expected to peak at $12.50 per cwt by the fall. However, it is possible that dairy futures at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange could get higher, particularly if the market expects the USDA's milk production report to indicate a sustained trends towards less milk.

It is not known precisely why the nations milk output declined. One likely reason is that cow numbers have finally responded to months of low milk prices. The other reason may be related to a cold and damp spring (less milk per cow). This is particularly true for states like Pennsylvania, New York and Vermont.

Longtime Penn State Dairy Instructor Retires

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Larry Muller, renown Penn State dairy science instructor, center, was feted during a two-day retirement symposium at the Penn Stater Hotel Tuesday and Wednesday this week. Noted grazing specialist Eric Kolver, Dexcel Co., calls Muller, who began teaching at Penn State in 1976, a "champion of pasture-based dairying in the U.S. — the voice of reason to balance the views of the proponents and critics of grass-based dairying." Speakers at the symposium included, from left, Jim Aldrich, Carl Akey Co.; Elliot Block, Church and Dwight Co. Inc.; Muller; Lisa Holden, associate professor of dairy science; and Terry Etherton, department head, dairy and animal science. More about Muller's life and work is scheduled in Lancaster Farming's Dairy Plus June 28. Photo by Andy Andrews, editor this national study. However, the Cattle Survey in January includes many more farms from Pennsylvania and across the nation which allows us to publish state level statistics for Pennsylvania and other states.

The Cattle statistics program also includes reports detailing cattle on feed, average prices received by growers, production, disposition and income, slaughter statistics, and beef products in cold storage.

The results of cattle surveys can be found at www.usda.gov/nass/. Use the SEARCH button to find the next "Cattle" report issued on July 18.

Crop And Fruit Yields Forecasted

From May to November, NASS publishes the official USDA yield and production forecasts for the major field crops and tree fruits in Pennsylvania and around the country. Forecasts are based on responses to periodic fruit surveys and monthly ag yield surveys when farmers estimate expected yields from their own fields.

Forecasted crops include winter wheat, barley, oats, corn for grain, soybeans, sorghum, hay, hay stocks, apples, peaches, pears, and cherries.

We ask growers because they are the best source of information about the crops they grow. They see the crop develop daily and they have the best idea of how the weather is affecting their crop. Using their years of experience, they can make the best estimate of their expected yields based on current crop conditions.

It is too risky to use weather predictions when setting yield forecasts. Forecasts are based on information from farmers who must assume that average conditions will prevail through the end of the season. Potential lower yields from drought, flood, or other poor growing conditions are reflected in the following months' yield surveys.

Each month we ask about different crops depending on their stage of growth. In Pennsylvania, we ask 150-600 growers for their help with the Ag Yield Survey depending on the field crops included that particular month. Fruit forecast surveys are sent to all known fruit producers across Pennsylvania. These production forecasts give an important advance warning of the size of each crop in Pennsylvania and across the nation.

For example, if a large crop is expected, contract harvesters, packers, transportation companies, and storage facilities must be ready to handle the extra volume. A small crop warns about the possible need to plan for alternate livestock feed sources or farmer assistance programs such as the 1999 Drought Assistance Program.

The results of field crop and fruit yield surveys can be found at www.usda.gov/nass/. Use the SEARCH button to find the "Crop Production" report issued around the 10th of each month and the "Cherry Production" report scheduled for June 26.

Four Greenwood FFA Seniors Reap $191,000 In Scholarship Awards

MILLERSTOWN (Perry Co.) — Four 2003 Greenwood High School graduates who are members of the Greenwood FFA Chapter have been awarded a total of $191,000 in scholarship funding, according to MeeCee Baker, agricultural science teacher and FFA adviser.

Melissa Brong, class valedictorian and daughter of Karl and Joyce Brong, Millerstown, has accumulated $62,500 in scholarship money, the bulk of it coming from Lebanon Valley College, Annville. The college has awarded her $15,000 per year (a total of $60,000) for her pre-medicine studies toward her goal of becoming a pediatrician. Her other awards included $1,000 FFA Leidy Truck Scholarship, $500 Steven Moore Memorial Scholarship, $500 Greenwood Education Association Scholarship, $300 Ruehr Scholarship, $1000 Greenwood Proud Scholarship, and $100 from Learn to Swim Program.

Christina Carl, FFA president and daughter of Kevin and Kelly Carl, Liverpool, has earned a total of $40,600 in scholarships. A Presidential Scholarship from Delaware Valley College will provide Christina with $10,000 per year for a total of $40,000. She plans to major in large animal science with a minor in pre-vet toward becoming a large animal veterinarian. Her other monetary awards are $250 National Wild Turkey Federation Essay Scholarship, $200 from Pennsylvania State FFA for selection as State Star, $100 from state FFA for selection as state proficiency winner in emerging ag technology, and $50 Courtni Meiser Memorial Scholarship.

Matt McClure, class president and son of Inez and the late Rodney McClure, Liverpool, has been awarded a total of $55,125 with $54,000, or $13,500 per year, coming from St. Joseph University, where he intends to major in preprofessional biology toward becoming a physician. He also received a $500 Agriscience Recognition Award, $500 Perry County Scholarship Award, $100 Jaycee Scholarship, and a $25 Spanish Award.

Jessica Russell, a member of the National Honor Society and daughter of Betty and Barry Russell, Millerstown, has won a total of $34,448 in scholarship funds to pursue her goal of becoming a small animal veterinarian. Her major funding is a Presidential Scholarship from Delaware Valley College, worth $8,000 per year for a total of $32,000, for her pre-vet studies. Jessica's other money awards include $1,000 FFA Leidy Ford Truck Scholarship, $300 from Perry County Old Iron Collectors, and $100 from state FFA for selection as the state proficiency winner in ag sales.

Lancaster County Weekly Cattle

New Holland, Pa.
Report Supplied By USDA
Friday, June 13, 2003

	CATTLE	CALVES
THIS WEEK	2506	1648
LAST WEEK	2564	1439
LAST YEAR	2286	1574

Compared to last week's closing prices, Choice slaughter steers sold steady to mostly 1.00 lower, with a good test of high Choice and Prime cattle late in the week trading up to 2.00 lower. The early week runs were fairly light, with the Tuesday run hardly breaking 100 head. However, the Thursday run remains very good, as over 650 head of steers made their way through the ring. Kosher demand is still good, with the high quality cattle still bringing in the low 80's. This is the only area in the U.S. where a fat cattle buyer can put together several loads of steers and then turn around and say he knows they'll all be high Choice, but he is kind of disappointed to think that only around 6 or 7 on each load will grade Prime. Anywhere else in the world a load of fancy cattle like that would be the talk around the packing house for days. But in Lancaster County it's just the norm, and really says something about the commitment the local producers have to feeding cattle right, as despite most of them running very low on feed due to the dry summer of 2002, they're still making them good. Imagine what these local steers will look like when they have something to eat, with moisture more than adequate right now to make a bumper corn crop. Nationally, the Western direct feed yards took a pretty good hit on both their live and dressed sales this week. Live sales came in at mostly 74.00-75.00, which is 3.00 lower compared to last week. The dressed market really felt the heat, with prices mostly 5.00 lower at 119.00. Boxed beef cutout values continue to loss ground just about as fast as they gained. With around a 1.00-2.00 loss for several days in a row, it doesn't take long to bring meat values back down. As of Thursday, light Choice cutout values were at 135.89, with heavy Choice at 136.66. The Select cutouts are 124.87 and 124.65 respectively, with the current Select discount at about 11.00. The Select discount is getting less severe considering when the Choice cutout spiked above 150.00 there was nearly a 20.00 discount. At the Merc, the June live cattle futures closed at 71.65 on Thursday, with the August contract still predicting a bearish summer as it holds at 67.12. Locally, the slaughter heifer and Holstein run was light on Monday and Tuesday, there was a good heifer run on Thursday which drew good buyer interest. Slaughter cows sold mixed on the early week runs as Breaking and Boning cows sold steady to 2.00 lower as Lean cows sold steady to 1.00 higher. Demand was outstanding on the Thursday run, and prices on all classes trended 2.00-4.00 higher as the boneless market made sharp advances over the past few days. The cow prices quoted below show the difference between the early and late week demand, as the price spreads on each grade are massive. Slaughter bulls sold 2.00-3.00 lower early in the week, with late week prices trending firmer. The reported supply this week in Lancaster County included 1034 head of slaughter steers, 118 head of slaughter heifers, 965 head of slaughter cows, 182 head of slaughter bulls, and 207 head of feeder cattle.

Slaughter Steers: High Choice and Prime 2-4 1145-1460 lbs 78.00-83.85, mostly 79.50-83.00, fancy singles up to 84.25, full 77.00-77.50. Choice 2-3 1060-1480 lbs 75.75-80.25, mostly 76.50-79.00, Charolais-crosses 76.50-80.00, heavyweights 1500-1620 lbs 72.50-77.00. Couple Choice 1-2 1270-1415 lbs 79.75- 81.25. Choice 4 few full 1110-1450 lbs 70.50-75.50. Select and low Choice 2-3 1005-1485 lbs 74.00-77.75. Select 1-2 1000-1440 lbs 71.00-75.50, few heavier muscled up to 79.25.

Holstein Steers: Small Supply of High Choice and Prime 2-3 1420-1550 lbs 68.75-70.75, heavy single 1655 lbs 63.75. Choice 2-3 1200-1570 lbs 65.00- 69.25. Select and low Choice 2-3 1150-1585 lbs 63.00-68.25. Select 1-2 1195- 1590 lbs 58.50-63.25. Standard 1-2 1210-1430 lbs 56.00-60.00.

Slaughter Heifers: Choice 2-3 1010-1440 lbs 74.00-78.25, individual 79.25. Choice 4 1025-1285 lbs 69.50-73.00. Select and low Choice 2-3 1150-1375 lbs 72.50-74.25, higher yielding up to 79.50.

Slaughter Cows: Percent Lean, Weight, Bulk, Low Dressing. Premium White, 65-70, over 1600 lbs, 50.50-54.25. Breakers, 70-75, over 1400 lbs, 42.75-50.50, 38.50-46.25. Boners, 75-80, over 1200 lbs, 38.00-47.00, 35.00-43.75. Lean (Hi-Yield), 80-85, over 1200 lbs, 38.00-43.75. Lean, 85-90, over 1000 lbs, 34.00-41.00, 30.00-36.50. Lean (Light-wgt), 85-90, 750-100 lbs, 30.00-37.25, 28.00-32.75.

Slaughter Bulls: Yield Grade 1 1020-2010 lbs 47.50-54.00, high dressers 55.50-64.00 which includes several early week Charolais and Limi-crosses, thin 955-1295 lbs 46.75-50.00. Yield Grade 2 1015-2505 lbs 44.50-51.75. Nine head of young, black 1050-1180 lb bulls suitable to put into service 53.00-60.50.

Calf Summary: Compared to last week's prices, veal calves sold steady to 5.00 lower. Holstein bull calves suitable for special-fed veal barns sold 15.00-25.00 higher on the Tuesday graded run, with the Thursday run trending 10.00-30.00 lower. Demand is very uneven for baby calves as no one knows whether to fill their barns, or to wait out the Canadian situation. If the border opens, there will surely be an influx of calves on the Northeast market that will undermine local prices. However, for the time being the finished market has moved sharply higher. The USDA reported hide-off special-fed veal carcasses from 205.00-239.00 this week, with some area producers being offered up to 265.00 as packers are in dire need of finished calves. This week in Lancaster County the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture graded 1057 head of bulls and heifers at the two graded sales, this compares to 999 the prior week.

Veal Calves: Good and Choice couple 225-250 lbs 100.00-104.00; 300-bs 60.00- 75.00, individual 94.00; 400-450 lbs 72.00-80.00. Standard and Utility 50-110 lbs 20.00-40.00, weaker 11.00-20.00.

Special Note

Lancaster Farming reminds readers that market prices are the result of reports sent to the newspaper by various auctions or USDA reporting services. It would be impossible to check the accuracy of the approximately 115 markets that appear weekly. Editors have always been aware that inflated or inaccurate prices are of no service to anyone and have no place in this publication. Such reports are useless to our readers and take up vital editorial space.

Readers, though, who employ the services of an auction house might recognize incorrect reports from personal experience. When that occurs, please notify the auction house and send a copy, also, to our attention.

Dandie says... Worried about too many acres of late planted corn??

Century & Summer King BMR

First Cut Ready in About 40 Days!

SORGUM SUDAN HYBRIDS

Century BMR
- Locally proven hybrid
- 80-85 days to boot

Summer King BMR
- New lower cost product
- 60-65 days to boot

Brown Mid Rib (BMR) Sorghum Sudangrass may be the summer crop for you! The weather has challenged dairy farmers this year, and made high quality forage supplies very tight. No one knows what summer will bring. Will we have enough heat units to finish a corn crop? Do you have enough forage on hand to wait for a corn crop? Sorghum sudans require heat as well, but cost much less to grow.The energy levels in BMR are similar to corn silage with approximately twice the protein when harvested at 30-36 inches.

Management Tips:
- Apply 75 units of Nitrogen at planting.
- Plant at 35-60 lbs per acre.
- Seed depth approximately 1"

For Super Feed Quality:
Harvest for balage at 30"
For silage at 36"
For grazing at 18"
- Apply 50 units of Nitrogen after first cutting, or after second grazing.
- Approx. 30 days between cuts.

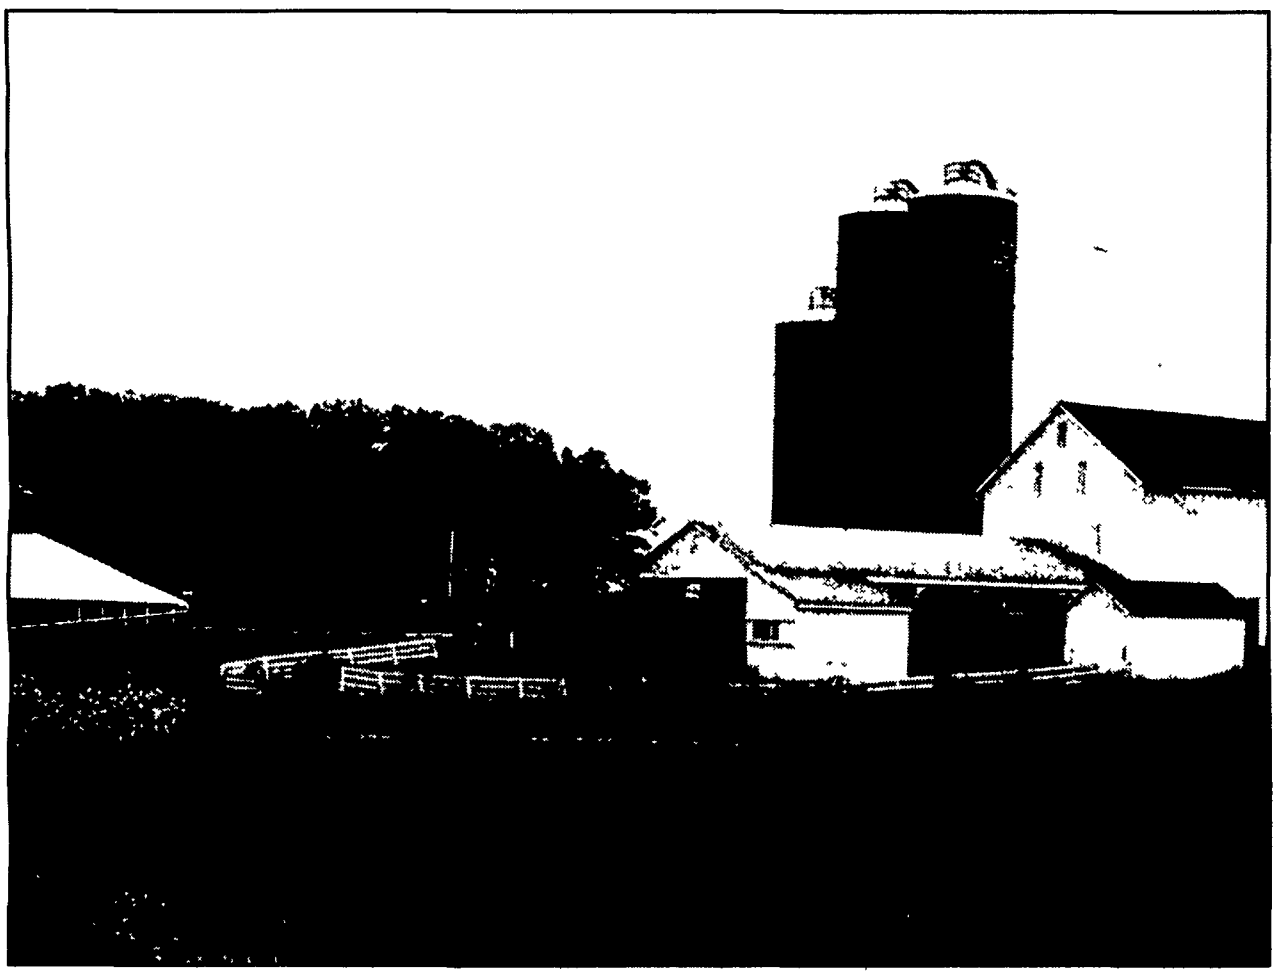
For Grazing, Add Pasja Forage Brassica in Case We Get a Cool Summer

"We looked at a Slurrystore® System in 1984 that was constructed here in Somerset Co. It's still in use today. That was a good reason for us to buy a Slurrystore!"



The Hillgass' new 59' x 24' Slurrystore, completed in early June.

Garland & Gary Hillegass
Berlin, PA

"We built our old semi-solid storage in 1982. We couldn't empty that system very easily. It was a sloppy job."

"We thought about a concrete tank, but we didn't like the idea of a gate or moving a pump around to mix the tank.

"We wanted a system that would not leak and we thought that the Slurrystore System was well engineered.

"The Penn Jersey people are really good. They know how to construct a manure system!"

Add Dairy To Your Diet With These Contest Recipes

Gerry and Darlene McMath enjoy this spot on their family farm. With them are their three daughters and two sons.

NO BAKE CHEESECAKE

1 8-ounce cream cheese, softened
1 can evaporated milk
1 small package lemon jello
1½ cup boiling water
¾ cup sugar
4 tablespoons lemon juice
2 cups graham cracker crumbs
5 tablespoons sugar
½ cup soft butter

Put can of milk in freezer for 2 hours. Shake after 1 hour. Mix jello in boiling water and cool. Beat cream cheese, sugar, and lemon juice; add cooled jello. Whip in separate bowl on high speed can of milk and fold into mixture (I cut top off can).

Mix graham cracker crumbs with sugar and butter. Press into 9×13-inch glass dish and partway up the sides. Save ¼ cup to sprinkle on top. Pour cheese mixture into graham cracker crust. Sprinkle ¼ cup crumb mixture on top and refrigerate overnight.

My husband's name is Gerry. We live on a 255-acre farm 85 miles west of Harrisburg. We milk about 70 cows and farm 300-acres; some we rent. Our son Bernie helps us. We have been married 42 years this year and I have had this recipe ever since I've been married. Naturally it was one of my Mother's. It is a very refreshing dessert in the summer.

ICE CREAM CAKE

1 box yellow cake mix
1 small (96 gram) box instant chocolate pudding
4 eggs
½ cup vegetable oil
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 cup water
½ gallon vanilla ice cream

Mix all ingredients except ice cream together until well blended.

Grease a 9×13-inch pan. Pour into pan and bake at 350 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes. When cool remove from pan and make two layers by slicing off the top layer of the cake.

Slice ½ gallon vanilla ice cream into about 1-inch thick pieces and layer it on top of the bottom layer. Replace top layer and freeze. When frozen, frost with your favorite chocolate frosting. Store in freezer.

This cake is always good over the summertime. It's a cold refreshing dessert and we all enjoy it. We live on a dairy and chicken farm in Lebanon County. It keeps us busy but we are thankful for being able to live and work on the farm.

CREAMY MACARONI CASSEROLE

2 cups meat, ground beef, ham, etc.
3 cups milk
2 cups uncooked macaroni
2 cans cream of mushroom soup
½ pound diced cheese
2 onions, chopped
1 cup peas
2 teaspoons salt

Mix everything together and let set overnight. Then put into greased 9×13-inch pan.

Can also add buttered bread crumbs on top.

Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour.

This is an easy casserole to mix together. And my family likes it. I like to mix it Saturday then I have a handy meal for Sunday. I enjoy reading over everyone elses recipes. And also trying them.

STUFFED SHELLS

Meat Filling:
1 pound ground beef
¼ cup chopped onion
¾ cup oatmeal
1 egg beaten
¼ cup milk
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1½ cup shredded mozzarella cheese
1 (8-ounce) package large shell noodles (stuffing size)

Cook ground beef and onion until meat is brown. Add remaining meat filling ingredients.

Boil shells in water until they are soft, but not quite done. Rinse with cold water and fill with meat filling. Place filled shells in a 13×9×2-inch baking pan.

Tomato Sauce:
1 (12-ounce) can tomato paste
¼ cup chopped onion
2 cups water
1 tablespoon Italian seasoning
½ teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Mix ingredients for sauce and heat to boiling. Reduce heat and simmer for 10 minutes stirring occasionally. Pour sauce over shells; sprinkle with shredded mozzarella cheese and bake for 30 minutes at 350 degrees.

This is a dish the children love and can be made ahead and frozen. Thaw before baking.

We live on a dairy farm and have three children. I always look forward to June Dairy Month to read all the recipes. I love to cook and bake. Enjoy busy summer.

LEMON SPONGE PIE

1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons butter
1 lemon, grate rind and squeeze juice or use 3 tablespoons real lemon
3 eggs, separated
3 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups milk

Cream sugar and butter. Beat egg yolks with flour, salt, and milk. Mix all ingredients together except egg whites. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into mixture. Pour into unbaked pie shell. Makes one pie. Bake at 350 degrees until nicely browned on top and custard is set.

TICKLE CAKE

3 cups flour
2 cups white sugar
⅔ cup cocoa
1½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons salt dissolved in 1 cup boiling water
1 cup sour milk
1 cup salad oil
2 eggs
2 teaspoons vanilla

Mix everything together and put in a 11×15-inch pan and bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes.

White Cream Filling:
½ cup crisco
1 stick butter

Cream these ingredients together and add:
1 cup sugar
2 egg whites
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup hot milk (adding 1 tablespoon at a time till creamy)

Put filling on cooled cake and freeze ½ hour or until filling is firm. Then spread warm choclate frosting over it.

Frosting:
1 stick butter
1½ cup brown sugar
3 tablespoons cocoa
⅓ cup milk

Bring to a boil and cool until warm. Then thicken with sugar (approximately 1½-2 cups). I often put it in a 9×13-inch pan and it works good too.

This cake recipe was given to me by a friend. Our boys really like it and it never stays around long. My husband, Glenn, and I have four boys, Darryl (16 years), Brian (12 years), Anthony (9 years), and Clyde (5 years). We live on a dairy farm and use lots of milk and dairy products. We also have a lime and fertilizer business. So we have plenty of work for our boys.

LAYERED BANANA PUDDING

⅓ cup flour
⅔ cup packed brown sugar
2 cups milk
2 egg yolks, beaten
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup whipped topping
4-6 firm bananas, sliced

In medium saucepan, combine the flour, brown sugar; stir in milk. Cook and stir over medium heat until thickened and bubbly; cook and stir 1 minute more. Remove from heat; stir in butter and vanilla. Cool to room temperature; fold in whipped topping. Layer a third of the pudding in a glass bowl. Top with half of the bananas. Repeat layers. Top with remaining pudding. Cover and chill 1 hour before serving.

This is a recipe we found in a Taste of Home catalog and the first time we made it, everyone loved it. I live on a dairy farm so dairy products are often found in the food on our table. I am 19 years old and work parttime at a grocery store. I love helping with the milking when I get a chance. Farming and Dairying is a lot of fun.

DRIED BEEF CASSEROLE

8 to 10 boiled potatoes
¼ pound dried beef
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
1 cup cheese (any kind)
2 tablespoons buttered bread crumbs

Slice half of the potatoes into a 2½-quart casserole. Fry beef slightly in butter. Add flour and mix well. Add milk and cheese. Cook until thickened. Pour half of sauce over the potatoes. Add remaining potatoes, then the rest of the sauce. Sprinkle bread crumbs on top. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

I always look forward to

Crawford County Dairy Princess Kelley Marzka believes women are vital to the success of family farms. She said the work women do encompasses a broad spectrum of tedious, difficult, and overwhelming jobs.

Tribute To Dairy Farm Women

KELLEY MARZKA
Crawford Co. Dairy Princess

CAMBRIDGE SPRINGS (Crawford Co.) — Maybe you've heard the quote, "Behind every successful man is a surprised woman." Well, I have my own quote: " Behind every successful man is a strong woman."

Since the beginning of time, women have been nurturers, caring for their families, often at their own expense, and providing the loving support that has been necessary in the development of modern-day society.

While the role of women has, thankfully, changed greatly over recent years, women still play a vital role in the well-being of their families. This role is especially significant in that increasingly rare unit known as the farm family.

Just call us the "Swing Set."

That covers it.

"Grandma, let's swing!" a little voice will beckon, and off we go. The weightless motion of a swing offers universal appeal, it's lulling rythmn satisfying to something deep inside ourselves. If we want to go Freud-ish and analyze that, perhaps the appeal is a connection to the time we rocked in the safe, weightless security of our mothers' wombs.

Whatever. The grandkids don't give a hoot for analysis.

They just want to swing.

So we stampede out through the kitchen door to the back porch, where a classic bench-style swing hangs on chains from hooks drilled long ago into the ceiling of our shaded porch. The old wooden swing was a donation from my dad, purchased second, third, maybe fourth-hand at a sale and spiffed up with white and gray paint.

This swing has served four generations of our family thus far, spruced up occasionally with a fresh coat of wood-prolonging color. A lawn-lounge cushion softens the sitting on its wooden length, just the right size for one adult and a couple of little folks. We will no sooner plop down, together, until at least one of them slides back off to be the "pusher" keeping us swingers in motion.

"Faster, faster!" is the normal cheer encouraging the small person giving the old swing periodic shoves to maintain the motion. "Faster" here is a relative term, since porch swing dynamics limit just how fast or how high one can go, parked comfortably on the wooden perch.

Besides, if the swing gets into motion to a point where it might bump the pusher, Grandma swiftly applies the foot brake.

Visibility from the swing extends in three directions around the farm, so we generally check out the scenery. Cats, guineas, even a stray heifer in the meadow may spur a discussion, as well as birds at the feeder, flowers in bloom, or more likely, what piece of farm machinery is doing what job, and where.

Porch-swinging is warm-weather entertainment, making it almost mandatory that refreshments be served, specifically those fruit-flavored, tube-enclosed freezer popsicles, which explains why one frequently slightly sticks to the porch floor when walking in the vicinity of the swing.

For higher excitement and slightly-bigger little folks, another classic swing hangs from a large limb of one of the old maples in the yard. Both the rubber tire and the nylon rope date back well over two decades, when The Farmer originally hung the tire swing for our kids. It has swung there since, a staple of the backyard, swaying through midsummer thunderstorms and winter blizzards, gently shoved aside by the passing lawn mower, object of curiousity and head nudging by trespassing heifers.

Occasionally, someone even swings on it.

With a little weather protection and those periodic slatherings of gray and white paint, the old porch swing should hang around to comfort with gentle swaying yet enother generation well into our future years. Maybe someday there will even be more time to enjoy the world from its shaded setting.

God willing, I look forward to becoming a swinging senior in my retirement years.

Campaign Aims To 'Beef Up' Smaller Fares

DENVER, Colo. — Cattle producers have extended an away-from-home campaign that demonstrates that even those eating less can still enjoy beef.

Funded through $1-per-head checkoff program, the "BEEFlexible" campaign shows restaurant operators how they can serve flexible-sized portions that allow their patrons to enjoy the beef tastes they expect.

The campaign is being coordinated on behalf of the Cattlemen's Beef Board and state beef councils by the National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA).

"Some restaurant diners who want to eat a less-filling meal don't think of beef as an option but it should be," says Sid Sumner, a beef producer from Bartow, Fla., and chair of the checkoff-funded Joint Foodservice Committee. "Our campaign demonstrates that there are wonderful beef items that are perfect for those dining occasions that call for limited consumption."

The checkoff-funded "BEEFlexible" campaign features beef value cuts to showcase smaller fare. For example, in one campaign brochure cuts from the chuck and round are used to showcase contemporary recipes ideal "for small plates."

Recipe cards from all six dishes have been made available to operators responding to the ad. Preliminary results show that requests for materials have increased.

This year the campaign is being expanded with ads that feature the "Petite Tender" from the shoulder, joining ads for the Flat Iron and Ranch-Cut steaks in rotation throughout the year.

The ads and recipes are targeted at small independent restaurants, where many trends and innovations in the foodservice industry start. Among the audience are decision makers, R&D chefs, marketing and business executives, distributors, and sales representatives.

"The industry will never abandon steaks and burgers," says Sumner. "But beef does need to increase its visibility on restaurant menus, as well as take the price pressure off of high end steaks and other middle meats. This campaign helps us do that."

Fresh grapes are an age-old snack food dating back to ancient Greek and Roman times. They have stood the test of time because grapes are still one of America's favorite fresh snacks.

Grapes are great for between-meal snacking any time of the day. Tucked into a backpack or picnic basket, bunches of grapes are on-the-spot instant refreshment during an active day. There's no chopping or peeling, and they are already bite size.

From the frosty-green Thompson seedless to the festive red Emperor, table grapes are available year-round from California where 97 percent of the nations' supply of table grapes are produced.

Perhaps, best of all, grapes are a satisfying snack food, especially for dieters. Grapes are naturally sweet, refreshingly juicy, and a whole cupful contains a moderate 102 calories. Grapes supply necessary fiber and water which in turn cause a "full" sensation. They are also low in sodium, making them a good choice for many convalescent and restricted diets.

To insure top-notch quality the clusters are inspected and graded to meet exacting standards. When purchasing grapes, be choosey. Table grapes are ripe and ready to eat when shipped to market. Look for bunches with well-colored, plump berries firmly attached to green pliable stems. Avoid soft or wrinkled grapes and those with bleached area around the stem end.

Green grapes are sweetest and best flavored when they're yellow-green in color, red varieties when all of the berries are predominantly red; and the blue-black varieties when grapes have a full, rich color.

After purchase, fresh grapes should be stored in the refrigerator where they will stay fresh for several days. Just before serving, wash grapes clusters under a gentle spray of water and drain or pat dry. They are best when served slightly chilled to enhance texture and flavor.

Here is a tasty recipe for a great do-ahead salad ideal for potluck or buffet. It is from the California Table Grape Commission:

Grape Souffle Salad

3 packages (3 ounces each) lemon-flavored gelatin
2 cups boiling water
2½ cups cold water
1½ cups seedless grapes
1 orange, peeled, sectioned
1 apple, cored, diced
1 cup coarsely chopped walnuts
1 cup dairy sour cream

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add cold water, chill until partially set. Pour 1 cups gelatin into 3-quart mold. Chill. Add sour cream to remaining gelatin, whip with electric mixer until fluffy. Chill until slightly thickened; fold in fruit and nuts; pour into mold. Chill until firm. Makes 8 servings.

Long, Cold, Hard Winter Takes Its Toll On Region's Trees

UNIVERSITY PARK, (Centre Co.) — It started in late October, and was capped by a Presidents' Day weekend blizzard that dumped as much as three feet of snow on most of the state.

The winter has taken its toll on trees across the state, according to a Penn State forest specialist. "Trees have been under assault this winter," says Rance Harmon, extension associate in the forest stewardship program.

"The weight of snow and ice can cause branches and even the main stems of trees to bend, twist or break. The October storm was especially damaging because the leaves on many trees had not yet fallen, and the remaining leaves provided additional surfaces for snow and freezing rain to cling."

Before assessing damage, it is important to consider safety. "Avoid venturing into a woodlot on windy days after a storm," he says. "Be alert for large, leaning trees and branches. Keep in mind that hanging branches can be especially hazardous."

Due to greater exposure to the weather, trees near roads or other open areas often suffer more damage than trees in the interior of the forest, so the total damage may look worse from a trail or road than it actually is. "A good way to judge whether a tree will survive storm damage is to look at the upper branches," Harmon says. "If less than 50 percent of the crown is damaged, the tree has a good chance of survival. But depending on the extent of the damage, the tree's growth may slow down while it recovers."

If between 50 percent and 75 percent of the crown is damaged, Harmon explains, the tree may survive. However, its wounds may provide entryways later for damaging insects and diseases, especially if large tops or large lower branches break, or if extensive areas of bark tear. If more than 75 percent of the crown is damaged, the tree has a low chance of survival.

While storms do damage and kill trees, most trees are resilient and survive even severe winter weather. Storms are one way that forests naturally thin themselves with time, Harmon points out. When storms and other natural and human-caused processes open holes in the forest canopy, more sunlight is able to reach the forest floor. The sunlight leads to the growth of small trees, shrubs, wildflowers and other plants near the ground.

"Branches that fall to the ground after storms provide tender twigs, buds and winter fruits that are within reach of small mammals, which in turn serve as prey for predators such as foxes, weasels and birds of prey," Harmon says. "Damaged areas of trees often lead to decay, which in time produces cavities that can serve as homes for wood ducks, bluebirds, woodpeckers, owls, chickadees, squirrels, raccoons, bats, mice and many other animals."

Trees and large woody branches that fall to the ground provide cover, foraging habitat, thermal protection and nesting sites for salamanders and small mammals. Harmon notes that 23 species of amphibians and reptiles take refuge in decaying wood in the northeastern United States, including box turtles, salamanders and snakes.

29 Teams Compete In Senior High Envirothon

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The 2003 Lancaster County Senior High Envirothon was conducted recently at the Lancaster County Central Park.

Twelve high schools competed with 29 teams of up to five members demonstrating knowledge of natural resources and environmental sciences. A special issue highlighted in the contest focused on "Farmland Preservation and Conservation."

Lancaster Mennonite High School won top honors placing first with team members: Philip Shirk, Jen Garber, Jennifer Wenrich, Matt Hartshorne, and Andrew Wagner. Chris Ochs, Agriculture Science teacher advised the first place team along with a second team entry.

Conestoga Valley High School teams advised by Kerrie Snavely placed second and third.

Lancaster Mennonite High School's first place team went on to the State Envirothon Contest held at the Penn State Mont Alto Campus. The team proudly placed 18th out of 66 teams.

Team members tested their understanding of forestry, aquatics, soils, wildlife, ecology and farmland preservation. The County event took place with participation and support from Envirothon Partners that included Lancaster County Conservation District, Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection, USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service, and the Pennsylvania Game Commission.

Hershey Foods along with PPL, Donegal Trout Unlimited, Synagro, and Severn Trent Services provided financial support of the event. Wal-Mart's Good Works Program and Pepperidge Farm also provided donations.

NY Beef Industry Promotes Irradiation

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. — What happens when 1,500 women gather to watch cooking demonstrations, learn new recipes, and discover innovative cooking techniques?

A "Taste of Home" show, of course, and along with it a great opportunity for the New York Beef Industry Council (NYBIC) to spread the great news about irradiation and its important role in food safety.

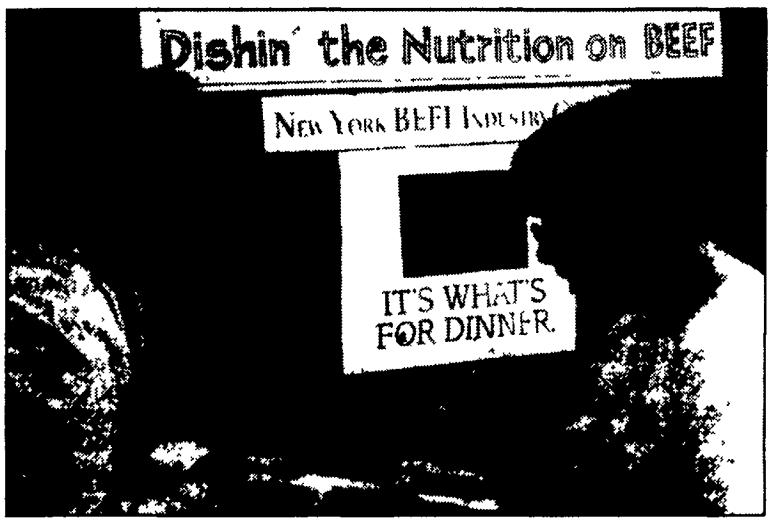
The NYBIC sponsored the event and served over 700 samples of chili using irradiated ground beef, demonstrating that the delicious taste of beef is unaltered by the irradiation process.

The show gave NYBIC staff an opportunity to educate consumers in the Southern Tier about the benefits of irradiated ground beef.

"Our goal is to make beef the safest food on the dinner table and irradiation is helping us do that. Improved food safety clearly benefits New York's beef and dairy producers, as well as consumers nationwide," said Carol Gillis, executive director of the NYBIC.

"By increasing consumer knowledge and confidence in beef, we expand demand. Irradiated beef will do for the beef industry what pasteurized milk did for the dairy industry a half century ago: improve quality and help stop the spread of food borne diseases."

The Empire State quickly became a leader in food irradiation when Rochester-based Wegmans became the first retailer in the nation to market electronically irradiated fresh ground beef under their own label.



Lorraine Lowery, vice president of the New York CattleWomen, talks with a Taste of Home attendee about the benefits of irradiated ground beef. The New York Beef Industry Council was on hand to talk about the importance of beef in a balanced diet.

Shortly thereafter, other major upstate retail chains including Price Chopper and Tops Friendly Markets added the irradiated product to their ground beef selections in the meat case.

The idea of irradiated foods is not new. Scientists have known for decades that exposing food to x-rays, high energy electrons, or cobalt-60 could kill deadly bacteria. Irradiation complements — not replaces — other food safety procedures at all points in the food system from farm to consumer.

That is why consumers should still grill irradiated burgers properly to ensure their safety — for ground beef, that means grilling patties to an internal temperature of at least 160 degrees.

While some consumers have been wary of irradiated foods — largely because of unfounded fear mongering hawked by special interest groups opposing the use of nuclear energy — many irradiated products have become commonplace.

Commercial spices used as ingredients in ready-to-eat foods, for example, have been irradiated to kill pests and other contaminants for over a decade.

"Research shows that education is the key to consumer acceptance of irradiated food products," said Gillis. "We're hoping to educate consumers about the safety of irradiation and continue the trend of acceptance of irradiated beef."

Scholarships Awarded

WESTMINSTER, Md. — MidAtlantic Farm Credit is pleased to announce that nine students have received a total of $10,500 in scholarships toward their college education. Applicants for the scholarship program had to be members or the children of current members. Over 150 applications were received.

Winners are listed by region:

DelMarVa Region: Dusti Vanderwende of Greenwood, Del., a high school senior, plans to study plant or animal science in college; Abigail Eaton of Queen Anne, Md., a freshman at Clemson University, is majoring in economics with a minor in political science; and Hanna Nagel of Federalsburg, Md., a sophomore at Delaware Technical and Community College, plans to attend the University of Delaware in the fall.

MidMaryland Region: Joshua Strite of Jefferson, Md., a junior at Delaware Valley College, majors in dairy science and minoring in animal science; Jacqueline Congedo of Cooksville, Md., a high school senior, plans to attend college in the fall to major in biology; and Katie Bassler of Taneytown, Md. a high school senior, plans to attend UMBC in the fall to study forensic psychology.

Penn Region: Renae Bender of Cochranville, Pa., a junior at Messiah College, majoring in elementary education with a minor in mathematics; Katherine Harwick of Kempton, Pa., a sophomore at Penn State University majoring in animal science and minoring in agribusiness management and international agriculture; and Brent Landis of Quarryville, Pa., a senior at Solanco High School, planning to attend Elizabethtown College in the fall.

Elizabethtown Grange Sponsors Coloring Contest

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Children are invited to participate in a coloring contest promoting the benefits of dairy products. The free contest, sponsored by Elizabethtown Grange Number 2076, is open to children up to 12 years old.

The two age divisions are up to five years old and ages six through 12. Awards will be given to the top three individuals in each division. First prize is a $50 savings bond, second is a gift certificate for ice cream, and third place will receive a small "squeeze cow."

To enter the contest, stop by the Elizabethtown Public Library during normal hours and visit the circulation desk. Pick up a contest form, take it home and color it using crayons. Be sure to fill out the information on the back. Return it to the drop off box at the library when finished. Entries must be received by Friday, June 27. Winners will be announced in early July.

Children under 12 who sign out a library book during the month of June will receive a "got milk?" pencil, milk carton eraser, and a "three-a-day" sharpener, courtesy of the Elizabethtown Grange.

To learn more about the Elizabethtown Area Grange, contact Matt Espenshade, Master, at (717) 361-2844 or visit the Elizabethtown Grange's website at www.geocities.com/etgrange/.

HOT MILK SPONGE CAKE

2 eggs
1 cup sugar
½ cup milk, heated
¼ cup or ½ stick butter, melted

In the milk:

1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon vanilla

Beat eggs on high speed in bowl for 5 minutes until thick and creamy. Add sugar and beat for 5 minutes. Add flour, baking powder, and vanilla by folding into egg mixture. Add butter and milk which have been heated together. Mix in gently.

Bake in a greased and floured 8x8-inch square pan at 325 degrees for 35 minutes for a glass pan or 350 degrees for a non-glass pan.

This recipe can be easily doubled. This is a very good cake just plain or sprinkled with confectioners' sugar.

My four children are all grown up, married, and living on their own. This was one of their favorite after-school treats or after supper desserts, plain or perhaps with some sliced strawberries and/or whipped cream.

Now, my husband is retired from working as a lawyer, and has turned to farming hay and straw for the 25 horses that we board and care for on our 100-acre farm. Our lifestyle has changed, but this cake is still a favorite.

ALMOST PIZZA

7 cups potatoes, cooked and shredded
1 pound ground beef, browned and seasoned
2 cups white sauce
1 cup pizza sauce
Favorite pizza toppings
1½ cup shredded cheese

White Sauce:

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups milk

Melt butter, flour, and salt. Stir until well blended. Add milk. Stirring constantly, bring to a boil.

Put potatoes on bottom of casserole dish. Pour white sauce over potatoes. Add ground beef and pizza sauce on top. Bake at 350 degrees for 40-45 minutes. Top with toppings and cheese. Bake 10 minutes longer.

A friend made this dish for us when our daughter (Jenna Marie, 5 months) was born and most people request the recipe when they try it! God Bless You.

WHOLE WHEAT ROLLS

1 (¼-ounce) package rapid rise yeast
2 cups whole wheat flour
2 cups flour, sifted
1⅛ cups milk
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1½ tablespoons butter
1 egg, beaten

Mix yeast, ¼ cup whole wheat flour, and ¼ cup white flour in large mixer bowl.

Combine milk, sugar, salt, and butter in a small saucepan and heat just until warm, stirring occasionally to melt butter.

Attach dough hook to mixer. Add warm milk mixture and egg to dry ingredients in mixing bowl.

Joann Frazier Hensley with son, Jody.

Beat 2 minutes at low speed. Scrape down sides of bowl. Beat 3 minutes. Add remaining whole wheat and white flour, ½ cup at a time, until dough clings to hook and cleans side of bowl.

Knead on low speed for 3 to 5 minutes longer, or until smooth and elastic. Dough will be slightly sticky to the touch. Place in a greased bowl, turning once to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until double in bulk.

Shape into rolls and place in a greased 9¾x9¾x2-inch baking dish. Cover, let rise again in warm place, free from draft, until double in bulk. Bake at 375 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes or until brown. Remove from dish onto wire rack. Brush with butter. Makes 12 rolls.

What a wonderful chance for readers to submit their favorite dairy recipes and try new recipes. I couldn't miss this opportunity to share a recipe.

I live on a farm with my husband and son. Besides being the organizational leader of the Mountain View 4-H Club, I am active in my church, my community, and in family events. I raise fancy breed chicken to show at the county fair. Another one of my hobbies is creating new recipes. Thank you!

RICE PUDDING

1 cup raw rice
6 cups milk
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1½ teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon butter
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon nutmeg

Boil rice in 3 cups water. When soft drain off excess water; add butter to melt in rice; add salt, sugar, eggs, milk, and vanilla in that order. Stir until smooth.

Pour into greased baking dish. Bake covered at 400 degrees for 20 minutes. Then uncover and bake at 350 degrees until done about 20 minutes more. Makes 6 servings.

My family and I live on a dairy farm in Juniata County. My husband, Barry, and I have three children. Anthony (29 years), Jason (25 years), and Rebecca (20 years). The boys have left home and have outside jobs. Rebecca still lives at home and helps on the farm. She also attends HACC and works at the Millerstown Veterinary Clinic. Our family also consists of our three dogs and two cats. We are now milking about 88 cows. We have automatic take off milkers which are wonderful. We are very proud of our farm and the work that we do.

CARROT-SQUASH BAKE

7 cups sliced yellow summer squash or zucchini (about 1¾ pounds)
½ teaspoon salt
1 medium onion, chopped
1 10¾-ounce can condensed cream of chicken soup
1 8-ounce carton dairy sour cream
1 cup shredded carrots
1 8-ounce package herb seasoned stuffing mix
¼ cup butter, melted

In a 2-quart uncovered saucepan cook squash and onion in 2 cups boiling water and salt for 5 minutes. Drain.

In a large mixing bowl combine soup, sourcream, and carrots. Fold in squash.

Combine stuffing mix and butter. Spread two-thirds of the stuffing mixture in a 12x7½x2-inch baking dish. Spoon vegetable mixture on top of the stuffing. Sprinkle remaining stuffing around the edges of the dish. Bake uncovered at 350 degrees for 30-35 minutes. Makes 8-10 servings.

I am a homemaker and part-time floral designer who lives on the Mason-Dixon line. My husband Greg and I have been married for 33 years. We enjoy traveling and camping. I enjoy sewing and needlework. I am learning to quilt and this relaxing hobby fascinates me. I can not put it down.

We have two daughters, Erica and Gretchen. They were both Dairy Princesses in Baltimore County and Carroll County. 4-H has been a family tradition for three generations. We look forward to our grandchildren becoming 4-H'ers too.

We hope you enjoy this vegetable recipe. It makes good use of all those garden vegetables which make summer meals so special.

CHICKEN AND CHEESE TORTILLA CASSEROLE

1 to 1¼ pounds skinless, boneless chicken breasts (about 4)
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
18 corn tortillas
¼ cup corn or vegetable oil
2 cups sour cream
1 cup milk
6 ounces Monterey Jack cheese, shredded
6 ounces Sharp Cheddar cheese, shredded
1 16-ounce jar of hot or medium salsa

Shred or coarsely chop chicken. Toss with salt and pepper. Heat medium skillet over medium heat. One at a time, brush each tortilla lightly with oil and cook 15 seconds on each side until softened. Stack as they cool Blend sour cream and milk. Toss with Monterey Jack and Cheddar cheeses.

To assemble casserole, spread about ⅓ cup salsa over bottom of 9x12-inch baking dish. Cover with a layer of tortillas, overlapping as necessary. Scatter half of the chicken over tortillas. Drizzle ⅓ of remaining salsa over chicken. Sprinkle ½ the cheese mixture and spoon ⅓ of the sour cream mixture over that. Repeat with another layer of tortilla and ½ the remaining salsa, cheese, and sour cream sauce. Top with the remaining tortillas. Spread the remaining salsa over the tortillas, layer on the remaining sour cream sauce, and sprinkle with remaining cheese. Garnish with black olives and rings of green

Kelley Marzka's reign as Crawford County Dairy Princess ends today when she crowns her successor. The 17-year-old submitted a noteworthy essay about farm women.

"Behind every successful man is a strong woman," she writes. She explains that farm women are well equipped with a never-ending supply of a magical substance known as STRENGH, an ancronym for strength, tenacity, resilience, endurance, nuturing, guidance, talent, and humor.

Read her intriguing essay that begins on page B2.

Kelley, one of seven children of Robert and Adrienne Marzka, live on the fifth generation family 300-acre Kelly-Run Farm, where they raise a 70-head-herd of Holstein, Jersey, and Brown Swiss.

At Cambridge Springs High School, Kelley participates in softball, soccer, Key Club, Stand Tall, French Club, On Applebee Pond, and is president of the 4-H Blooming Valley. She was recently selected as a delegate to the United Nations Pilgrimage for Youth.

Kelley also writes, "Spring has finally arrived bringing along blue skies, warm weather, and new birth. The grass is green and alive with nature, soaking up the warm rays of sunshine.

Along with beautiful weather spring also brings along the opening of ice-cream stores, and the cravings for dairy products really begin. So start your day with a delicious dairy treat. Here is a recipe to make your day great."

TOTALLY TROPICAL SMOOTHIE

1 cup low-fat white milk
1 small banana, peeled, sliced, and frozen
⅔ cup unsweetened pineapple chunks
1 teaspoon coconut extract, optional

Combine ingredients in a blender container. Cover and blend at high speed until smooth. Makes 9 servings.

on family farms, with the work they do encompassing a broad spectrum of tedious, difficult and at times overwhelming jobs. Fortunately farm women are well equipped with a never-ending supply of a magical substance known as STRENGTH: an acronym for strength, tenacity, resilience, endurance, nurturing, guidance, talent, and of course, humor.

Strength, coming first, is vital in the completion of many physical jobs farm women do. It allows us to haul manure, throw bales, and balance three water buckets simultaneously at the same time. We take pride in the work muscle we build working the farm, and with good reason. Underneath those strong bodies, farm women also posses strong minds and spirits, other aspects of strength. In short, farm women are strong women, inside and out.

Of course, while strength gives a woman the ability to complete farm work, tenacity gives her the guts to do it.

Case in point — you know you can hold onto that loose two-year-old Brown Swiss once you catch her, but the question is, do you have the tenacity to do it.

My mom did. Because she had the tenacity not to let go of the halter, she broke her wrist. So it's a good thing she has plenty of the next ingredient, resilience.

With all of the predicaments that happen on a farm, it's amazing that women can continue doing the work they do. Owe this ability to resilience. When my mom broke her wrist, she continued to work in the barn, even with the brace on. This is just one example of a farm women's ability to not be set back from doing what she needs to be doing what she needs to do, so even if it means overcoming an injury.

Yes, resilient farm women are like energizer bunnies in barn boots. Only instead of running on batteries, they run on rechargeable bodies bursting with energy.

A farm woman's energy stems from her love for her work, but as even the strongest battery can run low on certain occasions, such as a sleepless night spent watching over cows waiting to calve, or a long day driving children all over the countryside, it's a good thing that back-up sources of energy can be found. So what does a farm woman use to recharge? Most commonly [illegible] farm house staple, coffee [illegible] cream of course. Yes, [illegible] tend to nurture intimate relationships with their coffee pots.

Nurture. That brings me to the fifth characteristic of farm women they're nurturers. Despite the hardships that they endure, farm women make their families a priority. This devotion is most likely the reason behind the success of farm kids. However, children aren't the only young lives farm women nurture. They also treat the young calves on the farm to the same loving care, raising them into productive cows. Part of nurturing is guidance. Farm kids are exposed to many dangers that non-farm kids are not. These include heavy machinery, pesticides, and even animals themselves. While young, children must learn to practice care around such dangers and when they're mature enough, how to use them properly.

The next component of strong women is talent. Talent to mix tough love, guidance, fun, and energy into one complete package. However, all of these strengths are worthless without the last, but most important component of strength: humor.

When things go wrong, as they undoubtably will, when tempers flare, when even the most experienced farm woman is frustrated beyond words, humor is the only way out. Laughter is indeed the best medicine, and can cure nearly any illness, which is lucky because for any farm to succeed, its women must be at the top of their game.

In the words of country great Travis Tritt, " Where would we be without the love of a woman, standing behind her man even when he's wrong, the true, pure, undying love of a woman, makes a man a fool to think he can make it alone."

With the purchase of more fresh fruits and vegetables in the summer and the warm temperatures, those fuzzy creatures called molds seem to be more frequent. While this is a very common problem, it does not necessarily have a simple answer. What you do concerning the mold depends on the type of food.

Mold usually gets a "bad rap." Believe it or not, there are "good" molds. Molds considered beneficial and safe are those needed to make many cheeses. For example, it is normal to have mold inside of Roquefort and Gorgonzola and on the surface of Brie and Camembert. What is not normal is to have molds on cheeses like cheddar, mozzarella, and provolone. If you did not buy it with mold, it should not be eaten with mold.

Molds are threadlike organisms (fungi) that live on plant or animal matter and produce spores. Unlike bacteria, molds can be seen with the naked eye. What you can't distinguish are the three different parts of the mold the root threads, stalks, and spores. The root threads are the parts that invade the food that the mold lives on, and you probably won't be able to see them because they are so thin. When a food shows heavy mold growth, the root threads have invaded deep into the food. The stalks rise above the food, and the spores form at the end of the stalks. Air, water, and insects can transport these spores. It is the various spores that provide the different colors of molds on food and that allow the mold to reproduce when spread to another area.

The reason some molds can be dangerous is due to the fact that they produce toxins that can spread throughout the food and make you sick. The poisonous toxins that are formed are called mycotoxins and can be found in grain and nut crops, along with celery, grape juice, apples, and other produce.

The most well known mycotoxin is aflatoxin, a cancer-causing poison found in field corn and peanuts. The United States Department of Agriculture monitors these two foods for aflatoxin and will remove any with unacceptable levels.

So what do you do with the cheese in your refrigerator that has mold on it? If it is a hard cheese, like cheddar, cut off at least one inch around and below the mold. It is important to keep the knife away from the mold so that it does not cross-contaminate an area that is mold-free. If the cheese was made with mold, but it has additional growth on the inside as compared to when you purchased it, throw it away. If the mold is on the surface of these cheeses, handle it like you would hard cheese. Soft cheeses, like cottage and cream, along with crumbled, shredded, and sliced cheeses should be thrown away.

When it comes to firm fruits and vegetables with low-moisture content, like cabbage, carrots, and apples, you can cut away one inch around and below the mold. If mold is found on soft fruits and vegetables with high-moisture content, like peaches, cucumbers, and tomatoes, the entire piece of fruit should be thrown away. Fruits and vegetables that become moldy in a bag should also be discarded. While most meats with mold should be thrown away, hard salami and dry-cured country hams can be safely eaten if you scrub the mold off the surface.

Almost any food can grow mold. The following is a list of foods you should immediately discard if mold is found on them: luncheon meats, bacon, and hot dogs cooked leftover meat, poultry, and casseroles cooked grain and pasta yogurt and sour cream jams and jellies soft fruits and vegetables bread and baked goods peanut butter, legumes, and nuts

There are several measures you can take to minimize mold growth. Cleanliness is vital in controlling these nasty creatures, which can build up in your refrigerator and on dishcloths. A few simple practices will help you to minimize their growth. First, clean the inside of your refrigerator every few months with one tablespoon of baking soda dissolved in one quart of water. Rinse it with clear water and allow to dry. If mold is visible, scrub it with three teaspoons of unscented bleach mixed with one quart of water. Second, keep cleaning supplies, like dishcloths, towels, sponges, and mops, clean and fresh. A musty smell means the mold is spreading. And third, since molds like a humid environment, try to keep your house at 40 percent or less humidity.

New NFC Apple Juice Developed

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — Cornell University food science and technology researchers at the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station in Geneva, N.Y., have developed a 100 percent not-from-concentrate (NFC) fresh apple juice.

The juice will be produced at IFP North America New York's (IFPNANY) proposed fruit processing and juice packaging plant in LeRoy, N.Y.

"We're thankful to the food scientists at Cornell for creating such a fantastic product," said Herbert Fiss, IFPNANY president. "Once consumers get a taste of it, I'm confident it will be a big hit in the market place. NFC apple juice is a premium quality product that promotes good health. According to recent medical reports, apples have been linked to reduced cancer risk, better lung function, positive impact against LDL cholesterol, and numerous other health benefits."

"We were able to develop an excellent product with fresh apple flavor and extended shelf life," said Olga Padilla-Zakour, of the department of food science and technology at Cornell, who was the lead scientist for the project. "We were able to take advantage of the unique flavor profiles of New York apples and are very satisfied with the result."

NFC apple juice is made by pressing apples for juice and then pasteurized. The juice will be filled and packaged into gable-top containers with spouts at the proposed LeRoy plant and sold in the refrigerated section of supermarkets.

"Based on the market potential for NFC apple juice, more than five million bushels of New York-grown apples are expected to be utilized at the LeRoy plant when at full capacity for producing the NFC apple juice product," Fiss said. "Two major supermarket chains were asked to sample the product and both had extremely favorable reactions."

QUESTION — Sandy Evans, Berks County, requests a recipe for Red Velvet Cake Roll.

QUESTION — Nona Deputy, York Springs, is interested in finding a recipe for preserving citron. She would also like to know where she could get some seeds.

QUESTION — Several years ago, Helen Spencer, Hopewell, N.J., had gotten a recipe for Shoo Fly Pie that is served at the Shartlesville Inn. She lent the recipe out and has not gotten it back. "It was the best tasting Shoo Fly Pie and I'd love to be able to make it again," she writes.

QUESTION — Mary Hoffman, Elizabethtown, is looking for a recipe for "Schmeircase." She is not sure of the spelling but writes that it is a cottage cheese type product, only smoother.

QUESTION — Mary Tempton would like to get a recipe that is made with a boxed cheese cake mixed with cream cheese and added ingredients to make two quick cheesecakes. She would also like recipes for other quick uncooked cheese cakes, regular or low sugar.

QUESTION — Eric, Shade Gap, writes, "as a child growing up, I remember my grandmother serving for breakfast what I would call rivels that were sweet in a hot milk-like broth that was poured over bread or bread crumbs and then sprinkled with sugar. Does anyone know what this was and how it was made?"

QUESTION — Richard Kleckner, Quakertown, wants a recipe for Drop Welsh Cookies.

QUESTION — Jean Mitchell, Lewisburg, is looking for a recipe to make blueberry whoopie pies.

ANSWER — James Breon requested a recipe for stewed tomatoes which uses tapioca as a thickening agent. Thanks to Linda Zimmerman, Litiz, for sending in a recipe.

Stewed Tomatoes

1 quart tomatoes, peeled and cut into chunks
½ cup brown sugar
1-2 ribs celery, diced
¼ cup sweet peppers, diced
1 small onion, diced
¼ cup tapioca

Saute celery, peppers, and onions in ¼ cup butter. Add tomatoes, brown sugar, and tapioca. Cook over low to medium heat until tender and thickened.

ANSWER — R.H. from Seneca Falls, N.Y., wanted a recipe for a good Philly Cheesesteak. Carroll Boyer, Stewartstown, writes that she does not use loose or cubed meat.

Rather use good lean steak, sliced thin, she writes. Fry the meat on a griddle, use a fresh bun, and any cheese of your choice. Place cooked steak on a bun, put on cheese, and steam or microwave until cheese melts.

Use fried onions or sauteed onions and a red sauce of your choice. Red sauce can be anything from plain catsup to a hot sauce.

"No two cheesesteaks are done exactly the same," she writes.

ANSWER — In honor of June Dairy Month, here are a few recipes from the 2003 Tioga County Court.

Chocolate Ribbon Cheesecake

1 prepared graham cracker crust
¼ cup butter, melted
⅓ cup cocoa
8 ounces cream cheese, softened
14-ounce can sweetened condensed milk
3 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla

Preheat oven to 300 degrees. In a small bowl, combine butter and cocoa until smooth and set aside.

In a large bowl, beat cream cheese until fluffy. Gradually beat in sweetened condensed milk until smooth. Beat in eggs and vanilla. Remove 1½ cups batter and set aside.

Add coca mixture to remaining batter, beat well. Pour half of the chocolate batter in the crust and top with half of the vanilla batter. Repeat.

With a knife or spatula swirl for a marbled effect. Bake one hour or until center is set. Remove from oven to cooling rack. Cool 30 minutes. Refrigerate. Makes 10-12 servings.

Renee Norman
2003 Tioga County Dairy Princess

Pour Pizza

1 pound ground beef
1 small onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, chopped
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
⅛ teaspoon oregano
2 eggs
⅔ cup milk
15-ounce can pizza sauce
1½ cup mozzarella cheese, shredded
Cornmeal
Additional topping as desired

Brown ground beef, onion, and garlic. While meat is browning, mix flour, salt, pepper, oregano, eggs, and milk until soft batter forms.

Grease and lightly sprinkle a 9X13-inch baking pan with cornmeal. Pour batter into the pan.

Spread the meat mixture over the batter. Bake at 400 degrees for 15 minutes. Remove from oven. Spread with pizza sauce, mozzarella, and additional toppings, if desired. Bake for 15 minutes. Makes 8-10 servings.

Kaitlynn Johnson
Tioga County Alternate Dairy Princess

Smoothies and Frozen Pops

14-ounce can sweetened condensed milk
8-ounce container vanilla yogurt
2 ripe bananas (approximately one cup)
½ cup orange juice

Smoothies

Process all ingredients in a blender until smooth, stopping to scrape down the sides. Serve immediately. Makes four servings.

Fruit Smoothie Variation

Substitute one cup of your favorite fruit for the bananas. Replace orange juice with half a cup of any fruit juice.

Frozen Pops

Prepare mixture as above; spoon into eight five-ounce paper cups. Freeze 30 minutes; insert wooden popsicle sticks into the center of each cup. Freeze until firm. Makes eight pops.

The program was brought to a close by the newly installed officers.

Adams County 4-H Day Camp for Families

A day of family fun is being planned for the Adams County 4-H day camp, Monday, June 30, from 9:00 to 3:00 p.m. at the county's Agricultural and Natural Resources Center, Gettysburg.

The camp is open to a limited number of youth ages 5-12. Youth ages 5-7 must be accompanied by an adult for the day. Youth ages 8-12 can bring an adult as well but it is optional.

Parents, grandparents, aunts, and/or uncles are encouraged to register with each youth. The day will be filled with gardening projects, safety sessions, "make and take" projects, and many other activities.

The fee for day camp is $7.00 per adult/youth team and $3.50 for individuals. Those attending should take boxed lunches in throw away containers. Snacks and drinks will be provided for afternoon break.

For a registration form or more information, contact Christy Hemler at (717) 334-6271, extension 309. The deadline for registration is Monday, June 23.

Lancaster Conducts 4-H Presentation Night

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster County 4-H Presentation Night was conducted June 12 at the Farm and Home Center, Lancaster.

Thirty-six 4-H members participated with presentation and speech topics ranging from horsemanship and colonial life, to what 4-H means to me, music, Niagara Falls, the 4-H Red Rose Beef Club, baseball, and square-dancing. The visual communication division brought photograph, poster, and small animal essay entries as well.

Judges for the county event were Alan Tate and Elizabeth Ackerman for public speeches and impromptu, Harry Hershey and Michelle Kunjappu for presentations, and Laura Schmalhofer for posters, photographs, and essays. Jennifer Esbenshade and Carla Means served as Room Chairs.

If you missed this event but would like to find out more about the 4-H program, please join us for the 4-H Fair at the Lampeter Fair Grounds.

Friend and Family Day is Saturday, August 9th, and there is no admission. There will be various exhibits, shows, and demonstrations that the public may observe and/or participate in.

4-H HAPPENINGS

Cumberland Co. Light Horse And Pony Club

The Cumberland County 4-H Light Horse and Pony Club met May 28 at Sunshine Farms in Carlisle. President Megghan Michaud called the meeting to order, Jennica Helton led the American Pledge, and Emily Hockenberry led the 4-H Pledge.

Immediately following the pledges the club moved on to the topic of the meeting, Showmanship. The club split into three groups, Western, English, and Gaming, members went to the group in which they would be showing in at Roundup. All club members must show in Showmanship at Roundup to complete their 4-H year.

Teen leaders in each group went over the basics of Showmanship. Showmanship is judged on the exhibitor's ability to exhibit his/her animal at halter, only the exhibitor is to be judged. The horse is merely a prop to demonstrate the exhibitor's abilities.

After the program, Audrey Wronski demonstrated the English braiding technique. Katie Gossert gave the secretary's report and Michelle Thomas gave the treasurer's report. Lorie Wagner took roll call. Representative for the 4-H Youth Council, Britney Books, talked about upcoming 4-H activities.

Under old business, Michelle Thomas told the club their Open Horse Show scheduled for May 24 had been cancelled due to rain and rescheduled for July 13.

Under new business, Barb Rebert spoke about the District Horse Judging Contest to be conducted at Long Acres on June 7. Janet Holston encouraged club members to attend 4-H Speak Out Night on June 16.

If you are interested in joining the 4-H Horse Club, contact the Cumberland County extension office at (717) 240-6500.

Cumberland Co. 4-H Open Horse Show

The Cumberland County 4-H Light Horse and Pony Club will be hosting an Open Horse Show, Sunday, July 13. This event is one of the club's yearly fund-raisers.

Because of the extensive rain and mud, the show scheduled for May 24 was canceled and rescheduled July 13 at Long Acres, 201 Sulphur Spring Road, Carlisle. The show will start at 9:30 a.m.

English, Western, and Gaming classes will be run for both youth and open divisions along with a walk-trot division. Paybacks will be given to the first four winners in classes with seven or more entries, or just to first place with less than four entries. Grand and reserve awards will be given for each division.

4-H rules require all riders under the age of 18 to be wearing a helmet when mounted on their horse at any time. No one under the age of 8 may show. Proof of rabies vaccination and negative coggins is required for all horses. A food stand will be provided by the members and parents of the club.

For more information, contact Carrie at (717) 486-7427 or Katie at (717) 532-4946.

Sizzlin' Steaks 4-H Club

The Sizzlin' Steaks 4-H Club recently met at the Lewis' home.

Jackets were presented to Aaron and Jackie Phillips. Aaron is going to look into seats at the Red Barons games. Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. Phillips said that the flowers are doing well.

Club members went on a nature walk for signs of spring and they saw a beaver hauling a leafy tree.

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — This week a three-day event drew thousands of people to a dairy farm to take a wagon tour, sample ice cream and milk, or take part in a scavenger hunt.

The annual event, sponsored by the Lancaster Chamber and Oregon Dairy, also included a chick hatching display, straw tunnels, pony rides, a chicken barbecue, sheep shearing, and a Conservation Expo by the Lancaster County Conservation District.

Visitors also had a chance to watch the dairy's cows begin milked and meet Lancaster County dairy princess royalty.

The Conservation Expo included a stream study and walk each day, an Enviroscape demonstration, and other activities for children.

Last year approximately 10,000 people attended the event, a number based on the quantity of ice cream cones handed out to visitors.

The event introduces community members to Lancaster County agriculture as they tour the dairy, a 600-acre operation that includes a large store and restaurant. Oregon Dairy began selling milk at a small store on the premises in 1974. The farm includes a methane digester that produces electricity used on the farm.

Dairy ambassador Jenna Martin, Ephrata, hands out dairy promotion items to eager takers.

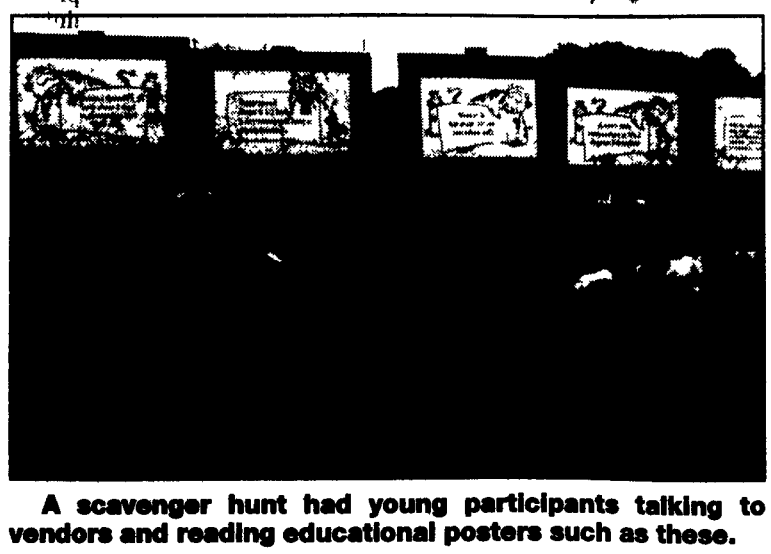
Visitors had a chance to watch the herd being milked from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. each day.



A scavenger hunt had young participants talking to vendors and reading educational posters such as these.

The chick-hatching display was educational for children such as Garrett Graupensperger, 4, Landisville.

Bake uncovered at 350 degrees for 30-40 minutes. Makes 6-8 servings. It can be prepared up to a day in advance and refrigerated until ready to bake.

I look foward each week to the Lancaster Farming. I like the B-section of the paper for the recipes and the antique page. My husband, being an auctioneer, likes to read all the auction sales. My son, Mark and his wife, Helen do the farming and get the paper, so we always read it.

My husband, Merle, did dairy testing 50 years ago in Lancaster. We always got the paper and enjoyed living in the Lancaster area. Our children, Mark, Dale, and Diane are all married and live in the area and we have five grandchildren.

One of my hobbies is collecting recipes and entering recipe contests, entering county fairs with baked goods, canned goods, jellies, and fresh garden produce. I also enjoy gardening, doing different kinds of needlework, and knotting quilts at my church.

TWICE BAKED POTATO CASSEROLE

6 medium potatoes, baked
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 pound sliced bacon, fried and crumbled
3 cups sour cream
2 cups (8-ounce) shredded mozzarella cheese
2 cups (8-ounce) shredded cheddar cheese
2 green onions chopped finely

Cube baked potatoes (do not peel). Place ½ of cubed potatoes in a lightly greased 9x13-inch baking dish. Sprinkle with ½ the salt, pepper, bacon and onion. Top with ½ of the sour cream and cheese. Repeat layers. Bake uncovered at 350 degrees for 20 minutes or until done.

A sister-in-law shared this recipe with us, we think it's delicious! We have 2 boys, Joshua, (4 years) and Durrell, (22 months). I enjoy trying out new recipes, hope you like ours.

DELICIOUS MOO PUDDING

6 tablespoons cornstarch
⅔ cup sugar
¾ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 cups milk
2 cups whipping cream
10-12 double stuff oreo cookies

Combine cornstarch, sugar, and salt in saucepan. Stir in vanilla and milk. Heat to boiling stirring constantly. Let boil softly for 2 minutes. Pour in bowl and cover with waxpaper. Chill completely.

Whip cream and sweeten to taste. Add chilled pudding and beat till smooth. Crush cookies coarsely and either fold in pudding or use as garnish.

Nice variation is stir in 1 cup milk chocolate chips after the 2 minutes of boiling. Leave sit till they melt and stir briskly; then chill.

We are dairy farmers and love everything except the milk price. Lancaster Farming is Saturday night "supper" at our house. Of course the B-section is my favorite and June is much looked forward to. Thanks in advance to all the good cooks out there.

RAISIN MUMBLES

Filling:
2½ cups raisins
½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 cup water
3 tablespoons lemon juice

Cook together stirring constantly over low heat until thick. About 5 minutes. Set aside to cool while making crumb mixture.

Crumb Mixture:
¾ cup butter
1 cup brown sugar
½ teaspoon soda
1½ cups quick oats
1¾ cups flour (scant)

Mix butter and sugar. Add dry ingredients. Press half of mixture into 13x9x2-inch pan. Spread filling on top then remaining crumbs. Bake at 350 degrees for 25-30 minutes.

This recipe my mon had and it's easy to make. We live on a farm and have 2 girls, Shirlene, (4½ years) and Leann (almost 2 years).

BALTIMORE CHEESECAKE

Crust:
10 tablespoons sifted flour
1 egg
3 tablespoons sugar
6 tablespoons sweet butter

Filling:
1¾ pounds ricotta cheese
¼ pound (4-ounce) cream cheese
¼ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
grated rind of half a lemon
5 eggs, well beaten
¾ cup sugar
½ cup currants (lightly floured) powdered sugar for dusting

Preheat oven to 300 degrees. Lightly oil bottom of 10-inch spring form pan that is 3 inches tall.

Mix flour, egg, sugar, and butter to make a dough. Roll out on floured board to ¼ inch thickness. Place in pan and bake for 15 minutes. Cool.

Drain ricotta for 15 minutes in metal strainer; discard liquids. Place all ingredients except currants and powdered sugar in a large bowl and mix well. Add currants. Pour onto the cooled crust in spring form pan and bake for 45 minutes to 1 hour at 325 degrees.

Turn off oven and let cheesecake sit in oven for ½ hour til set. Remove from oven. When entirely cooled remove from pan and dust with powdered sugar. Serves 12-16.

We are stil living on the farm but no longer farm, ourselves. We rent out fields to a neighbor. We enjoy living in a rural area. Still enjoy reading the B-section of your paper and try many of the recipes printed in it. Our grandchildren are growing. There are 24 of them and all but 3 live close to us. It's a pleasure and a blessing to watch them grow.

BLUEBERRY SALAD

2 small boxes (4 servings) of grape jello
2 cups boiling water
1 large can (15-ounce) crushed pineapple
1 can (21-ounce) blueberry pie filling
8-ounce cream cheese, softened
1 cup sour cream
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla

Mix jello and water in 9x13-inch pan (glass, plastic, or metal). Add pineapples including juice and pie filling to jello. Chill in refrigerator until firm.

In a medium bowl mix together cream cheese, sour cream, sugar, and vanilla. Spread on top of firm jello. Refrigerate until ready to eat.

MEGA GRILLED CHEESE

1 package (32-ounce) cream cheese, softened
¾ cup mayonnaise
1 cup (4-ounce) shredded cheddar cheese
1 cup (4-ounce) shredded mozzarella cheese
½ teaspoon garlic powder
10 slices of bread
2 tablespoons butter

In a mixing bowl, beat cream cheese and mayonnaise until smooth. Stir in cheeses and garlic powder. Spread five slices of bread with cheese mixture, about ⅓ cup on each. Top with remaining bread. Butter the outsides of sandwiches; cook in large skillet over medium heat until golden brown on both sides.

OLD FASHIONED BAKED MACARONI

2 cups macaroni, uncooked
1 can tomato soup
several velveeta slices
1 cup velveeta cheese, cubed
⅔ cup milk

In small saucepan heat soup and milk. Stir till smooth. Add cheese and stir till melted. Cook macaroni till soft and drain. Butter 2-quart casserole dish. Put macaroni in dish, pour soup mixture over it and mix well. Lay cheese slices on top. Bake 30 minutes in 350 degree oven.

I think this is one of the best comfort foods. This is how my Mom fixed it when I was growing up. She is 81 years old now. She got this recipe from her sister-in-law when they all were first married in the mid-1940s.

Hope this rain continues over the summer and the drought is really over. The corn is all planted and now they'll mow hay. Always busy on the farm. I am the secretary/bookkeeper for Rexroth Farms, owned by Ken Rexroth and his son Jim. I am Ken's companion and also the cook for all the employees.

I just love the June issues with all the recipes. I'll probably never use all of them that I save but I can certainly try! Some of them I have saved over the years have become favorites that I make frequently. Thanks for giving us this opportunity to share our recipes with other farm families.

PHILLY CHEESE STEAK CRESCENT PIZZA

1 (8-ounce) can refrigerated crescent dinner rolls
½ pound thinly sliced cooked roast beef (from deli)
1 tablespoon Italian salad dressing
4 to 6 ounces (1 to 1½ cups) shredded mozzarella cheese
2 tablespoons olive or vegetable oil
1 cup coarsely chopped green bell pepper
1 cup coarsely chopped onions
½ teaspoon beef-flavor instant bouillon

Heat oven to 375 degrees. Unroll dough into 2 long rectangles. Place in ungreased 13x9-inch pan; press over bottom and ½-inch up sides to form crust. Wrap beef tightly in foil. Place crescent dough and beef in oven. Bake at 375 degrees for 10 minutes or until crust is light golden brown.

Remove partially baked crust and beef from oven. Arrange warm beef over crust. Brush with salad dressing. Sprinkle with cheese. Return to oven; bake an additional 8 to 10 minutes or until edges of crust are golden brown and cheese is melted.

Meanwhile, heat oil in medium skillet over medium heat until hot. Add bell pepper, onions, and bouillon; cook 3 to 5 minutes or until vegetables are tender, stirring frequently.

To serve, spoon cooked vegetables over melted cheese. Cut into squares. Makes 8 servings.

The first thing I read when the Lancaster Farming comes is Home on The Range.

LEMON PIE A LA MODE

⅓ cup butter
⅓ cup fresh squeezed lemon juice
¾ cup sugar
2 eggs plus 3 egg yolks (save the 3 egg whites for later)
1 quart vanlla ice cream (may add more)
1 10-inch baked pie shell

Melt butter in double boiler. Add lemon juice and ¾ cup sugar. Beat the whole eggs and yolks and stir into butter mixture. Cook, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Remove from heat and cool completely. Spoon a small amount of lemon mixture on pie crust, just enough to cover bottom. Spoon softened ice cream (half of it) into pie shell. Freeze. Then carefully spread half the filling over ice cream. Freeze again till firm. Repeat. Freeze till completely frozen.

Beat egg whites until foamy. Add ½ cup sugar gradually; beat until stiff. Spread on pie, sealing to edges. Bake in hot oven at 450 degrees for 4-5 minutes or until brown. Immediately put in freezer. Delicious!

Sometimes our children ask for this pie for their birthday, instead of cake. We are a dairy farming family of seven children and milking 61 cows. Doing chores makes hearty appetites. I'm looking forward to all the June recipes!

NORTHERN ITALIAN CUSTARD OR "BONAT"

1 dozen eggs
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons vanilla
7½ cups milk
1½ cups sugar

In 8- or 9-inch round cake pan (5- to 6-inch deep) crystallize the 1½ cups sugar on stove top at medium heat, stirring constantly until sugar is melted and becomes golden in color. When this is finished, remove from heat and set aside while you mix the custard, as follows:

In large mixing bowl combine eggs, sugar, and salt; then add milk and vanilla and mix well. Pour milk mixture in pan with crystallized sugar and bake in water bath in oven preheated to 350 degrees for 1 hour 20 minutes or until tester comes out clean. Cool completely in pan in refrigerator, then run knife around edge of custard to loosen. Invert immediately onto serving plate. Makes 20-25 servings.

This recipe is very, very old. My mother had a ladyfriend who came here from Italy over 85 years ago and she would make this dessert for special occasions. She called it "Bonat" but we refer to it as Northern Italian Custard. It is most delicious. I hope your readers try it and enjoy it as much as we do.

My husband, Bill, and I are both retired. He was Roadmaster in London Grove Township and I was a legal secretary for 45 years. We were blessed with two children, Lisa, married to Ken Pratt, with two children, Tyler (12 years) and Conner (3 years), both of whom are our pride and joy. Our son is Skip and he is married to Wendy and they expect their first child the latter part of June. Our daughter and family live here in Chester County and our son and wife live in Montgomery County. We all enjoy different parts of the Lancaster Farming.

ECLAIR DESSERT

1 pound box graham crackers
2 small boxes French vanilla pudding (instant)
3½ cups milk
1 8-ounce cool whip

Frosting:

2 packages pre-melted chocolate (baking)
2 teaspoons white karo syrup
2 teaspoons vanilla
3 tablespoons soft butter
3 tablespoons milk
1½ cup powdered sugar

Butter bottom of 9×13-inch dish. Line bottom of dish with graham crackers.

Mix pudding with milk for two minutes on low mixer. Blend in cool whip. Put half of pudding over crackers. Put second layer of crackers, then rest of pudding. Top with crackers. Refrigerate for two hours.

For frosting beat all ingredients together and spread over top of crackers. Refrigerate overnight.

MISSISSIPPI MUD

1 package oreo cookies
½ cup butter
1 package (8-ounce) cream cheese
1 cup sugar
1 (12-ounce) cool whip
1 large package instant chocolate pudding
2⅔ cup milk

Crush cookies in blender, reserving ⅛ cup. Melt butter, pour over cookies and mix well. Press into a 9×13-inch pan.

Chill between layers.

Whip cream cheese and sugar until creamy; fold in ½ of cool whip and spread over crust.

Prepare pudding with milk and spread over cream cheese. Chill 3 to 5 minutes until firm. Spread remaining cool whip then sprinkle with remaining cookie crumbs.

Yum. Yum. This is a great dessert my daughters just love. I work fulltime as a nurse and am attending school on the side. I am kept very busy. I enjoy reading the B-section of your paper each week.

STRAWBERRY-PINEAPPLE CREAM PIE

Pastry for single-crust pie
1 package (3- or 3⅛-ounce) regular vanilla pudding mix
1¼ cups milk
1 can (8¼-ounce) crushed pineapple
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup whipping cream
3 cups fresh strawberries
2 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons cornstarch red food coloring (optional)
unsweetened whipped cream

Prepare and roll out pastry. Line a 9-inch pie plate. Trim pastry to ½-inch beyond edge. Flute edge; prick pastry. Bake at 450 degrees for 10 to 12 minutes or till golden. Cool on rack.

For filling, in saucepan cook pudding mix according to package directions except use the 1¼ cups liquid. Thoroughly drain pineapple; reserve ⅓ cup liquid. Fold drained pineapple and vanilla into cooked pudding. Cover surface with clear plastic wrap or waxed paper. Cool to room temperature; do not stir. Whip the ½ cup whipping cream till soft peaks form. Fold whipped cream into pudding mixture. Turn the pineapple mixture into baked pastry shell.

In saucepan crush ½ cup of the strawberries; stir in reserved pineapple liquid. Bring to a boil; reduce heat and simmer for two minutes. Press hot mixture through sieve; discard pulp. Combine sugar and cornstarch; gradually stir in sieved strawberry mixture. Return mixture to saucepan; cook and stir till thickened and bubbly. Tint the strawberry mixture with a little red food coloring if desired.

Slice remaining strawberries in half lengthwise. Arrange sliced berries over cream filling; spoon strawberry mixture over. Cover; chill several hours. To serve, garnish pie with unsweetened whipped cream.

We recently vacationed in Las Cruces, N.M. and had lunch at a local inn. This was the featured dessert for the month. I was able to locate the recipe and wanted to share it with my fellow Pennsylvanians. It is a delightful dessert for the upcoming summer months.

My favorite hobby is cooking and trying out new recipes. I collect cookbooks from the places that my husband, Ray, and I visit. I don't think I will ever be able to make all the recipes in the books, but it is fun to look through them and make some. I also like to concoct my own recipes and try them out on my husband. He hasn't objected to too many of them so I guess I am doing something right!

TOASTED BUTTER PECAN CAKE

3 tablespoons butter
1⅓ cups chopped pecans
¾ cup butter
1⅓ cups sugar
1½ teaspoons vanilla
2 eggs
2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
⅔ cup milk

Butter pecan frosting

4 tablespoons softened butter
3 cups confectioners' sugar
2½ to 3 tablespoons light cream
1 teaspoon vanilla

Dot 3 tablespoons butter over chopped pecans in shallow pan. Toast in moderate oven at 350 degrees for 15 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Cream ¾ cup butter, add sugar gradually, creaming till light. Add vanilla. Then add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each. Sift together dry ingredients and add to creamed mixture alternately with milk, beating after each addition. Fold in 1 cup of the toasted pecans. Bake in 2 greased and lightly floured 8×1½-inch round pans in moderate oven at 350 degrees for 30-35 minutes. Cool completely.

To make frosting: mix till smooth butter, confectioners' sugar, light cream, and vanilla. Stir in remaining toasted pecans. Frost cake.

MACARONI AND CHEESE

½ pound elbows
1 pound velveeta
½ pound sharp cheddar cheese
10 slices American cheese
milk to cover

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Cook elbows as directed and reserve. Grate mild and sharp cheddars and sprinkle on bottom of 9×13×2-inch dish. Dot cheddar with small pieces of velveeta, cover with American cheese slices and spread elbows over all. Pour in milk to cover all (not over ½ inch from top). Cover with foil and bake 15-20 minutes to melt cheese, remove and stir well. Recover and bake 20 minutes or till bubbling. Thickens as it cooks.

Today is the first day of summer. This year I had a lot of peonies to share with neighbors. In fact we had to tie the plants to the rail fence so that we could mow the yard as their heavy blooms fell to the ground.

There are three kinds of tea growing in our yard, and so I often pull off the tops for a hot or cool drink. The apple balm kind is the best, I think, as the others have a stronger flavor. However, the tea is spreading and I shall have to pull it out.

The other week I went to a granddaughter's dance recital. The costumes were beautiful but what impressed me was the loud music that accompanied the dances. Loud music never has been a favorite of mine. But, I did get to sit in the auditorium of my old alma mater. It had been years since I visited there.

Talking about school my husband managed to attend his 68th high school reunion. There were 17 in attendance, but a few were spouses of class members. Someone said it was not an important one as it was not the 65th or 70th but I think at this time, they are all important.

We have covered our strawberries with a net to keep the birds from eating them. There will only be a few, and we would like to have them. Our daughter in New Jersey has a groundhog under her porch. So, she set a trap and caught an opossum which refused to come out of the box trap. She has more deer in her suburban yard than we do in our meadow woodland. They eat all of her flowers except the snapdragons.

CHERRY CHEESE BARS

Crust:
- 1 cup walnut pieces, divided
- 1¼ cups flour
- ½ cup firmly-packed brown sugar
- ½ cup flaked coconut
- ¼ cup butter
- ¼ cup shortening

Filling:
- 1 package (8-ounce) cream cheese, softened
- ⅔ cup sugar
- 2 eggs
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 1 can (21-ounce) cherry pie filling

Chop ½ cup nuts coarsely; set aside. Chop remaining nuts finely. Combine flour and brown sugar. Stir in butter and shortening until fine crumbs. Add finely chopped nuts and coconut. Remove ½ cup; set aside. Press remaining crumbs in a greased 9×13-inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 12-15 minutes.

Meanwhile beat cream cheese, sugar, eggs, and vainlla until smooth. Spread over hot baked crust. Return to oven and bake 15 minutes longer. Spread pie filling over cheese layer. Combine reserved nuts and crumbs. Sprinkle over cherries. Bake additional 15 minutes. Cool and cut into bars.

We enjoy these bars very much! They taste like cheesecake. I enjoy working with recipes and using dairy products. I live at home on a dairy farm which we farm and also have two broiler houses.

LADYFINGER CHEESECAKE

- 2 packages (11.1-ounce each) no-bake cheesecake mix
- ⅔ cup butter, melted
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 package (3-ounce) ladyfingers (25 cookies)
- 1 package (8-ounce) cream cheese, softened
- 3 cups cold milk, divided
- 1 carton (12-ounce) frozen whipped topping, thawed
- 1 can (21-ounce) raspberry pie filling or flavor of your choice

In a bowl, combine contents of crust mix packages, butter, and sugar. Press onto the bottom of an ungreased 10-inch springform pan. Arrange ladyfingers around edge or side of pan.

In a mixing bowl, beat cream cheese and ½ cup milk until smooth. Gradually beat in remaining milk. Add contents of filling mix packages; beat until smooth. Beat on medium speed for 3 minutes. Fold in whipped topping. Pour over crust. Cover and refrigerate for at least 1 hour. Top with pie filling. Remove sides of pan before serving. Makes 12 servings.

I appreciate looking at all the different recipes that are submitted during the month of June. Thanks for sharing these recipes with us.

Roy and I (along with our three children) operate a 100-acre dairy farm and milk between 60-65 cows. Renae, 21, will be a senior in college this fall, Ryan, 19, works for us on the farm and also for his uncle, and Reuben, 16, also works on the farm and will be a junior in high school this fall. What a blessing it has been to raise our family on the farm. Renae and I go to market 3-4 days a week. That keeps us very busy trying to keep food prepared and baked goods around, plus all the other house/yard work that is here. I have a very small garden and plant sweet corn in the field for freezing.

It has been a challenging year with low milk prices and the wet month of May that we just came through. God is faithful and always has and will provide for us. Have a blessed summer.

ICE CREAM PIZZA

- ½ cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons water
- 1½ cup chocolate chips
- 2 eggs
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ⅔ cup flour
- ¼ teaspoon baking soda
- ¼ teaspoon salt

Topping:
- 1 to 1½ quart vanilla ice cream, softened
- 1 cup whipped topping
- caramel topping, mini chocolate chips, toffee bits, or any ice cream toppings

In a small saucepan, bring sugar, water, and butter to a boil. Remove from heat and stir in chocolate chips until melted. Beat eggs and vanilla. Add chocolate mixture. Pour into a 12-inch pizza pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 12-15 minutes or until a toothpick inserted near center comes out clean. Cool, then freeze.

After crust is frozen, top with layer ice cream, whipped topping, and toppings. Freeze. A brownie mix for a 9×9-inch pan can be used with excellent results. Also, other ice cream flavors can be used.

We live on a dairy farm in the Mill Creek Valley south of New Holland, with my husband's parents. We have three children, ages 10 months, 3, and 5. When my husband isn't helping with chores and field work, he repairs tractors and other farm equipment.

BLUEBERRY BARS

Crumb Mixture:
- ¾ cup butter, softened
- 1 cup brown sugar, packed
- 1¾ cup flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon baking soda
- 1½ cup oatmeal

Filling:
- 2½ cups blueberries
- ½ cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1 cup water
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice

Icing:
- 1 cup powdered sugar
- ¼ teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 tablespoon milk

Cook filling ingredients over low heat stirring constantly until thick. Set aside to cool.

To make crumbs, mix butter and sugar together. Add sifted dry ingredients then oats. Press half of this mixture into buttered 9×13-inch pan. Spread filling on then put on remaining crumbs. Bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes or until nice and brown. Combine icing ingredients and drizzle over.

We really like these bars. Sometimes I use raisins instead of blueberries which is also delicious. We live on a 134-acre farm and milk 35 cows. We have three children, Regina (4 years), Lavern (2 years), and Leonard (7 months). Have a great summer!

ASPARAGUS CHOWDER

- 4 cups sliced asparagus
- 2 cups diced new red potatoes, unpeeled
- ¼ cup butter
- ¼ cup flour
- 3 cups milk
- 1 cup cheddar cheese
- 1 bunch scallions, sliced
- salt and pepper
- parsley

Steam asparagus and cook potatoes. Melt butter and whisk in flour and milk. Cook until thickened. Reduce heat and add cheese. Stir until melted. Add asparagus, potatoes, scallions, salt, and pepper. Simmer for 5 minutes, but do not boil. Serve garnished with parsley.

I hope the readers will like this recipe.

As far as myself, I'm involved with the Berk's Visiting Nurse Association in their hospice program. I enjoy it very much. My only hope is if there is anyone out there with extra time they do not know what to do with is to get involved. Volunteering is the keyword.

I have four grandchildren, Chris (12 years), Stephanie (10 years), Brandon (5 years), and Alicia (3 years). I am secretary at my church for 43 years. I'm active in the choir, council, and social ministry. I'm also a Sunday school teacher for several years.

I have three children, Lori Spatz, Tom Stitzel, and Todd Stitzel. Lori is married to Allen Spotz and they live in Dryville. Chris and Steph belong to them. Todd is married to the former Tara Stitzel and Brandon and Alicia belong to them. They live in Kutztown. Tom lives at home with us.

Remember get involved with something whether it be through an association or your church. Please keep up the good work with the Lancaster Farming paper.

APPLE DUMPLINGS

- 4 cups flour
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 cup shortening
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 4 tablespoons sugar
- 1 cup milk
- 12 apples cored, peeled, and halved

Syrup:
- 2 cups sugar
- 1 cup butter
- 1 cup water

Combine flour, baking powder, shortening, salt, sugar, and milk to make a dough. Roll dough and place apple halves on individual dough squares and pull dough up to cover apple half. Bake at 375 degrees for 45 minutes.

To make syrup combine ingredients and bring to boil. Pour syrup over dumplings. Serve with lots of milk.

My husband, Joe, and I have farmed in Clinton County since 1954. Our valley is called Sugar Valley. A sweet place to live. We raise corn and hay. Much of our hay is sold to our Amish neighbors.

We are members of the Sugar Valley Church of the Brethren. I enjoy our church quilting group, "Sisters of the Needle," which meets each Tuesday. Money from the sale of our quilts is given to the Disaster Relief Auction.

GRANDMA DINSMORE'S WHIPPED SALAD

- 2 cups water
- 1 box (6-ounce) flavored gelatin (orange, peach, cherry, or strawberry)
- ½ cup plus 2 tablespoons sugar
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 2 cups milk
- 2 eggs separated and save the whites in a separate bowl to be whipped later in recipe

Boil the water, add gelatin and stir till dissolved. Mix in 1½ cups ice cubes. Put in a refrigerator to set.

Using a 2-quart microwave safe casserole dish mix ½ cup sugar and cornstarch. Add beaten egg yolks to milk. Stir into cornstarch mixture and microwave on high till thickened, stirring often to keep from lumping. When pudding is cooked set aside to cool and then refrigerate till chilled.

Using a blender, place ⅓ of gelatin into container and beat till light and add ⅓ of chilled pudding, beat again till light. Remember to use the blender lid. Pour gelatin and pudding mix into a larger bowl for mixing. Repeat in blender the gelatin and pudding mixture till all has been whipped.

Beat the 2 egg whites till soft peaks form and add the 2 tablespoons sugar to the beaten whites. Add beaten egg whites to the gelatin mixture and gently fold in. When all mixed pour into a serving bowl and chill till ready to serve.

This is a light and airy salad for all to enjoy with your meal or as a dessert. There is always room for it, even when you are filled to the gills, because it melts into those tiny spaces. This is a salad that my mother had invented instead of using the usual, whipped cream in a gelatin salad. The pudding gives it the extra nutrition and then when adding the whipped egg whites gives it that light and "airy" taste. It is requested many times for special occasions and for our regular weekly meals. It has become a family tradition, and I now make it in memory of mom, for the many times we made it together. To make it festive, I use the color of gelatin to go with the holiday or season celebrating.

MACARONI-SAUSAGE CASSEROLE

- 1 package (8-ounce) elbow macaroni
- 1 pound sausage
- ½ cup chopped onion
- ½ cup chopped green pepper
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 cups milk
- 2 cups shredded cheddar cheese

Cook macaroni as directed. Brown sausage, add peppers and onions and cook until tender. Add flour, salt, milk and cook until thick. Mix together macaroni, sausage mixture and 1½ cups cheese in a 9×13-inch baking dish. Top with remaining cheese and bake at 400 degrees for 25 minutes or until golden brown.

My husband, Sam, and I live on a beef cattle farm. Sam also works a fulltime job off the farm and raises bred heifers and makes hay for our use and to be sold.

We have a large vegetable garden so I spend a lot of time in the summer canning and freezing our vegetables and making jam and jelly. In addition to raising our own beef and making a lot of our bread, we feel that we supply quite a bit of our own food.

I am finishing my first year of home schooling and feel it was a great success. With three active little girls we never have a dull moment at our house but we enjoy it very much, and are very thankful to live on a farm and for all we've been blessed with.

This recipe is one of our favorites. Even our twins, who are very picky eaters, really like it.

BUTTER CREAM TORTE

2 cups vanilla wafer crumbs
½ pound butter
2 cups powder sugar
4 eggs
½ cup chopped pecans
1 cup cream
½ cup maraschino cherries

Spread 1 cup wafer crumbs on bottom of 9-inch square pan.

Combine butter with powder sugar and cream well. Add eggs, one at a time, beating at high speed until well blended. Stir in chopped pecans and spoon over crushed wafers. Sprinkle over additional ¾ cup wafers.

Beat cream until thick. Fold in maraschino cherries chopped. Spread over wafers and sprinkle additional ¼ cup wafers over top and garnish with whole cherries. Refrigerate 12 hours (or freeze for future use). Makes 9-12 servings. Cut with knife dipped in water to serve.

This is our family's favorite dessert at Christmas and my daughters birthday. My husband and I have been married 60 years plus. We have four children, nine grandchildren, and one great granddaughter. We have a dairy farm. Our youngest son farms with us. He has a family of four children.

GERMAN PIZZA

1 pound ground beef
½ medium onion chopped
½ green pepper chopped (optional)
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons butter
6 medium potatoes (about 2¼ pounds) peeled and finely shredded
3 eggs, beaten
⅓ cup milk
2 cups shredded mozzarella or cheddar cheese

Brown ground beef, onion, and green pepper. Drain off grease. In 12-inch stove top or electric skillet on low heat, melt butter. Spread potatoes over melted butter and season with salt and pepper. Top with meat mixture. Combine eggs and milk and pour over all. Cook covered about 30 minutes or until potatoes are tender. Top with cheese and heat until cheese is melted. Cut and serve.

This is a recipe my family enjoys. You can be creative and add more ingredients such as mushrooms, pepperoni, etc. It doesn't need to be beef either. Ham, sausage, bacon can be substituted.

My husband, Nelson, and I and our four children live on a dairy farm. We enjoy farm life but do hope milk prices get better so we can continue to enjoy it in the future.

HERB AND MUSHROOM INDIVIDUAL SOUFFLES

2 tablespoons butter
¼ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon rosemary leaves
½ teaspoon thyme leaves
¼ teaspoon chervil leaves
1 cup milk
1½ cup shredded cheddar cheese
6 eggs, separated
¼ cup finely chopped mushrooms

Butter six 1-cup souffle dishes. Melt butter in large saucepan. Add flour, salt, pepper, dry mustard, rosemary, thyme, and chervil, stir together for 1 minute. Gradually add milk, cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until thickened. Add cheese, stir until melted. Remove from heat and cool slightly.

Beat eggs yolks till thick and lemon colored. Add a small amount of cheese sauce to the yolks and mix well. Stir yolk mixture into remaining cheese mixture. Beat egg whites till stiff but not dry. Fold into cheese mixture. Pour in buttered souffle dishes and cover with plastic wrap and freeze.

To bake, place frozen souffles on baking sheet. Bake at 350 degrees for 50 minutes. Keeps in freezer up to two weeks.

H.B. POUNDCAKE

1 cup butter, room temperature
3 cups sugar
6 eggs
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 cup whipping cream
3 cups flour

In a large mixing bowl, cream butter and sugar together on medium speed. Add eggs, one at a time, and beat thoroughly after each addition. Add vanilla and continue mixing. Reduce speed to low and alternately add cream and flour. Pour batter into greased and floured 10-inch tube pan or use non-stick spray on your pan. Bake at 325 degrees for 1 hour and 20 minutes or until cake tests done. This cake has a very dense consistency and a nice crust ... thanks to the whipping cream.

I live in Caroline County, Md. and I grew up in Anne Arundel County, Md. when they still had a bunch of dairy farms, but they have all since faded into the past. But Caroline County has quite a number of dairy farms that seem to be flourishing. My husband, Jeff, and I and my daughter, Navonne, live on a small farm and are raising a small flock of mostly hair sheep and a growing herd of Boer goats.

ICE CREAM CAKE

1 box chocolate cake mix
1 box (3-ounce) vanilla pudding
4 eggs
½ cup oil
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 cup water

Mix all ingredients together and pour in a 15×10-inch jelly roll pan. Bake at 325 degrees for 20 minutes or until cake tests done. Cool completely. Top with 2 quarts vanilla ice cream. (Use a table knife to cut the ice cream into slabs while it is still in the box. Place the slabs on top of the cake. Let the ice cream soften slightly on the cake and spread it.) Freeze. Top with whipping topping. Garnish with chocolate sandwich cookie crumbs and drizzle with chocolate and caramel syrup.

We have just started farming in March on a 68-acre dairy farm. We are milking 50 cows. It was always our dream to be able to farm and raise our children in a family farm business. So when we discovered the opportunity to rent a farm we were happy for the chance to try to live our dream. Our boys are 2 years and 6 months old. Between the boys, the cows, the farming, and everything else we are more than busy, but so far we really enjoy this farming experience. There is nothing like family togetherness!

PARTY CHEESE BALL

2 packages (8-ounce) cream cheese
2 cups (8-ounce) shredded sharp cheddar cheese
1 tablespoon chopped pimiento
1 tablespoon chopped green pepper
1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
2 teaspoons worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon lemon juice dash of salt
finely chopped pecans

Combine softened cream cheese and cheddar cheese, mixing until well blended. Add pimiento, green pepper, onion, worcestershire sauce, lemon juice, and salt and mix well. Chill. Shape into ball and roll in nuts. Serve with crackers. (During the party season, left over cheese ball can be reshaped and refrigerated until the next event.)

This is a favorite recipe in our house and is always used around the holidays. It makes a nice addition to any party and someone always asks for the recipe.

PEACHES AND CREAM CAKE

Batter:
¾ cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 small box regular pudding (must be cook, not instant)
1 egg
3 tablespoons butter
½ cup milk

Topping:
4 tablespoons reserved peach juice
1 can (29-ounce) peaches (about 4 fresh peaches)
1 package (18-ounce) cream cheese
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon sugar

Combine batter ingredients on medium speed for 2 minutes; pour into a 10-inch pie pan.

Arrange peaches on batter, combine juice, cream cheese, and ½ cup sugar; mix for 2 minutes on medium speed. Pour over the peaches. Sprinkle cinnamon and 1 tablespoon of sugar mixture over top. Bake at 350 degrees for 30-35 minutes.

Everyone loves this recipe. It's especially good with fresh peaches. Although canned is fine too. The cream cheese is really what makes this recipe excellent.

Our family farms about 200 acres in Kempton, in addition to milking 45 Jersey cows. My brother and sister also show market hogs and dairy for 4-H. I hope your family can enjoy this dessert as much as mine!

ANN'S COCONUT ICE CREAM CAKE

60 Ritz or Townhouse crackers
1 stick of butter
¼ cup sugar
½ gallon vanilla ice cream, softened
1 cup milk
3 boxes instant coconut cream pudding
2 cups fresh or packaged coconut

Crush crackers in a food processor. If one is not available, place crackers in a ziplock plastic bag and crush crackers by rolling with a rolling pin. Add sugar and melted butter. Mix together and press into the bottom of a greased 13×9-inch pan. You can grease with butter or you may use a non-stick spray. Do not Bake!!

Mix ice cream, milk, and pudding together well. Spread onto crust. Top with whipped cream and sprinkle with coconut. Refrigerate for 24 hours before serving. Do not freeze!

Note: If you are on a reduced fat diet, all items may be substituted with low fat products. Also, you can substitute the coconut pudding and ice cream with any flavor that you wish. For instance, substitute the coconut for banana cream and top with bananas prior to serving instead of the coconut.

I have a true love for farming and the dairy industry. You see, I am part of the fifth generation of farmers in my family. My father, Elmer A. Stone Jr., taught us at a very early age what it means to be part of a farm family, the hard work it entails and the sense of pride you gain as you continue on with what your ancestors started so many years ago, while watching your crops grow and the calves grow into cows. I learned it wasn't always an easy life, but certainly one well worth the effort. At an early age, I learned to sew, cook, and can much of the produce that we grew in the summer. Growing up, my brothers and I were members of the local 4-H dairy clubs and I was also a member of the girls 4-H where I participated in sewing and baking contests at our local fair. As a teenager, I represented Washington County as both the Farm Queen and Dairy Princess.

Today, I am a nurse, a wife, a mother, and the very proud grandmother of a four-month-old granddaughter, Emily. My husband, Doug, and I live in Boonsboro, Md. where my father and my younger brother, Andy, continue in the family farming business. My daughter and son-in-law, Stephanie and Jason Stamper, reside close by in Hagerstown with baby Emily.

I enjoy cooking and baking dishes that allow me to use products that promote the dairy industry as well as the crops that we grow. Many memorable family times have been spent enjoying a delicious meal together. I hope that you will enjoy one of our favorite desserts!

INDIVIDUAL CHEESECAKES

3 packages (8-ounce) cream cheese
1 cup sugar
5 eggs
1½ teaspoon vanilla

Topping:
⅛ cup sour cream
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine first four ingredients. Fill lined cupcake pans ⅔ full. Bake at 300 degrees for 40 minutes. Remove from oven and let cool 5 minutes.

Combine topping ingredients and spoon mixture over top of cakes and dot with jam or jelly. Return to oven and bake 5 minutes. Makes 24 servings.

We have a small dairy, so we enjoy using recipes that use dairy products.

STRAWBERRY TAPIOCA

m1 quart water
⅔ cup tapioca
1½ cups sugar
1 quart crushed frozen strawberries (thawed)
1 pint whipping cream

Boil water and tapioca until clear. Add sugar and let cool. Add whipped cream and berries. Beat together with mixer.

Hi, from Bradford County. This is a favorite at our house and so simple to make. I usually make a double batch and even that doesn't last long. Goes to show, a healthy family of growing boys, a blessing from God!

Also I don't always have whipped cream on hand so often I may use vanilla ice cream or cool whip instead or half whip cream with either ice cream or cool whip. Mix and match, anything works great!

We moved from Union County a year ago to this larger farm (80 cows and 100+ acres) to make work for our boys. Justin, 14; Ryan, 12; Landis, 9; Stanley, 7; and daughter, Dawn, 3.

We also homeschool our three oldest so my work is cut out for me. We enjoy a large garden in the summertime with alot of strawberries to freeze.

LEAD New York Class Takes Trip To Netherlands

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Participants in the current class of LEAD New York, the renowned food and agricultural leadership program based in New York State, have gained valuable insights from their recent week-long study trip to the Netherlands.

The trip allowed the class to study key issues that affect foreign agriculture and food businesses. The international study tour is part of LEAD New York's two-year curriculum of seminars, workshops, and field trips designed to cultivate the leadership, managerial, analytical, and communications skills of program participants.

"The objective of this study trip was to relate the fundamental issues of food safety, labor, environment, trade, and energy to the top six agricultural and food industries in the Netherlands," said Larry Van De Valk, director of LEAD New York. "In doing so, we gained a new perspective on how the cultural and societal conditions of a country can impact the food and agriculture business in other countries, including the U.S."

The group's itinerary for the week included a full schedule of facility and agricultural operation tours across the country pertaining to the Netherlands leading food and agricultural industries, including retail, food processing, fresh market, dairy, crop, fisheries, and horticulture.

Specific activities during the week included stops at the Aalsmeer Flower Auction, the Albert Heijn Supermarket, Do-It Organic Foods, Unilever, and Heineken. Additionally, the participants attended lectures given by a number of foreign professionals about a variety of topics that concern the international food and agriculture industry.

One of the major benefits of this week-long expedition was being able to compare foreign industry to the American food and agriculture business.

For many of the participants, the opportunity to spend quality time with foreign professionals made the trip a worthwhile and unique experience.

"The most enjoyable part of the trip for many of us was the personal interaction we had with the farmers and their families," said Steve Weir, vice president of First Pioneer Farm Credit and a LEAD New York participant. "There are a lot of social differences between Americans and the Dutch, and our meetings with these individuals helped to give us a totally new perspective on our industry outside of New York and outside of the country."

Since 1985, LEAD New York has provided a platform for enhancing New York's food and agriculture industry through the development of new leaders. All of the coursework is designed to improve each participant's communications skills, leadership abilities, issue analysis capabilities, public policy knowledge, and problem-solving techniques.

Training Sessions Offered On Violence Prevention Skills

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Berks County Extension is offering training for the ACT Against Violence project that was developed jointly by the American Psychological Association (APA) and the National Association for the Education of Young Children (NAEYC).

The framework for this project includes a focus on the importance of the early years for learning how to prevent, handle, and respond to conflict. For more information visit the ACT Website at www.ACTagainstviolence.org.

ACT (Adults and Child Together) includes training on four skills important to early violence prevention that can be used by parents and early childhood staff. The program will provide a 2-hour training on each of these skills with an emphasis on applying the training to parenting or group care situations.

Sessions are scheduled for Tuesday, May 20 — Discipline; Tuesday, May 27 — Anger Management; Tuesday, June 3 — Social Problem Solving; and Tuesday, June 17 — Media Literacy.

Mimi Gavigan will be the trainer for these sessions. She is trained by APA and NAEYC to provide this training. She has extensive experience in early childhood education, family counseling, and family literacy.

The cost is $3 per session. They will be conducted 7 p.m.-9 p.m. at Berks County Ag Center, Leesport. For more information, call Sue Giachero at (610) 378-1327 or e-mail slg237@psu.edu.

Bedford Antiques Show Attracts Buyers Despite Threatening Weather

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Rain deterred 10 of the 32 antique vendors expected for the Antiques on the Square Show conducted in Bedford during Memorial Day weekend, Those who took a chance on this year's rainy weather were glad they did.

Shoppers seemed to be plentiful as the sun broke through the clouds and a blue grass band provided additional entertainment.

Dave Clapper, a 34-year-veteran from East Freedom who has American antiques and folk art, was one of the dealers enjoying the day. Clapper does not have an antique shop nor does he advertise on the Internet.

"I have steady customers and I know what they want. When I go to an auction, I usually know where I can sell something and for how much, before I start bidding. I take what I have left to shows."

Paul Swanson, Lockhaven, had an attractive display specializing in art pottery, crooks, and antique clocks.

"I do all of my business with shows," he said.

Depression glass and other types of attractive antique glass ware is the specialty of Donald Hagens of Stoystown. Hagens also markets entirely through antique shows.

John Carpenter who runs the "Red and White" publication near Breezewood enjoys spending his weekends at antique shows.

"At least I enjoy most antique shows," he says recalling one recently in Virginia where a tornado tore through only a few miles away. Surprisingly his antique glassware and dishes were not harmed.

Paul Thomas and his son, Joe, live near Patton.

"I live in the same house where I was born," said Paul, a W.W. II veteran. The Thomas family enjoys collecting antique furniture. They sell at shows and take a truckload of antiques to Laurel, Maryland every month.

Larry and Beth Thomas live near Stahlstown and own Whispering Pines Antiques. They have a wide array of antiques including furniture, dishes, and pottery.

Most of the dealers at the Bedford show were a part of the Pennsylvania Antique Dealers Association, which is an organization with 194 members from Pennsylvania and surrounding states.

Several customers look at an old tablecloth at the Taylor's Treasures stand.

This display of old advertising signs caused many to stop and take a look.

Cooking History In Old Cookbooks, Pamphlets

Cookbooks don't have to date to the 19th century to be collectible.

In fact, collectors are honing in on the pamphlets and booklets from the early 20th century to the 1960s put out by food processing companies, such as Jell-O, Heinz and major appliance manufactors such as General Electric. Like the earlier cookbooks they offer a history of what was popular. For instance, in the 1930s no luncheon was complete without a Jell-O mold.

The next generation found the recipes no longer in fashion and trashed the pamplets and booklets. These days those items are being added to cookbook collections.

There were cookbooks published by women's magazines and city newspapers. By the 1940s, cookbooks were put out by churches and social groups as fund raisers, which is a practice that continues today.

The last major auction specializing in gastronomy (as it is known), was held at Sotheby's in 1984. It consisted of 1,500 bookery books, collected over the years by Marcus and Elizabeth Crahan. The earliest books in the collection dated from as far back as the Renaissance, covering five centuries. Not exactly the kind of thing you would thumb through with flour-covered fingers to duplicate the Lucrezia Borgia's last wine and cheese tasting.

The oldest known cookery book was documented in the first century by gourmet M.Gavius Apicus. It was published in Milan in 1498 under the title, "Appicius Culinarius."

While the work gives the list of ingredients for each recipe, there are few words of advice listing quantity or cooking procedure. Nonetheless, the work was used by cooks for 1,000 years from Roman times to the Middle Ages. Imagine the royalties Apicius could have collected.

Another known early cookbook was done in the third-century by Athenaeus. It was based on a symposium held by 21 artists, writers, musicians, and surgeons, discussing all things that should, according to Greek custom "adorn a banquet." Just as today, there were reprints. Those done in the 16th century periodically come to market.

The earliest printed cookbook was by Bartholmacus Platina. First published in Venice in 1475, it was basically a guide to the art of good living. It discussed the pleasures of the table, how best to enjoy one's meal and stay in good health.

As might be expected, most of the early cookbooks were written by men. An exception was the earliest known cookbook written in England in 1747 by Hannah Glasse. The title was "The Art of Cookery Made Plain and Easy." It contained what the author considered valuable tips for the young homemaker of that time.

One of the mpost popular, early cookbooks ever written was "Mrs. Beeton's Book Of Household Management." It was published in England in 1861 by Isabella Beeton, age 25, and reprinted for several decades. It was considered the definitive work on not only Victorian cookery for generations, but a total guide to lifestyles in that day. There was information for all of the servants, such as upstairs-maid etiquette.

There was even an account of the natural history of the animals and vegetables found in the daily diet.

CLUES: The earliest and rarest cookbooks can sell in the thousands of dollars. High hundreds for late 19th and early 20th century examples. For a beginning collector there are many possibilities.

When hunting, think beyond the recipes. Did a famous artist

Antiques Questions And Answers

The enclosed photo is of an antique silverplated or sterling container. Looks to be Victorian. The markings are S. F. in a circle and then in another circle a profile of a person. The blue design on the sides is like a shield. Can you identify it?

R.R. - Lander, WY

What you have in a tankard that originally had a glass insert. It is in the Arts and Crafts Style (1895-1920) and from your photo appears to be pewter.

There were many workers in metalware who worked in the Arts & Crafts style. It could sell at auction for $400 or more.

I have recently come into possession of a New Home Whippet Sewing machine.

After doing my own research I have determine it is early 18th century. Can you give me any information? It has a bobbin holder bullet shaped.

K.C. - Mullica Hill, NJ

I don't know where you got your research. The first patent for a sewing machine was granted in 1830 to a French tailor, Barthelemy Thermonnier. The first electric sewing machine patented in 1871. The New Home Sewing Machine Co., was formed in 1882 at Orange, MA. Their machines had many names, such as "Whippet". Their trademark was the whippet dog. By 1884 production reached 500 a day. By 1906-07 around 150,000 were made. The company sold out in 1930 to the Free Sewing Machine Co. You can find more information on the internet under "old sewing machines."

or personality write the books or do the illustrations? One example would be the first edition of "The French Chef" by Julia Child's. Another, the "Alice B. Toklas Cookbook" written in the 1950s by Alice B. Toklas, companion of writer Gertrude Stein. The average 20th century cookbooks sells for under $100, Pamphlets and Company cookbooks turn up at garage and church rummage sales for a couple of dollars.

Valuable Real Estate

Saturday, July 12, 2003

Personal Property @ 9:00 AM

Real estate @ 12:00 NOON

Location: Lake Alfred Drive, Pequea, Martic Township, PA

This property consists of an 80' by 117' lot with a 5 bedroom year around living dwelling. There is a large living room, eat-in kitchen and an enclosed front and side porch with stone floor. There is a bath, central heat and central air. The floors are Walnut, Cedar, Oak & Linoleum. The living room has a stone Heat-O-Later fireplace. This property was last lived in March 2003 but would take some fixing up for year-round living. The view of the Susquehanna River is rather spectacular. The steps to the dwelling are cobblestone and flagstone.

12:15 We will sell a .56 acre tract of woodland right behind the dwelling property which fronts on Ridge Rd.

12:30 We will sell a .15 acre tract of woodland to the rear and right of the dwelling also fronting on Ridge Rd.

If you want some privacy, solitude and some future in Real Estate Ownership, then take a look and be ready to buy this property with tremendous potential.

FarMore Facts

1 These are big, rugged dairy cows with enough strength to withstand high production demands. They are acclimated to large herd practices, hired labor, and concrete

2. They are well fed, but not over fed with a basic TMR including hay silage and high moisture corn

3. All cattle were booster vaccinated for respiratory viruses and pasturella on 6/9/03 Dr Richard Wiley from New Pittsburgh Large Animal Clinic at Wooster, Ohio palpated and confirmed reproductive status with our cataloging personnel at that time

4. All cattle are bled + TB tested for immediate interstate shipment

5. Tank samples are negative for mycoplasma and negative for B-V-D

6. In addition to the freestall facility, FarMore operated a tie stall dairy of very elite Holsteins at Hopewell These animals are now in the main free stall barn and going through the parlor

7 Heifer calves born since Jan 2003 & 3 good predigreed bull calves sell

8. Expect to make good buys on animals which can have both an immediate, and long lasting impact on your herd

Brillion Offers New 4-Foot Wide Seeder

BRILLION, Wis. — Brillion Iron Works, a leading manufacturer of seeding and agricultural equipment, brings its expertise to the commercial landscape and rental market with the introduction of the Brillion SS-4.

The Brillion SS-4 Landscape Seeder is a 4-foot wide seeder that can be operated behind compact tractors or medium-duty all-terrain vehicles. It can be used to plant a large selection of grass and legume seeds including Kentucky bluegrass, fescue, orchard grass, bromegrass, alfalfa, and clover, in a wide variety of seeding rates. Two seed hoppers, each with 1¾-bushel capacity, allow the user to plant seeds of differing sizes simultaneously.

CNH Reports First Quarter Results

LAKE FOREST, Ill. — CNH Global N.V. (NYSE:CNH) today reported first quarter 2003 results consistent with expectations, better than the first quarter of 2002, and achieved in a much more difficult industry environment. Tight control of costs were key to achieving CNH's target in the face of lower sales of the company's higher-margin construction equipment products.

For the first quarter CNH reported a net loss of $46 million, which includes net restructuring charges of $6 million. This compares to a first quarter 2002 net loss of $49 million including $3 million in restructuring charges and before the cumulative effect of a change in accounting principle. The net loss per share was $.35 for the first quarter of 2003, including net restructuring charges of $.05 per share. Per share results have been retroactively restated to reflect the reverse stock split effected on April 1.

CNH reported first quarter consolidated revenues of $2.397 billion, compared to $2.389 billion in the same period last year. Adjusted for the favorable impact of foreign exchange rates, revenues declined by 5% due mainly to a decline in construction equipment sales.

"Again this quarter we have delivered a bottom line result consistent with expectations in spite of weaker than expected industry sales," Paolo Monferino, CNH president and chief executive officer, said. "Moreover, we have maintained our Equipment Operations net debt at virtually the same level as of December 31, 2002 even as we have built inventory in anticipation of the spring selling season."

At the beginning of the second quarter, CNH closed a $2 billion debt-for-equity exchange with majority shareholder Fiat. On a March 31 pro forma basis, the company's Equipment Operations debt-to-capitalization ratio was reduced to 26 percent by this transaction.

Revenues from sales of agricultural equipment increased to $1.600 billion for the quarter, compared to $1.552 billion in the first quarter of 2002. Net of favorable currency, revenues declined by 3%.

First quarter 2003 industry unit sales of under-40 horsepower tractors increased in North America, while sales of over-40 horsepower tractors, combines, and hay and forage equipment declined. In Europe, industry sales were essentially unchanged while Latin American sales declined from 2002 levels. Agricultural equipment industry sales in the developing markets of the world improved moderately compared to 2002.

Retail sales of CNH agricultural equipment in the first quarter were up slightly more than the industry overall, as share gains in Europe and in over-40 horsepower tractors in North America offset slight declines elsewhere.

McCormick Unveils New Compact Tractors

PELLA, Iowa — Since 1831, McCormick International USA, Inc. has been an industry leader in providing the latest technology and versatility in agriculture. The G series model, McCormick's latest groundscare lineup, builds on that tradition. This series offers a flexible and powerful line of compact tractors.

With numerous features like compact dimensions, four-wheel drive, a combination hydrostatic-mechanical transmission (G25) or hydrostatic transmission (G30R), and a rear and front power takeoff.

The McCormick G series is ideal for agricultural and horticultural crops, nurseries, greenhouses, gardens, orchards, and vineyards. It is also great for contractors and private landowners who want a small tractor for mowing or other ground maintenance work.

"We feel the G series line will allow our buyers multiple options," said Joe Michaels, managing director of McCormick. "This new series offers a diverse choice of transmissions, driving positions, wheelbases, and track width combinations. Buyers can really specify the tractor that best suits their needs."

Portable Tractor Saw

Cut cordwood, pulpwood, firewood, ties or any other type of wood .anywhere Hook it up to your 3 point hitch, attach the PTO and move the Woodsman Saw to any location As soon as you place a log on the sturdy 40" table, you'll get the feel of balanced-torque action A light hand pressure moves the log into the blade, release the pressure and the spring loaded table rocks back on dual roller bearings, ready for the next cut. Built on a rugged steel frame, the Model 250 is engineered for years of heavy duty use

Model 250 Specifications

Our Specialty
We stock them, stock the parts, pinions, gears, bearings, seals & gaskets, splined out puts, shafts, housing adaptors/reducers, and pilot bearing holders. With little or no changes, these new clutch/gear reduction assemblies could fit your gas or diesel engine - 50-100hp. Five different gear ratios. A valuable link between your engine and power take-off shaft equipment.

CLUTCH / 5.8:1 Planetary Gear Reduction Assemblies

For 8-30 HP Engines
Fits most — Honda, Robin, Kohler, Kawasaki, others (1-2 cyl.)
• Fits most standard crankshafts - 1", 1⅛", 1⅜"
• Aluminum Castings/Housings
• Ball & roller bearings, hardened gears

- Home of the Industry leading ALLStar Ag Truck Body - the most popular ag body in the Northeast
- Specializing in "Trucks for Farmers"
- Serving Farmers from Maine to Virginia and Rhode Island to Minnesota

All manner of agricultural truck applications
Silage and grain - Liquid Manure Spread and/or nurse - TRM Mixers

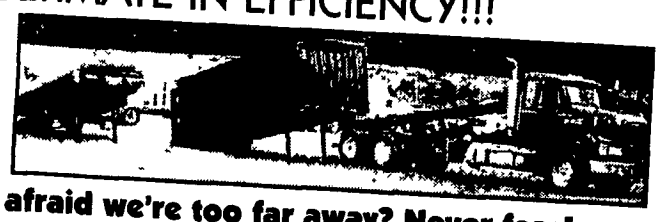
And we make 'em work right!

Whether it be ALLStar Body and hoist, USA "2 in 1" Roll Off System, liquid manure tank or TMR mixer, USA Body's trained, professional crew quickly and efficiently handle all ag truck installation needs.

TAKE A LOOK AT THIS ...USA "2 IN 1" SYSTEM - THE ULTIMATE IN EFFICIENCY!!!

Save your tractor for the field

One chassis converts from a silage truck to a dedicated manure truck in minutes.



Interested but afraid we're too far away? Never fear! USA body shrinks the distance with...

- Shortest installation turn around times you'll find
  - ALLStar body and hoist installation requires less than a day. We'll even do it while you wait if you prefer.
  - USA "2 in 1" Roll-Off System can be installed on your truck in only 48 hours!
- We honor our commitment to an "on time" delivery schedule tailored to your needs.
- Pick up and/or delivery available - you never have to leave the farm.

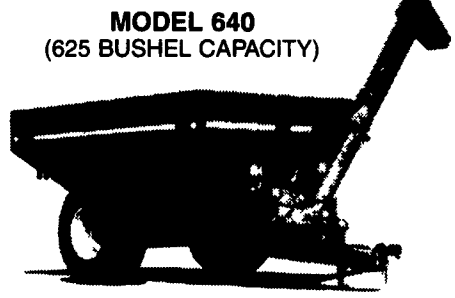
Binkley & Hurst Bros. Inc. offers high quality grain carts that deliver your yields.

KINZE

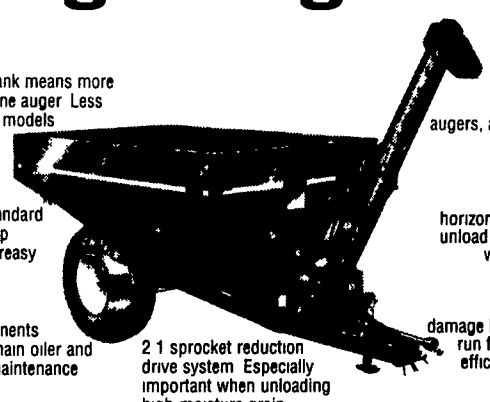
We Are Ready To Deliver A Grain Transport Cart To You! Call Binkley & Hurst Today!

MODEL 640
(625 BUSHEL CAPACITY)



Unload Time:
3 min. (210 bu./min.)*
Tire Size:
24.5 x 32 12 ply
Unload Height:
12 ft. 3 in.
Low Profile:
Only 9 ft 2 in. (wagon ht.)

How KINZE designed the world's best Auger Wagon.



Low-profile, extra-big tank means more clearance for the combine auger Less than 10 ft height on all models

High-flotation tires standard equipment! So you keep moving, even in soft, greasy fields

Finest American-made, industrial grade components money can buy, with chain oiler and grease bank for easy maintenance

2 1 sprocket reduction drive system Especially important when unloading high-moisture grain

Hydraulic fold, self-aligning augers, and over-center locks

3-minute unloading with vertical and horizontal augers You unload at full capacity, wet or dry, from start to finish

Less grain damage because augers run full Much more efficient than single auger carts

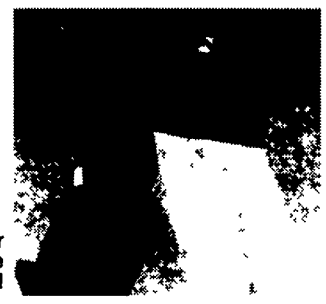
Call Binkley & Hurst Bros. today and discover the "quality force" in moving grain.

KINZE AUGER WAGONS

Supply is limited, make your purchase now!

The New 850 HARVEST COMMANDER™ AUGER WAGONS

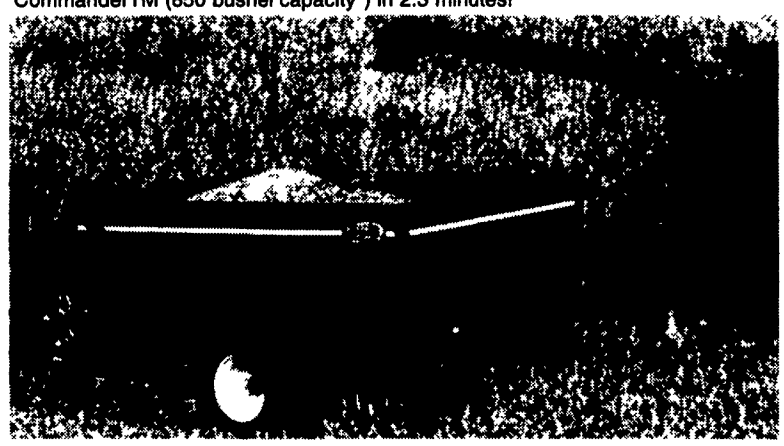
MODEL 850 AUGER WAGONS 850 bushel capacities!*



UNCOMPROMISING DESIGN AND QUALITY GIVE YOU TOP PERFORMANCE, RELIABILITY AND LONG LIFE. STEP UP TO THE NEXT LEVEL IN GRAIN HANDLING!

Improved unloading height and auger reach. The 850 Sof-Tred grain discharge height is 13' 6"!

Big 18"-diameter vertical augers empty a fully loaded 850 Harvest CommanderTM (850 bushel capacity*) in 2.3 minutes!



850 Harvest CommanderTM combines the classic KINZE® low profile design with unmatched strength and stability.

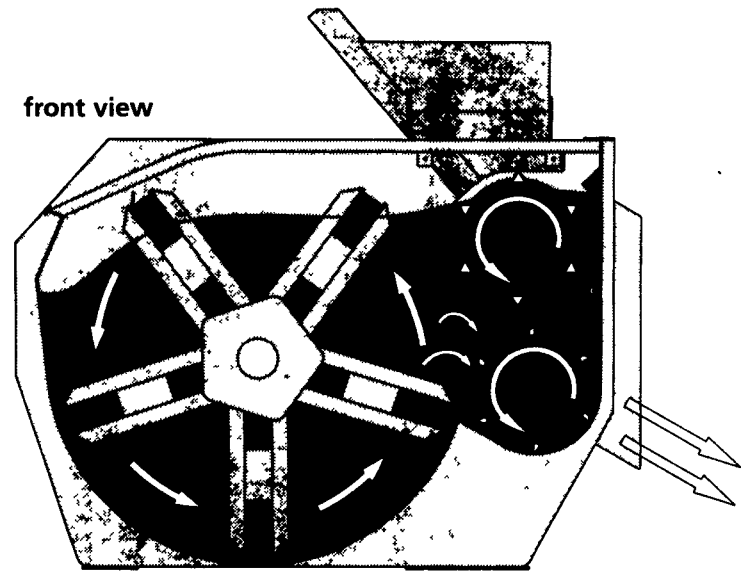
Get the REEL Advantage

A Faster, More Thorough Mix

front view



The large-diameter reel provides a gentle tumbling action and the two side augers produce an end-to-end blending action. This unique combination ensures faster mixing and unloading times, and a very thorough mix, even when mixing small batches.

LAST MINUTE SEEDING DECISION?

Hoober Has a Great Plains Drill for You!

15' and 20' Widths Now In Stock!

- Great Plains Precision Seeding System Plants Corn, Soybeans and Small Grains
- Gives you the ability to singulate seed in the furrow while dramatically increasing seedbox capacity over traditional hopper-style planters
- The SingulatorPlus Meter™ sits directly on top of the double disc opener, and once the meter releases the seed, it has less distance to travel thus ensuring more accurate seed placement.

Get a Lot of Tractor, and Track Record, for Your Money With the MF 200 Series.

The 42 to 69 PTO hp* Massey Ferguson 200 Series tractors are designed to stretch a dollar and shrink practically any job down to size. They're built on a tradition of rugged reliability that has made Massey Ferguson a leading choice of farmers worldwide for nearly 40 years. The expertise of manufacturing more than 10 million engines goes into each quiet, fuel-efficient, low-emission Perkins® engine with Fastram™ technology. And with its proven strong resale value, the MF 200 Series makes even more sense.

To see how far your tractor dollar can go, test drive a hard-working, money-saving MF 200 Series at your nearby Massey Ferguson dealer. It's an experience you'll value for years to come.

Good Used Mowers, Cub Cadets & Garden Tractors

CLAAS HARDI BUSH HOG

THIS TRACTOR KEEPS GOING.
THIS OFFER DOESN'T.

Every MF 1400 Series compact tractor is built with the same rugged dependability you've come to expect from even the biggest, toughest Massey Ferguson tractors. Which is why every MF 1400 tractor – from 17 - 55 hp – keeps delivering big-tractor performance, day in and day out, to tackle all the loading, mowing, tiling, scraping, digging and raking you can dish out. But, if you want to get an MF1400 tractor with a 0.0% APR, you'd better act now. Because, a deal this good won't last nearly as long as your Massey Ferguson tractor.

*Offer expires 6/30/03 0.0% APR for 36 months with approved credit from AGCO Finance on all Massey Ferguson compact tractors and compact tractor attachments (purchased in conjunction with the qualifying compact tractor models) at your participating Massey Ferguson dealer listed below

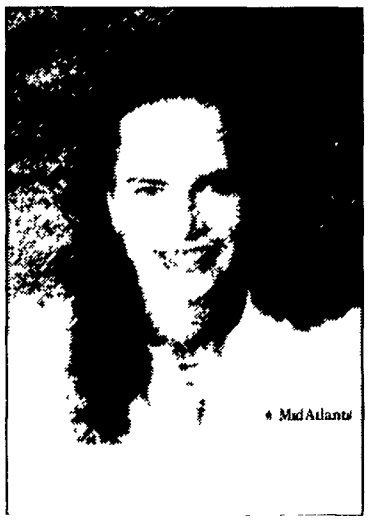
Jennifer Lord Joins MidAtlantic Farm Credit

WESTMINSTER, Md. — Jennifer Swift Lord of Marion, Md. has been hired by MidAtlantic Farm Credit as an account executive. She will work from the Pocomoke, Md. office and provide credit and financially related services to the residents in the rural communities around Pocomoke as well as the northern Virginia counties of Accomack and North Hampton.

Prior to joining the staff at MidAtlantic, Lord worked as a client service associate with a financial investment company. Stuart Cooper, MidAtlantic Farm Credit's area manager, said, "Jennifer's farming background and enthusiasm for her new position are certainly benefits. She will be a definite asset to our staff."

Lord grew up on a 4,000-acre grain and poultry farm in Marion. She continues to stay active in the farm business. She attended Crisfield High School and graduated from Salisbury



Jennifer Swift Lord

University with a degree in business administration. Lord attends Immanuel United Methodist Church and enjoys the beach, fishing, and spending time with family and friends.

King's AgriSeeds Hosts Pasture Walk

RONKS (Lancaster Co.) — Considering that the weather was good for doing field work at home, farmer/graziers turned out in good numbers for the Annual Field Day and Pasture Meeting on the Aaron King Farm here June 12.

King, owner of King's AgriSeeds, led about 80 people through his grazing and forage lands. Visitors viewed a number of new test plots demonstrating a variety of forages for maximizing production and feed quality.

King also demonstrated a New Zealand-made "rising plate meter," a tool used for determining dry matter content in grazing paddocks.

His cows receive about 30 pounds of dry matter per day on pasture, along with supplements. King's goal is not to feed any baleage until October.

"Grazing is number one around here," he said.

After the pasture walk, guest speakers addressed a number of grazing-related topics.

Glenn Shirk of Shirk's Dairy $ense spoke on "Pasture Systems - A Path To Higher Profits"; Bruce Kreider, White Oak Mills, on "Feeding Cows on Pasture Systems"; Tim Guttridge, Barenbrug USA, on "What Makes Grass Go To Head"; Chade Hale, DLF International Seeds, on "High Sugar Festulolliums and Tetraploid Ryegrass"; and Tim Fritz, King's AgriSeeds, on "Pasture Renovation and Sorghum Sudangrasses."

John Place Joins Renaissance

ROARING SPRING (Blair Co.) — Renaissance Nutrition, Inc., has announced the appointment of John Place as a Nutritional Consultant and Feed Management Specialist for Lebanon and Dauphin counties.

Place brings to Renaissance a variety of agricultural qualifications and experiences, including a Bachelor of Science degree in Agriculture and Animal Science from the University of Delaware. He also studied in New Zealand, undertaking pasture production techniques for dairy, beef, and sheep.

Born and raised in Pennsylvania, John worked on the university farm as an assistant, and also as a farm manager for a farm in eastern Pa. He currently resides in Lebanon.

Silo Doors by
Agri-DOOR

We are a family owned manufacturer of silo doors and hardware. We sell to end users directly from Montana. Our doors have two layers of tongue and groove cedar with a sheet of plastic in between to help seal the door to the silo. All our hardware is powder coated for weather durability.

What's against soft paint?
In metal roofing and siding some manufacturers use soft pliable paint to prevent cracks. The disadvantage with softer paint is that it scratches so easy. Handling during erection, flying debris during storms, children playing against it, etc. can easily scratch softer paint. Scratches on softer paints tend to rust prematurely. Everlast heat forms to prevent this. Ask our competition if they heat form. It's important.

EVERLAST II EVERLAST II EVERLAST II

Metal Roofs Aren't Created Equal

EVERLAST II IS BETTER:

- it is galvanized heavier, like old times.
- it is heat formed, less paint cracks.
- is cut while hot, prevents early edge rust.
- won't scratch as easy, paint is harder.
- won't bend or buckle as easy, stronger design.
- laps are tighter, and virtually invisible.
- nail/screws seal better, ribs fit tighter to head.
- zinc phosphate, not chromate under paint.
- still priced about the same or less.

EVERLAST II
is excellent for houses and barns.
DOUBLE DIPPED GALVANIZED is proven best for animals.
STANDING SEAM
is ideal for houses.

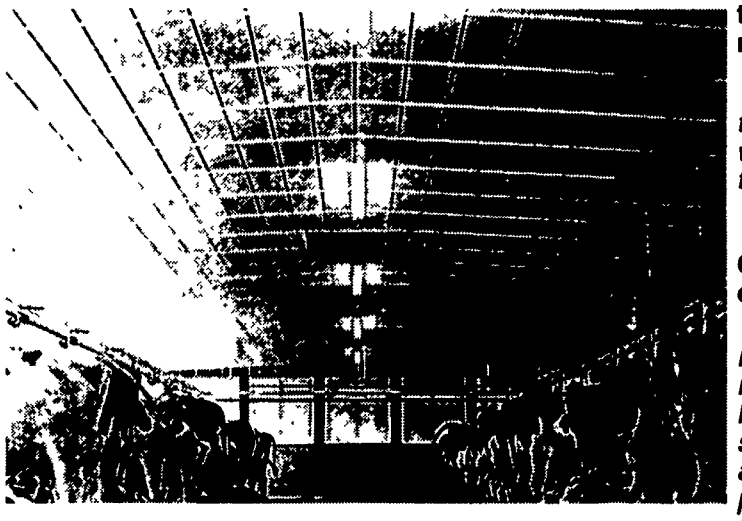
– Ceiling systems designed for your dairy, swine, and poultry facilities, as well – as shops, warehouses, garages, arenas, and more.

Tired of working in a cold, noisy shop?

These ceiling systems are designed to hold any amount of insulation, and with insulation above, produce sound reduction qualities much greater than steel.

Is the banding in your hog or poultry barn deteriorating?

Let us replace them with our heavier polyester bands which do not stretch or become brittle over time.



Are you frustrated with the birds in your implement shed?

Get the problem under control with a triply ceiling, as well as greatly improving the lighting.

Contemplating a drop ceiling?

Demand a triply ceiling above your drop ceiling if there is insulation being installed. This will serve as a vapor barrier along with permanently preventing falling insulation.

Providing the Ag industry with a very durable, attractive, waterproof, noncorrosive, alternative to conventional ceilings at a fraction of the cost.

Having Problems Getting Milk Cold?
Consider a Mueller pre-cooler. It's an excellent way to lower the cost of cooling milk. It reduces milk temperature with water pumped straight out of your well. Mueller® precoolers are available in sizes to work with any system. If lower electric bills would make your life easier, call us and ask for more information on Mueller precoolers.

For Horses that need a Booster

Does your horse need more pep? Feed Hoffman Vitalac! For a total body builder, a conditioner, better feed digestion, more pep, for smoother hair coat. Helps to prevent colic, colds, and soreness in your horses. Feed 1 to 2 cups a day. For best results feed 1 cup Vitalac and 1 cup Hoffman powder a day. This is a total mineral & vitamin pack with lactobacillus, yeast, selenium, enzymes, and chelated minerals.

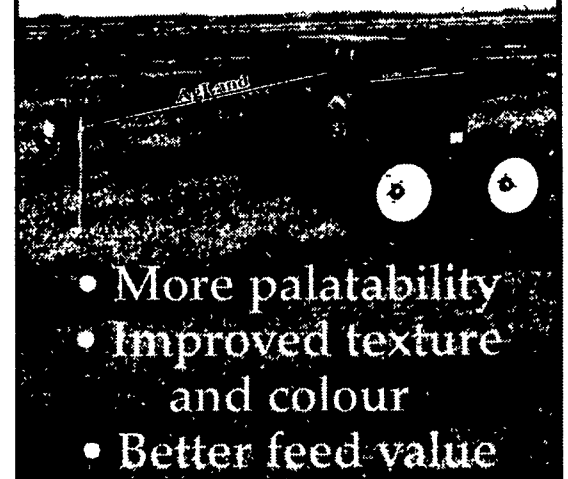
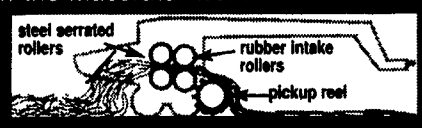
Macerator 6600
Faster dry down time



- More palatability
- Improved texture and colour
- Better feed value

Bale hay faster!! Maceration gently nicks the stems allowing a much faster drydown while preserving valuable nutrients and colors! This is how the Macerator works



Maceration also helps to soften the hay, preserves the protein content and exposes more plant sugar to allow for more efficient silage fermentation. This makes the hay more palatable and increases the digestibility of the hay or forage which may translate into

- increased energy
- significant weight gains
- increased milk production

SWEETCAKE 16NU

FEED SUPPLEMENT BLOCKS FOR THE LIVESTOCK INDUSTRY

• High Natural Protein • No Urea • Fat Enhanced
• Balanced Supplementation • Safe For All Livestock Classes

Sweetcake Advantages
- Aids in making the best use of your available forage
- Promotes a more even herd consumption, with 24-hour availability to all cattle
- Reduces labor to save you money and give you more time to make important management decisions
- Supplies much-needed vitamins and minerals that forage lacks to help your cattle perform to their genetic potential
- Supplies fat in most formulations to enhance energy intake

For Dairy

- Replacement heifers that grow out soundly and economically
- Body condition on dry cows so they can return to lactation, producing at the maximum potential
- Healthier herds, with essential trace minerals that help prevent metritis, retained placenta and other health problems
- Prompt re-breeding, thanks to essential nutrients

For Beef

- Stronger, healthier calves at birth
- Heavier Calves at weaning
- Cows that cycle better for improved conception rates
- Cows that milk better to raise a better calf

- AVAILABLE IN 200 LB. SIZE -

INVITATION FOR BIDS

The Berks County Conservation District is requesting bids for the construction of a Roofed Chicken Manure Storage Structure to be funded in part by the Chesapeake Bay Program. Construction of this project is expected to begin Sept. 2, 2003. The site is in Bethel Township, Berks County.

Prospective contractors will receive a bid package, which contains instructions to Bidders & Sample Contract Form, The Plans and a Bid Sheet.

Small and minority businesses and women's business enterprises are encouraged to respond to this invitation for bids. Our company is a State contractor and is committed to the principles of EQUAL OPPORTUNITY for all persons and AFFIRMATIVE ACTION. We have agreed to the Non-Discrimination Clause in our contract in accordance with the Commonwealth requirements.

The site showing date is scheduled for Tuesday, July 1 at 10:00 a.m. at the site.

Sealed bids will be accepted until the public bid opening at the Berks County Conservation District on Wednesday, July 16th at 1:00 p.m. in the 4-H Conference Room. To obtain a bid package contact:

FOR SALE BY OWNER
ONCE IN A LIFETIME OPPORTUNITY
1950's STYLE CAFE AND GARAGE

Unique cafe, garage, and home all in one. Cafe and garage is a newly constructed 3200 sq. ft. building built in 2001. The building is designed in the 50's style. Garage has a car lift and a wash/recon bay. Cafe has indoor seating for 41 and outside area for picnic tables. Cafe offers a full service menu with takeouts.

Included is a 2 story, 4 bedroom home and a recently renovated barn. House has a new well, roof, septic system and electric service. The property is fenced with a new hi-tensil, electric fence.

This established turnkey operation is located on 8 1/2 acres with over 1000 feet of creek frontage in a peaceful setting in beautiful Juniata County, Pa. The business would be ideal as a family operation. This is a great opportunity to live where you work. Alternately, the business could be operated and the house rented out for income. Has a lot of potential for growth such as a bed and breakfast and/or a campground by the creek. If you ever dreamed of owning your own business, don't miss this opportunity.

Owner is relocating. Will sacrifice all for $378,000. Please [illegible] leave message for an appointment to see this [illegible]

Northumberland Co. 2 farms with a total of 245 acres with approx. 230 tillable. There are 2 fine sets of buildings. Each has a 5 bedroom dwelling. The one dwelling has 5 fireplaces (not presently working), high ceilings with some built-in cupboards in walnut, original pine floors, and they were built in 1802 and approx. 1830. The one farm has 153 free stalls with a double 8 DeLaval parlor only a few years old. The other farm has 2 large buildings presently used for horses. These farms have great potential for your specific needs as either total beef, dairy, horses, or most any other opportunity you may desire. The present owners are the 5th generation of farmers and are moving to a large ranch in the southwest. I will give tours to and accept offers from serious buyers. You can move in as soon as there is another property being identified by the sellers.

NEW LISTING - Snyder Co. 304 veal barn built 10 years ago. This is a great opportunity for a neighboring farmer's son and/or daughter to have a part-time operation and be available to help out on the main farm. Auctioneer Guide

Home Reference Manual

Welcome to the premier issue of the Auctioneer Guide. Whether you are a novice auction-goer, a consistent bidder, or a seasoned auctioneer, you'll find articles that are informative and entertaining.

Auctioneering requires more than quick thinking and fast talking on sale day. For auctioneers, learning never ends. They must be knowledgeable about many different types of merchandise in order to garner the highest bids over the auction block. Business expertise, legal understanding, diligent marketing, and even personality play a role in success.

Read about the preliminaries required to conduct a successful sale, the weekend and evening work, and commitment to ethics. Did you know that auctioneers face greater risks to their vocal cords than most other professionals? That each auctioneer has a distinctive chant?

Auctioneers couldn't be successful without buyers. Some of the dedicated bidders make auction-going their livelihood, some count it as their hobby, or as their social outlet, and others search for needed items each week.

Learn how to become auction savvy, to find treasures, and secure bargains. Ever wonder what steps are required to become an auctioneer? Read about the only two auctioneering schools approved in the state of Pennsylvania, and when a two-year apprenticeship is required.

Now that you're set for auction success — check out Lancaster Farming's public sale listings regularly to find an auction that appeals to you.

Happy bidding!

Caple Teaches Auctioneering: She Wrote The Manual

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Auctioneers are certain to recognize Charlene Caple's name. Not only is she a fellow auctioneer, but is senior instructor for the auctioneering department of Harrisburg Area Community College (HACC), one of only two licensed auctioneering schools in the state. She even wrote the textbook for the course.

Her career definitely veered from the one she had planned, but Caple couldn't be happier.

She grew up in Carroll County, Maryland. After the family farm was sold, Caple and her husband wanted a job where they could work together as a team.

"Most of the auctions in my area were family run operations, and that appealed to us," she said.

Caple had always loved auctions and antiques. She did not know of any other female auctioneers, but thought it was a business in which she could do well.

Full of optimism, the couple attended the Missouri Auction School for two weeks in the mid-1970s. After the classes they were devastated to learn that, according to Pennsylvania law, they both needed to serve a two-year apprendiceship before becoming licensed.

It took them six months to find an auctioneer to sponsor them, but that was only the beginning. In the apprenticeship, Caple did everything — from clerking, helping to get ready for a sale, running, and even selling a little.

After two-and-a-half years, the couple took the state exams. For the next two years they did mostly charity auctions with the goal of getting their names established in the business. Caple also took real estate classes and worked part-time as a real estate agent in the Gettysburg, Adams, and York County area.

She and her husband also set up an auction facility in Gettysburg where they conducted weekly auctions. After running the business together for seven years, the Caples divorced in 1989.

In 1980-1981, a licensure act had been established to form an accredited auctioneer program at HACC. Prospective auctioneers now had a choice. They could take the required 20 credit hours of instruction course or serve the two-year apprenticeship.

Charlene Caple, senior instructor of Harrisburg Area Community College's Auctioneering Program, has been an auctioneer for 25 years in Pennsylvania, and is an appraiser for estates, antiques, and real estate.

HACC needed someone to teach a real estate class and asked Caple.

"Before that, I had never even thought of teaching," Caple said. To her surprise, she loved teaching and has been teaching ever since. In fact, Caple wrote the textbook for the program, which is accreditated and approved by the state board.

A survey of the auction industry helped to decide what curriculum needed to be established. While prospective auctioneers complete the 20 credits required, they learn not only to chant, but interpersonal skills.

Classes cover business law and how it applies to auctioneering, auction law, appraising of personal property, procure market business, how to prepare for an auction, and how to conduct auction. During the practicum, students spend at least 60 hours on the job training under the watchful eye of the instructors at HACC. The course totals 300 hours.

"My method of teaching is not just hype and motivation, although that is needed in the business," she said.

"But I teach how not to make mistakes. I made plenty of mistakes because I wasn't taught how to avoid them."

Caple believes students benefit from hearing about her mistakes and those of others. Students learn to avoid duplicating mistakes they hear about. For example, auctioneers can lose money if they don't cover details in a contract.

Caple teaches students to meet clients' needs first. She teaches ethics and legality. She believes students who chose the educational process to become an auctioneer have an advantage.

"Students are taught how to conduct auctioneering in a profitable manner and stay in business," she said.

Caple also continues her auctioneering and appraisal business and works as an independent auctioneer. She said, "'Not only do I love working as an auctioneer it also lends credibility to my teaching. It keeps me abreast of markets, and legal and ethical issues."

"I have come a long way, from being afraid to talk to anyone to the person who has a lot to say but still has a lot to learn.

"Auctioneering is my passion," Caple said of being part of the auction world. "'I love all aspects of it, not just calling, but also selling services to the clientel."

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Some people are masters at securing great finds at auctions, and others see an item they'd like to obtain, but by the time they decide to bid, the auctioneer has pounded his gravel and sold to the highest bidder.

For those who feel intimidated by the fast pace of an auctioneer's chant, or prefer a little bit more time to make a decision, Jimmy DeFilippis has some pointers.

Generally the bidder has put some research and thought into an item he or she wants to obtain. This enables the person to make a decision based on fact and not emotion when caught up in the flurry of last minute bidding.

DeFilippis follows a systematic approach when preparing for auctions.

Here are some of DeFilippis' helpful hints to help you become a savvy auction bidder.

• Obtain a copy of the auction bill. Examine the listing for items for which you might want to bid. Mark the items with a red pen. Determine the terms of sale and how you will pay: cash, check, or charge.

• On the day of the auction, take the marked copy, pen, and newspapers or paper bags in which to wrap your purchase to protect it from damage.

(Turn to Page 7)

Auction bidding for Jimmy DeFilippis isn't getting caught up in an emotional frenzy of bidding. Instead, he follows a systematic approach to locating items and buying at a reasonable price. DeFilippis shares his tips that can turn novices into auction savvy bidders.

Also take a lawn chair and dress appropriately for the weather.

• Provide you name, address, and telephone number to the auctioneer staff in order to obtain a number to qualify to bid on items.

• Check out the items on display, paying particular attention to those on which you'd like to bid. Check authenticity of items believed to be antiques. Check for flaws or damage.

• Set a price limit for the items on which you want to place a bid. If you plan to resell the item, this will influence the price you are willing to pay. If you are buying it for your personal use, you may be willing to pay slightly more.

• Select a place to sit or stand. Generally the side rear location will enable you to see how many people are bidding on the item you want.

• When the auction begins, listen to the auctioneer for clarity, speed, and dollar implements asked for. Most auctioneers will start with a select price. Don't be over anxious because generally no one bids on that price.

• Listen carefully to hear if the auctioneer mentions flaws or damage to items up for bid. Wait to see the nature of the first few bids. This will give you an idea of the other bidders' interest. At this point, if you are ready to bid, listen carefully. Remember the price limit you had set because it is very easy to get caught up emotionally in the bidding process.

• If you successfully get the final bid, write down the price you paid for the item to make sure this corresponds with the auctioneer's clerks record.

• If you are not interested in the next few items going up for bid, take your item to your vehicle. Lock your vehicle, because the auctioneer is not responsible for stolen items.

• Return to the auction to proceed on bidding on other items.

You probably will not be able to get every item you want, but have fun, be courteous, and enjoy the great American experience of securing an auction find.

Buying, Selling Real Estate Through Public Auctions

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU

LEOLA (Lancaster Co.) — A public auction only looks like a one-day event.

There is a lot of legwork, behind-the-scenes planning, preparation, and scheduling before that white tent goes up on sale day.

The auctioneering team of Robert E. and his sons Jeffrey and Michael Martin, along with their cousin Randy Ranck — all part of the Robert E. Martin and Sons Auctioneers team — take care of this preparation in addition to spending many of their weekends at benefit auctions, livestock sales, and their own auctions as they sell antiques, household goods, and real estate.

Evaluating The Property

The process begins when a property owner calls the auctioneers, who then travel to meet with the owner and evaluate the property.

At the initial meeting the auctioneers may give an estimate of what they believe the real estate may bring, which requires staying up to date on the real estate market.

By researching what other properties in the area are bringing and reading real estate magazines and the transfer of deeds in the local newspaper, they educate themselves on real estate value.

Also calling real estate agents — who also call the auctioneers to find out how much properties have brought at a sale — can help them determine a property's worth, according to Robert.

Additionally, Michael maintains a ledger of sale bills (an advertising flier which describes the property and/or the estate items that will be sold at the auction) that is helpful to flip back through.

"I take all of our sale bills and record the sale price of the property and file them in a notebook. It is a reference point we use when we meet with customers," he said.

The ledger offers a source to do comparisons "as far as townships, school districts, two bedrooms versus three bedrooms or two story versus ranchers," said Michael.

With this estimate from the auctioneers, and by doing their own research, most homeowners decide on a reserve bid. This number is a price that must be reached before the property is sold.

According to Ranck, "the seller doesn't limit the top end in case the buyer sees more value there than what the appraiser or even what the owner thinks it is worth — especially if its a unique property, which is really hard to appraise."

On sale day, the auctioneers stop the bidding on the real estate for a short recess.

This allows the homeowner to either put the sale into the auctioneers' hands for the house to be sold, or to decide not to sell the property.

Typically, when they evaluate a property, locale is first on their minds.

"Location, location, location is what sells real estate," said Jeffrey.

In addition, in recent years zoning has played an important role in the value of the property.

However the outside appearance of a house may also play a large part in property value, so the auctioneers often advise owners that such projects as edging or mulching flower beds may help to push the price upward.

The auctioneers do not recommend improvements inside the house — such as repainting the rooms — since the next owner will probably change the color scheme anyway, said Robert.

Also the number of bathrooms, a one- or two-car garage, or central air conditioning are factors that buyers will consider when deciding on the price that they will pay for a property.

Before The Auction

The time before the auction is a busy one for both seller and auctioneers.

"We ask for 6-8 weeks (advance notice) to advertise," said Jeffrey.

One of the jobs that must be completed before selling the estate is to list it, which is a written inventory of the highlights of the property. If household wares will be a part of the auction, they will also be listed.

This list becomes the sale bill, which, when placed in public venues, helps to bring buyers to the auction.

The sale bill also includes a scheduled time for buyers to go through the house. Usually two days of open houses are planned for each property. In addi-

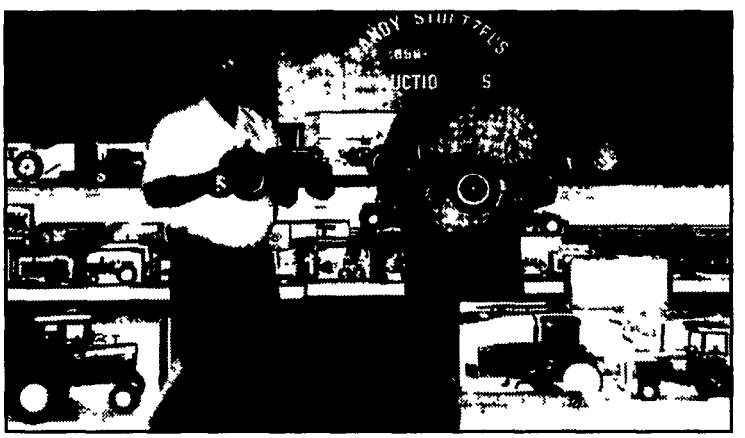
Toy collecting is no longer child's play

Auctioneers Richard Harry and Randy Stoltzfus are no strangers to collecting toys. Early in life both had interest in different kinds of toys· Richard in pressed steel and Randy in farm toys and Hess trucks. Through the common thread of auctioneering their paths would cross and lead to a business partnership. Harry's Auction started in early 1960's as a household & consignment auctions. After graduating in 1982 from Reppert Auctioneer School in Indiana, Richard took over the family business.

Randy started his career in an auction house at the early age of 12. After graduating high school, he continued his pursuit of being an auctioneer by attending Reisch Auction College in Mason City Iowa.



In the early 1980's Randy was employed by Harry's auction where he and Richard became good friends. After discovering their common interest of toy collecting they began traveling to toy shows in Ohio, Maryland, New York and Pennsylvania.

In 1988 the two men decided to start promoting toy sales at Harry's Auction. The first sale took place on May 12, 1988 and it consisted of 325 Winross® trucks. In 1995 Richard decided to close his auction house and the pair moved the toy auction to the Bareville Fire Hall in Leola, Pa. They have 10 employees and currently hold two to three sales a month September through June.

These days the items sold appeal to a wide range of interests. All types of toys can be found some of which include: farm toys, Hess®, trains, Nascar®, dolls, Ertl®, pressed steel, pedal cars, Winross®, and many, many other items. If you would like to consign 1 toy or a whole collection, it can either be dropped off or the auction staff can make arrangements to come to your home, carefully package your collection and transport to their spacious warehouse to be cataloged for upcoming sales.

Harry's also has a mailing list with over 400 active toy buyers. They also advertise locally, nationally and in many toy publications.

Richard and Randy pride themselves on serving both the buyer and the seller equally. Their passion for toys and auctioneering is evident, and it shows with their energy and enthusiasm. They were able to turn a mutual interest into a successful business.

Richard Harry can be reached at (717) 656-2436 or Randy Stoltzfus at (717) 656-8919.

tion, however, a buyer may schedule an appointment to see the property with the homeowner.

Other advertising includes digitally photographing the house to post on the website, www.remartinauctions.com. The site has been helpful to advertise the properties to not only local but also out-of-state buyers.

Michael and his wife, Marilyn, Strasburg, take care of photographing and posting the pictures and maintaining the website.

"The website is a way of communicating with our public — making it easy for them," he said. Eventually, he would like to have the entire sale bill available online and offer web users the ability to click and see pictures of items of special interest.

Judging by the e-mails and calls from out-of-state, the web has had far-reaching success, said Michael.

A website archive started this year is useful for people wanting to see sale price of a property similar to their own, to see what their house might be worth, or seeing what a property went for that they may have been interested in, said Michael. "People just want to be in the know."

Advantages

Public auctions offer several benefits to both the buyer and the seller, according to the auctioneers.

Since the sale is open and public, it eliminates any closed door transactions.

According to Ranck, "an auction makes it all happen in a short amount of time — it's do or die. The buyer knows at the end whether they're going to get it or not, so it shortens the negotiation time.

"That's why estates are sold through public auctions. It is cut and dry because people don't have time to dicker back and forth. It turns real estate into cash so the seller can move on."

Additionally, since the seller is almost assured of a sale date, they can count on gaining interest on the cash from the sale, added Ranck.

Also the seller does not have to worry about maintaining the property, keeping the heat on, etc., for several months while they wait for the estate to sell, according to Ranck.

Because an auction is over by the end of the day, it brings interested buyers to a point of decision, which eliminates drawn-out negotiations.

Buyers are usually required to have a 10 percent deposit on the day of the sale, which commits them to the property purchase.

Advantages for the seller, according to Ranck, are that "it brings all interested bidders together at one time — in other words, the people that have done their homework beforehand.

"The bidders come knowing that they have to have their financing checked out and come prepared to buy and not speculate.

"Normally the seller is satisfied because they know all the interested parties would have made themselves known or at least been there," said Ranck.

One reason a seller may be attracted to the option of marketing through public auction is that "the property goes for real market value because the public is determining the value of that property," Jeffrey said.

This is also an advantage to the buyer, who can, before the property is sold, decide specifically how much they would pay for the estate.

As for the buyer, "it makes the buyer feel good because they know that someone else would pay just a little bit less," said Robert.

An additional benefit to the seller would be that an auction creates an atmosphere of competition among buyers which may increase the sale price.

An auction generally requires the buyer to pay both transfer taxes, which translates into a one percent savings to the seller.

An advantage for both buyer and seller is that they would pay 1-2 percent of the sale price to the auctioneer, as compared to the higher percentages required by realtors.

Buyers of auction properties enjoy the benefits of having the buying and closing dates are already established.

No Longer Seasonal

Public auctions used to be more of a springtime event, but with increasing popularity with not only the farming but also the urban community, auctions are no longer seasonal, according to Jeffrey.

Besides conducting auctions over the weekends and throughout the week, the team works at an antique auction on holidays, "which helps break up the farming," said Jeffrey. "I still enjoy sitting on a tractor, but it's good to get out and work with the public," he said.

Beginning A Career

In 1951 Robert Martin began his career as an apprentice under auctioneer Frank Steller. Before that, however, he began calling bids at a local fundraiser auction — experience which helped lead him toward getting his auctioneer license and beginning his career in earnest.

Now with 45 years of experience auctioneering in mostly the southeastern Pennsylvania area, he has had several apprentices that have learned from him, including two of his sons.

He and his wife, Janet, have four married children and 10 grandchildren.

After hearing his father auctioneering, Jeffrey began calling bids at age 16. He and his wife Anne have three children.

Michael also began auctioneering at an early age but moved into the retail flower businss for 20 years. He and Marilyn have two children and rejoined the team in 1996.

Randy Ranck, Lancaster, graduated from an auction school in Iowa in 1989 and has been auctioneering with the Martin team since then. He is joined by his wife, Pat, and two children.

Robert and Jeffrey operate the home farm and an additional farm, taking care of a 50-head dairy on 54 acres and 60 head of beef cattle and raising their own replacement heifers on 52 acres.

New York State Fair Plans Cheese Auction

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Four 40-pound blocks of Gold Medal cheese produced in New York State will be sold at auction on Dairy Day at the N. Y. State Fair, Aug. 25.

The cheese will be donated by the New York State Cheese Manufacturers Association. Bruce Krupke, chairman of the New York State Fair Dairy Building Task Force, is soliciting bids from retail and commercial establishments resulting in excellent publicity for the highest bidder. The highest bids in the past ranged from $500 to $1,000 by bidders who included restaurants, hotels, utilities, and the Ag Radio Network.

Prior to the sale of the Gold Medal cheese blocks, a number of 2½ pound and 5 pound packages of aged cheddar cheese will be auctioned.

The Cheese Manufacturers Association is also donating for auction a number of party baskets that will include a variety of cheese and other products from throughout the New York State. Past high bids for these baskets ranged from $75 to $300.

For those who cannot attend the sale, written bids may be submitted by mail. For more information, call Bruce W. Krupke at (315) 452-6455.

How To Select An Auctioneer

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Need the services of an auctioneer? Confused on who to select from the hundreds listed?

"Selecting the right auctioneer is a bit like choosing a dentist," said Jay Ziegler, president-elect of the Pennsylvania Auctioneer Association (PAA). "Ask your friends and neighbors who they like."

Some auctioneers specialize in real estate, some in antiques, some in household items, real estate, industrial, machinery, or estate sales. Some are general auctioneers, which mean they do a bit of everything. Some auctioneers are more knowlegeable about antiques and will recognize values to advertise. They also know prospective buyers to contact.

Zeigler recommends checking with several auctioneers. He said, "Services vary. Rates vary."

"Everyone has his own rates, and it's hard to compare them," said Harry Bachman, Lebanon County auctioneer.

Some auctioneers are set up to accept buyers' credit cards, others accept cash and in-state checks only.

Some auctioneers will list your items on their Websites. If that is important to you, than you'll want to select an auctioneer who does that," Ziegler said. "If it isn't important to you, you may want to select another auctioneer."

Ask lots of questions. "How will the auctioneer advertise your sale?" "Who pays for advertising?"

"An auctioneer doesn't get every job he is contacted about doing," Ziegler said. "It's up to the auctioneer firm to persuade the client that they offer the best services for the price."

It's also important to check an auctioneer's track record. What kind of program does he offer for selling real estate?

Another reliable guide is to check the PAA Website in Pennsylvania or the National Auctioneers Association Website where member auctioneers are listed. Members have already been researched by the PAA and are held accountable to its code of ethics. The PAA Website is www.paaonline.org. The NAA Website is www.auctioneers.org.

"Guy stuff" is what Bud Herr collects. He said, "I'm a motorhead and been into mechanics all my life." He finds that what he likes, so do a lot of other guys.

Male Baby Boomers Drive Market For 'Childhood Memories'

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Oil cans, tools, gas pumps, and advertising signs are some of the items that make Bud Herr's heart pump faster.

"I'm a motorhead. I've been into mechanics all my life," Herr said.

Not only does Herr like "guy stuff," so do a lot of other men who frequent auctions, sales, and shops in search of items they remember seeing during their childhoods.

"Baby boomers are what's driving this market," Herr said. "The real old stuff isn't going as well as it used to, but the stuff from the 1930s-1950s is what's in demand. Guys want stuff that reminds them of their childhoods. That starts them reminiscing. . . ."

So does Herr. His parents operated an Amoco gas station in Annville during the 1950s.

"My dad sold out in 1958 for $14,000. When I look at a photo taken of the garage, I can see the value of the signs alone are worth more than the price the whole place brought in 1958," Herr said.

Fortunately, Herr managed to keep the gas pumps.

He and his wife, Sidney, fill a booth with their finds at Crossroads Antique Mall, 825 Cocoa Ave., Hershey.

Because he collects the same type of items he sells, things become a bit frustrating at times. Occasionally he sells items he regrets such as a hunting pocket knife that he took to a show just to display, not sale.

"Someone asked me how much I'd sell the knife for. I named a high price, never expecting he'd take it, but he pulled the cash out of his pocket and I've regretted it ever since," Herr said.

Learn Auctioneering Terminology

•ABSENTEE BID - A procedure which allows a bidder to participate in the bidding process without being physically present. A person submits a written or oral bid prior to the auction on the top price he or she will pay for an item or property.

•ABSOLUTE AUCTION - An auction where the property is sold to the highest qualified bidder with no limiting conditions or amount. The seller may not bid personally or through an agent. Also known as an auction without reserve.

•ACCOUNTING OF SALE - A report issued to the seller by the auctioneer detailing the financial aspects of the auction.

•AGENT - A person authorized to act for or in the place of another individual or entity.

•APPRAISAL - The act or process of estimating the value applied to an item or property.

•APPRENTICE AUCTIONEER - An auctioneer in training under the supervision of a licensed or experienced auctioneer.

•AS IS - Selling an item or property without warranties as to the condition. Phrase often used is caveat emptor meaning let buyer beware.

•AUCTION - A method of selling items or property through open and competitive bidding.

•AUCTION BLOCK - The podium or raised platform where the auctioneer stands while conducting the auction. "Placing (an item) on the auction block" means to sell something at auction.

•AUCTION LISTING AGREEMENT - A contract executed by the auctioneer and the seller which authorizes the auctioneer to conduct the auction and sets out the terms of the agreement and the rights and responsibilities of each party.

•AUCTION MARKETER - An individual who contracts with sellers for the auction method of marketing property. In the case of real property, he or she may not actually conduct the sale but is directly responsible for all aspects of marketing the property.

•AUCTION MARKETING - The method of marketing real property utilizing the auction method of sale.

•AUCTION MARKETING INSTITUTE - International association founded in 1976 which awards the professional designations CAI, GPPA and AARE to properly qualified auctioneers through education, experience, and adherence to a strict code of ethics and standards of practice.

•AUCTION PLAN - The plan for pre-auction, auction day and post auction activities.

•AUCTION PRICE -The price of an object or property obtained through the auction method of marketing.

•AUCTION VALUE - The price which a particular item or property brings in open competitive bidding at public auction.

•AUCTION WITH RESERVE - An auction in which the seller or his agent reserves the right to accept or decline any and all bids. A minimum acceptable price may or may not be disclosed and the seller reserves the right to accept or decline any bid within a specified time.

•AUCTION WITHOUT RESERVE - See Absolute Auction.

•AUCTIONEER - The person whom the seller engages to direct, conduct, or be responsible for a sale by auction. This person may or may not actually call the auction.

•AUCTIONEER SUBCONTRACTOR - An auctioneer hired by the principal auctioneer.

•BALLROOM AUCTION - An auction of property conducted in a meeting room facility.

•BANK LETTER OF CREDIT - A letter from a bank certifying that a named person is worthy of a given level of credit. Often requested from prospective bidders or buyers who are not paying with currency at auctions.

•BID - A prospective buyer's indication or offer of a price he or she will pay to purchase property at auction. Bids are usually in standardized increments established by the auctioneer.

•BID ACKNOWLEDGMENT - A form executed by the high bidder confirming and acknowledging the bidder's identify, the bid price and the description of the property. Also known as Memorandum.

•BID ASSISTANTS - Individuals who are positioned throughout the attendees at the auction to assist the auctioneer, spot bidders and assist

PAA President Says Auctioneering Is In His Blood

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

WAYNESBURG (Greene Co.) — The head of the Pennsylvania Auctioneers Association never attended auctioneering school, but he can call bids with the best of them. At one time, Clayton placed second in a state bidding competition, and also in the top 10 for several years.

Clayton said of his auctioneer start, "Pennsylvania did not require auctioneering school at that time; instead, I was required to take a test."

He was also required to serve as an apprentice for two years. It's no easy feat to acquire an apprenticeship, but Clayton said he was in the right place at the right time.

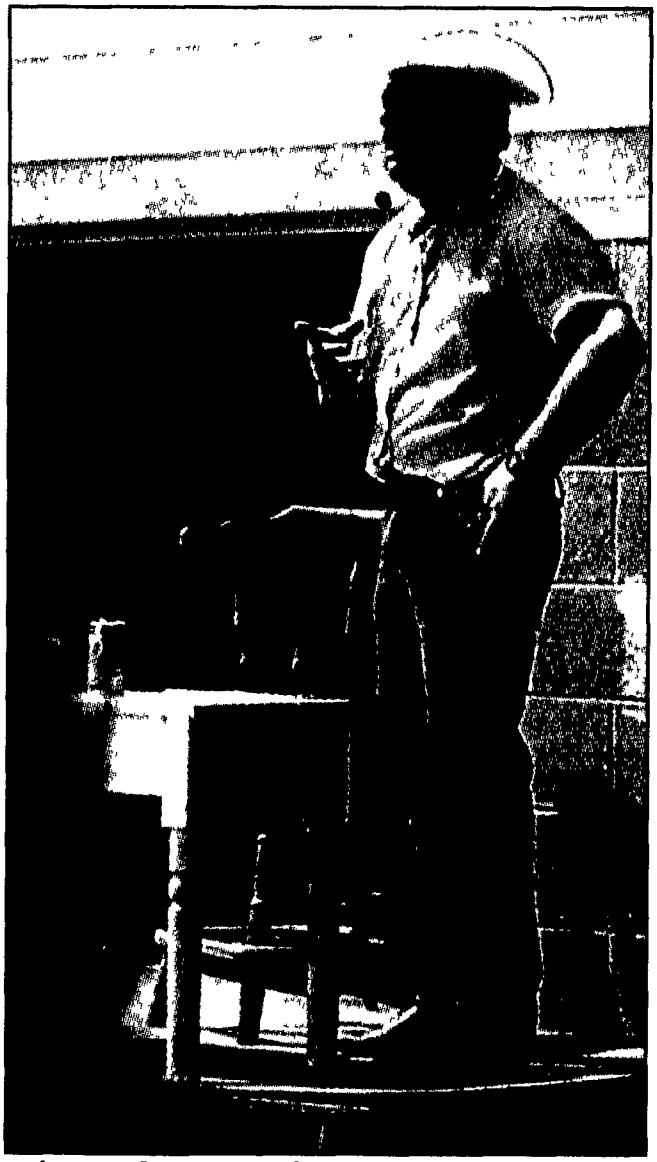
In 1965, he was sitting on a porch listening to an auctioneer calling bids. The auctioneer had a coughing spasm. Clayton offered to call for him while the auctioneer rested his voice, and ended up working for him 10 years. In 1967, Clayton received his auctioneer license.

Growing up, Clayton attended lots of auctions with his father and grandfather. As a teen-ager, Clayton took a test that revealed he has an aptitude for auctioneering. That clinched it. Clayton never looked back.

He said, "In Greene County, real estate auctions are not as popular as in Lancaster County. Antiques are big."

Clayton said, "I had the good fortune to sell a Boughner crock that was late 1800s. I expected it would go between $5,000-$8,000. It sold for $18,000. I got a reputation for selling."

But having surprises like those "are harder to come by today," Clayton said. Families today are better educated about what is valuable. They tend to keep valuable pieces rather than sell.



James Clayton believes people considering an auctioneering career should have an outgoing personality, pleasant demeanor, high, honest integrity, good ethics, and good common sense.

Supply and demand determine how high bids go at auctions.

Over the years, Clayton has watched the antiques market change. He said, "People want 1940-1950s chrome dinette sets. They didn't used to get a bid, but today people try to buy back their childhoods. People buy what they remember. A set of chairs that sold for 35 cents a few years ago now bring $150 a piece.'

Although many items are commanding higher dollar amounts, Clayton believes things need to be kept in perspective. He said, "People make more money, and they spend more."

Auctions, he believes, appeal to competitive crowds. He said, "It's supply and demand. If someone else wants it, others have a tendancy to want it, too."

For his own collecting, Clayton said, "I lean toward furniture, but my house is full."

Clayton operates an auction house where he conducts sales once or twice a month. His auction specialties include household furnishings, antiques, collectibles, tools, and miscellaneous auctions.

"If I don't have an auction, I'm at one. You learn by what you see, and I do a lot of reading to learn to recognize value," he said.

He also obtained a West Virginia license. He said, "You need a license for every state where you serve as an auctioneer."

Clayton is an active member of Jefferson Baptist Church, has served six years with the National Guard, and is a licensed realtor. He works as a histology technician for Greene County Memorial Hospital, Waynesburg.

He has a son who is a state trooper, and who also helps at auctions. A daughter who has a nursing degree used to help him with the auctions, but is too busy. He has three grandchildren.

Clayton believes people considering an auctioneering career should have an outgoing personality, pleasant demeanor, high, honest integrity, good ethics, and good common sense.

"I love it. It's in my blood," Clayton said of auctioneering.

Ziegler Defies Guidance To Follow Dream

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Jay Ziegler, president-elect of the Pennsylvania Auctioneers Association (PAA), believes in following dreams when selecting a career.

Following a dream unfolded into reality for Ziegler, who with his wife Pat owns an auction house and an antiques mall in the Hershey area.

Ziegler grew up on a Pennsylvania farm. His parents operated an antique shop and frequented auctions on weekends. Intrigued, Ziegler developed an interest in auctioneering and antiques collecting. He began buying and selling antiques at a young age.

His high school counselor tried to steer him toward earning a degree from a four year college. But Ziegler persisted in obtaining an auctioneer's license.

"My guidance counselor tried to talk me out of it," Ziegler said. "But I'm glad I didn't listen."

"One thing led to another," Ziegler said. In his first year out of high school, Ziegler managed a 10,000-square-feet shop in Hershey. After two years he started an antique mall, which had 150 dealers.

After attending an auctioneering school that is no longer in business, Ziegler obtained his auctioneer's license and bought real estate, where he could conduct weekly auctions.

After 19 years, he sold the first antique mall business he had developed. His wife is in charge of Ziegler's in the Country, a 100-dealer antique mall they established in 1987.

Ziegler focuses on real estate and commercial auctions. His auction firm handles different commodities. His wife runs the antique mall.

When antiques are to be auctioned, Ziegler turns over the responsibility to one of the three full-time auctioneers on his staff, who auction under his name, Ziegler Auction Company Limited.

Ziegler Defies

"Limited" is the English version of corporation. Of selecting to use Limited in place of corporation, Ziegler said, "I've always been a bit different."

Pennsylvania's laws pertaining to auctioneering are some of toughest in the nation. The state also has many auctioneers, and the requirements are to protect the public and the auction business, Ziegler said.

Lessons Ziegler passes on to prospective auctioneers include the following:

• Success is based on reputation. It is important to keep a clean and honest reputation. In the beginning, many people approach novice auctioneers and ask them to do unethical things. People want to buy own things back at auctions, a violation of law. Sometimes they want to run up price.

Many laws govern products, and it's difficult to keep on top.

Ziegler said, "It's important to be a member of

Jay Ziegler, president-elect of Pennsylvania Auctioneers Assoction, has found success in auctioneering. Ziegler does not regret defying his high school guidance counselor's advice to attend college instead of auctioneering school.

PAA to keep on top of changing laws. Some auctioneers make mistakes from misinformation. That is why it's important to keep informed through PAA membership."

Sometimes people believe they have something really valuable when it isn't. After watching a segment of the Antiques Roadshow or another antiques program, Ziegler said, people often believe they have one of the items shown. Instead, the item is often different or the quality isn't there.

Sometimes the client is skeptical of Ziegler's assessment of an item. "If they are skeptical, I tell them to check elsewhere," Ziegler said.

Sometimes an item is an unexpected treasure. One of these happened about two to three years ago. Ziegler said an advertising salesman was visiting his shop and mentioned he had a Fraktur that had been handed down through the family.

"It turned out to be a really good one, and sold for $120,000," Ziegler said.

But the price wasn't merely a lucky day. Ziegler said he did a lot of phone calling to people and businesses that he knew who collect frakturs.

Good auctioneers will market rare and unusual items in a way that attracts competitive bidding.

"Real estate auctioning is a growing trend," Ziegler said. "But on-site auctions are not as common as they were at one time."

Ziegler said the reason is logistics. It isn't as safe. He believes items brought to auction houses to be sold with items from several people works out better.

He conducts weekly auctions selling general merchandise in a 7,000-square-foot building with three different auction rooms.

Ziegler has been in the auction business for more than 20 years. He believes successful auctioneering requires ongoing education. He takes continuing education courses, attends conferences, seminars, and workshops conducted by auctioneering groups, historical foundations, and other relevant groups.

To become an auctioneer today compared to the 1980s is easier in some ways and harder than others, Ziegler said. "It cost more money because you need to buy more equipment and you need to have a Website in order to be professional," he said.

Ziegler does not discourage potential auctioneers from securing a college education, which he believes is beneficial especially in handling the business end of auctioneering. "I had to learn everything by experience."

Ziegler gives this advice to everyone who is deciding upon a career choice.

"Follow your dreams is the best advice I can give. It worked for me," he said.

duly licensed auctioneer. However, that was easier said than done and difficult, to say the least. The apprenticeship was to be a learning position. The sponsoring auctioneer is to teach the apprentice. In addition, the apprentice, after serving two years of apprenticeship, had to pass a state exam.

There were several "auction schools" across the country where one could go to learn the chant, salesmanship, and the lingo (mostly of the livestock industry), most of which were two weeks in duration. Again, however, in the state of Pennsylvania, one still had to serve the two-year apprenticeship and sit for the state exam.

The Pennsylvania Auctioneer's Association enlisted the aid of the Harrisburg Area Community College to develop a curriculum in education for auctioneering. First a survey was done to appraise what tasks and duties were necessary to conduct an auction, what legal obligations and responsibilities an auctioneer needed to understand regarding laws of agency, contracts, and sales to conduct an auction, and how much practical experience should/must/would an individual need to become a licensed auctioneer versus a two-year apprenticeship.

The curriculum was set up as a 300-hour, 20-credit program. A new license law for Pennsylvania Auctioneers was also enacted at that time.

One can still serve a two-year apprenticeship and take the state exam or can enroll in the program at the Harrisburg Area Community College or at the Reading Area Community College.

HACC offers classes totalling 20 credits or 15 credits in the weekend program. The total is 300 classroom hours.

The makeup of the students attending the classes is 75 percent male with an average age of 35 years. They come from all over the state with professional and educational backgrounds, including engineers, doctors, lawyers, car dealers, surveyors, factory workers, farmers, etc.

The average age of the female student is 28. They too come from all over the state with backgrounds, including nursing, military, real estate brokers/sales, housewives, dealers, collectors, and teachers.

The auctioneer of today must be prepared to meet the challenges of volatile and changing markets. The market of buyers and sellers has changed from a negative position to a positive position of buying and selling as a viable profession. The average buyers of today are not collectors but dealer/investors. The buyers at most auctions 20 plus years ago bought goods for functional use or to add to a collection. On an average, the dollar volume of a typical personal property auction today is three times higher than 20 years ago and the typical real estate auction has more than tripled. In some areas it is much higher.

The professional auctioneer in today's world absolutely needs to understand legal and ethical obligations and responsibilities to seller and buyers.

The majority of auction business or companies are family owned and operated. In more than a few, they are family oriented from three or more generations.

Here is a listing of courses offered by HACC:

AUCTIONEERING COURSES

- Auctioneering 101 - Audience Communication

The principles and techniques of developing effective interpersonal communication with individuals, groups, and audiences. The auctioneer's chant will be taught.

- Auctioneering 102 - Procurement and Appraisal of Merchandise I

The principles of obtaining merchandise for the auction and appraisal will be applied to antiques, modern household goods, farm equipment, heavy equipment, automobiles, and collectibles.

- Auctioneering 103 - Procurement and Appraisal of Merchandise II

The principles of obtaining merchandise for the auction and appraisal as applied to real estate, livestock, coins, jewelry, and art.

- Auctioneering 104 - Auctioneering Law

An examination of the Pennsylvania Commonwealth Law Code regulating auctioneers and auctioneering. The federal and state statues governing the operation of all phases of auctioneering are studied.

- Auctioneering 105 - Preparation for the Auction

The techniques, procedures, and principles necessary to accomplish the preparation for an auction.

- Auctioneering 106 - The Auction

The principles, techniques, and procedures necessary to conduct and conclude an auction. Prerequisite: Auctioneering 105.

- Auctioneering 202 - Practicum in Auctioneering (Conducting an Auction)

Sixty hours of practical, on-the-job experience with licensed auctioneers under College supervision. Seminars are conducted to discuss the practical and theoretical problems encountered by the students. Prerequisite: Permission of the program coordinator.

Auctioneer Answers Real Estate Questions

Questions are answered by guest auctioneer Robert Zogorski of RealPro Commercial.

Last year, my husband died of a heart attack. He and I ran an agribusiness, which included a showroom and warehouse on 12 acres of commercial land. I hired an auctioneer who sold the business inventory, equipment, and real estate at an "absolute" auction.

The auctioneer did a good job with the inventory and equipment, but very few buyers showed up for the real estate and the property sold for a low price.

Is selling commercial real estate different than selling other property and could a "reserve price" have been used for selling it?

Similar to commercial real estate brokerage, the accelerated marketing of commercial property at public auction is a specialization. Buyers are typically more sophisticated, focused on financial returns, and travel farther. Each of the various types of commercial property has its own marketing nuances and specialized terminology. Understanding the issues that affect value is also important when dealing with commercial property. It is important that the auctioneer have the professional background needed to analyze commercial real estate and target market it to prospective buyers as part of a comprehensive marketing campaign. Keep in mind that about 90 percent of the work involved in selling real estate at auction is done prior to the actual auction. A "reserve price" could have been used to ensure a fair selling price. An auctioneer who also possessed valuation skills would have been helpful in establishing a reasonable "reserve price" for your property.

My partner and I are dissolving our business and we are planning to sell our heavy equipment garage and land at public auction. Our accountant advised us to choose an auctioneer who is also a licensed real estate broker. Does an auctioneer need to be a licensed real estate broker to sell real estate at public auction?

The answer depends on the state law of where the real estate is being sold. In many states, including Pennsylvania, an auctioneer is not legally permitted to negotiate the sale of real estate after the actual auction has occurred unless the auctioneer is also a licensed real estate broker. However, an auctioneer is legally permitted to sell real estate at a public auction. In some instances, typically when a reserve price was not met during the auction, negotiations between the highest bidders and the seller will occur after the auction. In those cases, the auctioneer must also be a licensed real estate broker to conduct the negotiations or to prepare real estate contracts.

I am retired and own a farm that I leased to my neighbor for five years. There are three more years left on the lease and my wife and I have decided that we would like to sell the farm at auction. What do we need to do to terminate the lease, or does it automatically end when we sell the farm?

Unless the lease has a provision allowing you to terminate it early, you are probably locked into the remaining term of the lease — three years. Selling the farm will not terminate the lease. In that case, the buyer would be purchasing the farm subject to the lease. The interest you would be selling is called the "leased fee estate" and the one your neighbor/tenant holds is called the "leasehold estate." If sold, the buyer would be buying a leased fee interest in your property and he or she would need to abide by the terms of the lease.

Auctioneers Develop Personable Chants

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — To the untrained ear, listening to the chant of an auctioneer may sound like an indecipherable string of words.

But it should not.

The audience should be able to easily decipher the chant so that they know exactly how much is being bid.

According to David Conley, auctioneer for Blaine Rentzel in York, auctioneer bidding contests are conducted periodically. Auctioneers are judged on their chant style - the flow of words between the dollars.

For example, "I bid seven will you go eight." Or, "I give seven will you make it eight," or similar phases.

"It's really up to what words the auctioneer feels comfortable using. When I first started, Blaine gave me a few suggestions that I tried. I settled on a particular style, but sometimes just to be interesting, I'll try something different," Conley said.

In the bidding contest, auctioneers are also judged on their ability to use a megaphone, appearance, and salesmanship.

"Salesmanship is how one describes the item, how desirable that makes the item appear so that many will bid, not just one person," Conley said.

Helping elicit laughter from the audience often adds to auction-attendance appeal.

"Instead of pacing back and forth on the platform, we like to make eye contact with everyone in the audience," Conley said. "Pointing one finger at a person is considered offensive."

After a person develops a trained ear, he or she will recognize that all auctioneers do not chant alike.

"Every auctioneer develops his or her own style," Conley said.

Harry Bachman, Lebanon auctioneer for 35 years, said, "I can stand in the back of a sale with my eyes closed and tell you who the auctioneer is by the sound of the chant. Each one is unique."

Auctioneers Risk Voice Damage Unless Precautions Followed

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — One of the most valuable resources an auctioneer has is a voice. Protecting that voice is essential to a long, successful career.

Peter Americo, speech pathologist from Charleston, W. Va., often works with auctioneers to help them prevent voice damage or with voice rehabilitation.

"Auctioneers use their voices vigorously in less than optimal environments," Americo said.

Speaking in a loud and rapid voice depletes breath pressure. According to Americo, an auctioneer may speak on residual air while bid calling. This squeezes the vocal cords tightly and the irritation can lead to vocal nodules and make them susceptible to various larynx problems.

Americo compares voice care to car care. "The piston head and cylinder need a thin coating of oil for a car to operate properly. If kept oiled, the car can run a long time. Likewise, a thin coating of mucous is needed on vocal cords. You can speak for a long time if that is kept intact."

Auctioneers often speak loudly and rapidly in order to be heard above the noise of a crowd. This strains the voice. If auctioneers continue to talk after straining their voices, the vocal cords become irritated. Their voices may sound hoarse. Laryngitis occurs when the vocal cords become so swollen and thick they cannot produce sound.

Persistent hoarseness or breathiness often signals a voice disorder. Frequent throat clearing can cause a vicious circle. Vocal cords become dry and secretions thick, which irritate the vocal cords.

"Discipline yourself to make sure you are not subconsciously clearing your throat out of habit," Americo said.

Dry and windy conditions also irritate the throat. Auctioneers often work in dusty surroundings, especially at livestock sales.

"A person who has allergies to dust is really in trouble. Antihistamines used to treat allergies will dry up vocal tissues," Americo said.

Comprehensive Solutions for Results that Count

❑ Appraisals ❑ Auctions ❑ Asset Management

Why American?

Relationships built on trust.

American is an established, well-respected leader in valuation and disposition services, specializing in appraisals, inspections, liquidations and asset management. For more than 30 years, our professionals have provided clients with exceptional market expertise and technical proficiency. We valuate over $1 Billion in assets every year, and offer a comprehensive array of recovery solutions to the legal and financial communities, serving as a trusted partner to financial institutions, attorneys, accountants and bankruptcy trustees. We tailor our services to suit the unique needs of our clients, who continue to turn to American for four reasons: Honesty. Integrity. Confidentiality. Cost-Effective, Exceptional Results.

The American Team

Your Advantage Every Step of the Way.

We hold senior accreditations with such major professional groups as the American Society of Appraisers (ASA), the oldest and largest multi-disciplinary professional appraisal organization in the world, and The Equipment Appraisers Association of North America (EAANA), whose members comprise an elite presence within the machinery and equipment appraisal market. All appraisals performed by American are compliant with the Uniform Standards of Professional Appraisals Practice (USPAP), the gold standard of the industry. Our full credentials are available on our website or at your request.

Our staff's wide range of technical competencies and industry expertise qualify us to serve as expert witnesses in state and federal courts, and in U.S. Bankruptcy Courts, and we have extensive experience as court-appointed Chapter 7 and 11 trustees. Our prudent project management provides continuous, effective monitoring of the process to assure that all ongoing requirements are met. We are able to arrange to operate businesses until buyers are located, and we can also provide advisory and management services for companies in Chapter 7 or 11.

What We Do

A Comprehensive Approach.

American will combine three areas of expertise—appraisals, liquidations and asset management—to help you best achieve your goals, or, if appropriate, we will create a custom program in consultation with you. You can count on receiving from us accurate and detailed evaluations, quick turnaround and a favorable return.

Put Us To Work For You

Get the Best Possible Outcome for Your Situation.

Please ask our full-time auctioneers and liquidation specialists to provide a complimentary assessment of your project, recommend the most appropriate method of sale, determine the best target market, and implement effective strategies to assure a successful property disposition—open cry auctions, sealed bid sales, private treaty sales, whichever will bring you the highest return.

Auctioneers Risk Voice Damage

To counteract the problems from this situation, Americo recommends investing in a personal steamer set up in a secluded room at the auction, which would enable the auctioneer to take a break at regular intervals and breath in the steam.

Americo said the smallest muscles in the body are in the voice box. Stress changes the sound of a voice. It is important to learn to speak in a relaxed voice.

"If the voice is hoarse for 7-10 days, one should see a throat specialist. There is a tendency to wait too long when hoarse, which can cause scarring and permanent voice problems," Americo said.

Americo said that auctioneers usually require only one session with him to learn voice relaxation principles.

Auctioneers can clearly develop the habit of using false vocal cords. Americo teaches techniques to choosing the right vocal cords.

"If properly trained, auctioneers can learn to project their voices without shouting. To make your voice heard in noisy situations, tighten your stomach muscles, not those in your throat and neck," Americo said.

Americo suggests the following techniques to enable auctioneers to speak longer and more effectively:

- Stretch shoulder, neck, and facial muscles periodically.
- Don't try to speak without adequate air. Renew your breath often, and take slow, deep breaths between pauses.
- Keep vocal folds moist by drinking plenty of water. Avoid caffeine and alcohol because they causes dehydration.
- Be careful what you eat. Frequent heartburn and a sour taste in your mouth may mean stomach acids are spilling over into your larynx. Avoid spicy and acidic foods. Stop late-night eating to help eliminate symptoms.

"An auctioneer's voice is a personal asset. He must learn to conserve and preserve it," Americo said.

For more information on voice care, contact Americo by calling (800) 346-2272.

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — No doubt about it — many auctioneers establish a following — people who follow them from sale to sale.

Auctioneer fans often prefer the chant of the one they follow. Or they attend an auctioneer's sales because they trust him or her.

If the auctioneer called a good sale for them or someone they know, a feeling of loyalty often develops.

Although there may be 10 auctions to select from on a Saturday, some fans will attend the one conducted by his or favorite auctioneer regardless of what is being sold.

But not every auction-goer follows an auctioneer. Some auction-goers carefully search out sale bills looking for specific items. These people choose the auction for its wares, not for the auctioneer personalities.

But even these people usually have a favorite auctioneer, the one they may ask to notify them whenever certain items are to be auctioned.

Some people attend auctions every week. It's their hobby, entertainment, or recreation. They like to socialize with other regular attenders.

Merle Eberly of Horning Farm Agency Auction Services said there is a core group that attends his Attending an auction is a hobby for many people. It's a place to relax, be entertained, and hopefully obtain a bargain. Regular auction goers often develop a loyalty to an auctioneer and socialize with other auction attendees.

auctions. "Some are antique dealers who consider attending auctions as part of their business. Others consider it a hobby or entertainment."

Some people even develop a craving for food sold at the auctions. Chicken corn soup, ham and bean soup, hamburgers, and hot dogs with kraut are favorite auction fare. The food is usually prepared by volunteers who sell food to raise money for fire companies and other nonprofit organizations.

A rapport of sorts often develops among regular auction-goers. Sometimes they try to outbid each other or share information.

Auctions are often places frequented by those who resell items at shops or over the Internet.

In Lancaster County, sales are often patronized by Amish and Mennonites. But other groups are also well represented.

Professionals often view auctions as a place to unwind and sit awhile in the hopes of capturing a rare antique.

Although some people attend auctions weekly, others may attend monthly or even rarely.

Some of the same people attend annual benefit auctions, not so much from needing an item but from wanting to help support a cause in which they believe.

Auctioneering students at Harrisburg Area Community College conduct a charity auction as part of class curriculum.

What Is The Pennsylvania Auctioneers Association?

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

ELYSBURG (Northumberland Co.) — The Pennsylvania Auctioneers Association (PAA) was formed more than 50 years ago to strengthen the auction market.

The purpose is to speak with one voice to the auctioneer industry across Pennsylvania, to the public, and to government agencies. The PAA also offers tools to help auctioneers to make sound and profitable decisions.

The executive committee includes James A. Clayton, president; Jay Ziegler, president-elect; Harry Bachman, vice president; and Jerry Schwenk, treasurer.

Annual dues are $75.

Bachman believes the cost is well worth it. He said, "PAA conventions and seminars offer learning experiences. It's a good place to mingle with other auctioneers all over the state. There is no better place to ask (auctioneers): how did you handle this? Or to hear first-hand experiences about what works and what doesn't work for successful auctioneering."

After serving as vice president, Bachman will serve as president-elect and then as president of PAA in 2005. That's the same year the National Convention will be conducted in Pittsburgh, in July.

More than 1,000 people generally attend the annual convention, which runs one week.

PAA provides continuing education credits for licensing in other states and Auction Marketing Institute certification.

Educational seminars and opportunities for awards are available to members who participate in bid-calling contests, advertising contests, and a Hall of Fame awards program.

According to Bachman, six chapters make up the PAA. Each chapter sends a director or two to board meetings to help plan conventions and conduct general business.

A Reader Asks

I took my father-in-law's tractor to an advertised sale and received a number. I also put a reserved bid on it.

My husband and I went to the day of the sale to see it auctioned off.

The tractor wasn't in the lineup. I finally found it next to the house and went into the office to see what was going on. I found out one of the employees had bought it on the reserved bid without my permission. The tractor never made it through the auction. I was upset it was handled in a dishonest way.

I confronted the auctioneer. He seemed to think it wasn't right also, until he found out his employee paid for it through the office. Then he said it was done legal.

I was disappointed that it was done in a lowdown, sneaky way.

Upset Auction-Goer

We think this was unethical and so does Jay Ziegler and Harry Bachman, renowned auctioneers who are also executive members of the Pennsylvania Auctioneers Association.

Ziegler said that selling on the reserve bid eliminated your chance to obtain a higher price for the tractor. Pennsylvania auctioneers must uphold a code of ethics.

You can file a complaint with the auctioneer board of the PAA by calling (800) 577-6801.

Alfred's Auctions prides itself on tailoring its services for each sale to meet the needs of its clients and customers. We can do this whether these needs include simply providing an auctioneer or completely running the entire sale from start to finish. We offer experienced personnel for: pre-sale inventory and listing for catalogs, advertising (newspaper, mailing list, internet), lotting, tagging and organizing, auctioneers, runners, clerks, check-out services, and more. We specialize in on-site auctioneering through the use of our mobile auction station. We also work with movers and caterers. We are customer friendly and have a large following.

It is the practice of Alfred's Auctions to provide settlement at the completion of the auction. We are able to do this because we are computerized and have a credit card service. Each customer receives an itemized receipt in exchange for payment due. Settlement for the client includes: all paperwork including a complete list of items sold along with the price each item obtained, an itemized listing of payment methods (cash, check, credit card) and a check for the proceeds.

Know Details Before Submitting Absentee Bids

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Want an item going up for bid, but can't attend the auction on the day of sale?

You can purchase the item through an absentee bid. However, absentee bids are handled differently according to the auctioneer company.

R.L. Keck of Town and Country requires an absentee bidder to include a check in the amount the bidder is willing to pay and place it in a sealed envelope.

On the day of sale, the item is auctioned. After the last bid from attendees, the envelope is opened. If the absentee bidder offered a higher amount than that bid at the auction, the item goes to the absentee bidder in the amount of the check.

Perhaps the item reached a plateau at $50 during bidding.

"If the absentee bidder submitted a $100 bid, that is the amount he pays," Keck said.

Keck has been an auctioneer for 30 years, mostly in Potter County. About eight years ago he moved to Lancaster County and auctions with Town and Country.

"It's unethical to open sealed bids ahead of time," Keck said. "Some auctioneers open sealed bids and start the bid at that price. I consider that unethical."

On the other hand, Merle Eberly of Horning Farm Agency said his firm handles it differently. They require a letter stating the amount the absentee bidder is willing to pay.

After the item is auctioned, Eberly tells the audience that he has a sealed bid, which is opened. If bidding stopped at $50, but the absentee bidder was willing to pay $100, he gets a bargain. The absentee bidder will get the item for the next dollar implement above the highest bid. The absentee bidder is contacted after the sale and asked to submit money in the amount determined by the highest bid at the sale.

"Absentee bidding must always be done openly," Eberly said. "I always tell the audience if I have an absentee bid."

National Auctioneers Museum Showcases All Aspects Of Auctioneering

OVERLAND PARK, Kansas — In December of 1983, the National Auctioneers Association formed the National Auctioneers Foundation to develop, preserve, and research the history of the auction profession.

The National Auctioneers Museum, formerly known as the Hall of History, officially opened in 1988, but has been collecting Auctioneering memorabilia since 1982. The museum, located in the National Auctioneers Association headquarters in Overland Park, Kansas, has museum material spanning from the early 1800's to the present.

Artifacts

The National Auctioneers Museum has a broad spectrum of auctioneering artifacts from gavels and other tools of the trade, to advertising items, to beautiful bronze sculptures. Colorful dioramas in the museum help to interpret the history of Auctioneering in the early days of the United States.

Archives

The museum has a strong archives with hundreds of photographs, a vast variety of handbills and other advertisements, documents, video and audio recordings, books, manuscripts, publications, and complete sets of the "Auctioneer" magazine. Another important segment of the archives is the National Auctioneers Association Auxiliary scrapbooks from 1951 to the present.

Eberly has been a general auctioneer for 27 years. "Estate sales, farm, household — I like them all," he said.

Both Keck and Eberly said that integrity is required when dealing with absentee bids.

For the person desiring to place an absentee bid, make sure you check procedures with the auctioneer before placing a reserve bid so that you are not disappointed in the way it is handled.

Benefit Auctions Are Popular Fund Raisers

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Benefit auctions are growing in popularity.

The auctions are held to raise money for non-profit organizations such as fire companies, hospitals, private schools, churches, missions, and community betterment.

People affiliated with the organization or those who value its services donate a vast variety of items for the auction.

Although donations include antiques, furniture, cars, tractors, and even livestock, don't underestimate the little stuff sold at these sales. Discarded kitchenware, used books, and odds and ends add up to dollars for the organization it benefits.

Local businesses also donate a substantial amount of items to be auctions. Donations may be in the form of gift certificates for services or merchandise. Sometimes it's outdated wares. Whatever it is it's sure to sell over the auction block.

People also use their talents to make quilts, crafts, and woodworking projects. Artists donate paintings and prints.

Volunteers spend hours preparing items for the event. They often obtain free advertising. Even the services of an auctioneer — usually more than one — are free.

Many new auctioneers volunteer their services to establish themselves in the first years of business. Almost every auctioneer continues to volunteer services for causes they believe in.

In a way, this also serves as a bit of advertisement for the volunteer auctioneer. People attending the sale become acquainted with the auctioneer and his or her style. Later, if the services of an auctioneer are needed, those in attendance may contact the auctioneer who they have seen in action and can trust.

It is not unusual for a benefit sale to garner $100,000 and more.

Reading Area Community College Offers Auctioneering Certification

LOU ANN GOOD

READING (Berks Co.) — Reading Area Community College (RACC) is one of only two schools approved by the Pennsylvania State Board of Auctioneer Examiners.

The program was established in 1991. The major difference between RACC and Harrisburg Area Community College, which is the other approved school, is that HACC offers the courses for college credit and RACC offers the courses through its continuing education department.

Merry Fidler, who coordinates RACC's program, said, "Completing our certification program qualifies the individual to become an auctioneer, but course credit cannot be applied to the college side of RACC."

This translates into lower tuition cost for the prospective auctioneer who doesn't intend to get a degree. The curriculum is similar at both schools.

Fidler is coordinator for the program, but doesn't teach any of the classes. Instead, classes are taught by four auctioneers, Bob and Barbara Kist, a husband and wife auctioneer team, Charles Camelleri, and Randall Rook. Attorney Randy Selagy teaches auctioneer law.

Fidler said curriculum was developed by meeting with auctioneers interested in teaching courses. Their recommendations were presented to the state auction board, which approved it before RACC offered the course. Courses are offered two times annually for 10 weeks.

RACC's auctioneering program averages 20-25 students yearly. Most students are from Pennsylvania, but classes include students from New York and New Jersey. Some students are auctioneers in other states who want certification to sell in Pennsylvania.

For more information about RACC's program, call (800) 626-1665, ext. 5181.

Gender Not A Drawback To Successful Auctioneering Career

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Female auctioneers continue to be somewhat of a novelty in the auctioneer world.

At Harrisburg Area Community College (HACC), 75 percent of the students enrolled in auctioneering classes are male.

Charlene Caple did not know of any female auctioneers when she went to auctioneering school in 1978. Although women were involved in the auctioneering business, they generally clerked or assisted the auctioneer.

But Caple wanted to become a licensed auctioneer. She was confident she could handle it.

Although she faced some discrimination while seeking to establish a business, Caple said, "I don't like to focus on male/female issues. Also discriminated against in many areas are blacks, young people, blonds, and white-haired people."

According to Caple, the best solution to conteracting discrimination can be summed up in one sentence: "Deal with it."

She doesn't allow someone else's misconceptions or opinions to become an issue or a point of debate.

"Accept who you are and live with it," Caple said.

Harry Bachman said that when he started auctioneering, there were not any female auctioneers.

"I can say one thing, women are good talkers," he said. "And some of them do a really good job."

In some instances, Caple believes women have an advantage. She said, "Women are often good in interpersonal relationships, which helps in selling (auction) services."

Jill Doherty of New York pushed for the International Auctioneer Conference (IAC) to conduct separate contests for men and women auctioneering.

"I just felt that women sounded different than men, so we should have our own category and it could be a showcase for women because people often assume we are the wife, clerk, or assistant to the auctioneer," Doherty said.

Doherty, who has been auctioneering for 20 years, won the women's division of the 2002 IAC contest. She entered the auction profession at the urging of her father in 1981. She specilizes in selling municipal equipment such as police cars and dump trucks.

Bachman Reflects On Auctioneering Through The Decades

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

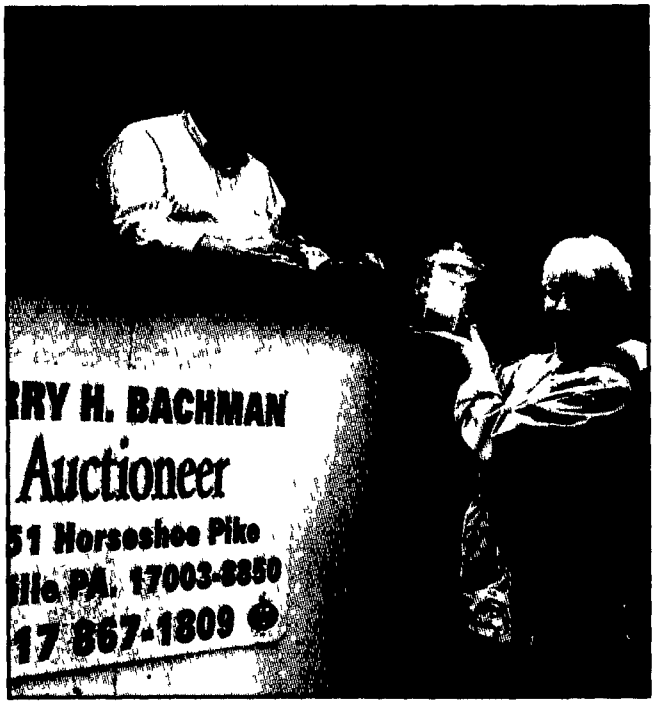
LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — While growing up, whenever Harry Bachman wasn't accompanying his dad to livestock and farm auctions, he and his four brothers conducted "pretend" auctions. Harry always served as the auctioneer.

It is not surprising that Bachman decided upon an auctioneering career early in life.

After he was graduated from Cornwall High School in 1964, Bachman headed off to auction school in Mason City, Iowa. For two weeks — morning, noon, and night — he and 80 classmates "learned to count properly, chanted tongue twisters and riddles, and heard how to take care for our voices."

Schooling was the fun part. More difficult was finding an auctioneer who would allow him to serve a two-year apprenticeship as required by Pennsylvania law.

Harry Bachman, vice president of the Pennsylvania Auctioneers Association, switches easily between selling livestock and household goods.



Most people would not be content to spend weekends working furiously to make sure things run smoothly during auction day, but it's part of the package for Harry and Sandra Bachman, who work together as a team for about 40 years. Harry is a well-known and respected auctioneer and Sandra clerks and oversees the office bookwork.

Established auctioneers were reluctant to take on an apprentice. In essence, that was training the competition. Auctioneers knew after that apprenticeship, the novice would become a licensed auctioneer, in competition for their business.

But Ammon "Windy" Boyd took the chance, and allowed Bachman to assist him.

In 1968, Boyd died unexpectantly.

"I was at the right place at the right time," Bachman said of the opportunity to conduct the auctions that were already in Boyd's calendar.

Bachman breezed through the required final test to become a licensed auctioneer.

"I was glad to get out and get going," Bachman said.

But auctioneering remained a part-time job for him until 1978. Like most auctioneers, Bachman needed a full-time job to provide money for his family. He worked for a tractor company.

Eventually trying to manage two jobs grew too hectic, and Bachman quite his full-time job to concentrate on auctioneering.

"It was a scary choice. You got to get auctions in order to get a pay check," Bachman said.

"The first couple years were slow, but I got enough auctions to keep food on the table," Bachman said.

"If you do a good job for someone, someone else hears about and asks you (to auctioneer for them). It sort of mushrooms. It's like being an undertaker.

As a full-time employee for an antiques dealer, Josh Reeder knew exactly what he was doing when he purchased this tray filled with odds and ends of glassware for $200 at an auction recently. Included was a small early hand-blown glass inkwell. How much is it worth? Reeder refused to speculate in case it would limit its resale value. But he said he definitely purchased a bargain.

Deal Of The Day

LOU ANN GOOD

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Josh Reeder's job is to go from auction to auction seeking unique items to resell for his employer, an antiques dealer.

Reeder carries a legal pad filled with pages of items his employee wants him to buy — if the price is right.

Reeder carefully researches items before bidding. He normally arrives about three hours before bidding begins so that he can sort through boxlots of items looking for treasures.

When the auction begins, Reeder waits patiently and calmly while a myriad of items goes over the auction block. He doesn't want to be distracted and miss a great deal. One never knows exactly when the desired piece will come up for auction.

At the Horst Auction Center, Ephrata, last week, Reeder found a treasure hours before the auction began. Hidden among an assortment of odds and ends of glassware, Reeder spotted an early hand-blown glass inkwell.

It was the find he'd been waiting for. It also turned out to be the deal he'd hoped for. Reeder purchased the tray of glassware for $200. He declined to speculate on the value of the inkwell.

"It's going to be resold, and I don't want to limit the amount my employee can get for it," Reeder said. But the smile on his face revealed that Reeder was clearly convinced he got the deal of the day.

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — "People love a bargain," John Taylor said.

The Camp Hill resident finds plenty of bargains to share. Taylor frequents five to six auctions weekly seeking bargains.

Recently he bid $140 at the Horst Auction Center, Ephrata, for a boxlot of Blue Ridge pottery dishes.

"I'll resell them individually priced at $10 or $15," Taylor said. "People will be delighted to find them, and I'll make a little profit."

Taylor makes a living at frequenting auctions and reselling pieces at booths in 12 antique malls located in several surrounding counties.

Taylor became interested in auctions about 25

John Taylor, Camp Hill, considers he got a bargain when he bid on a box lot of Blue Ridge pottery. He will resell the 90 pieces individually at one of the 12 booths he rents inside antique shops. Taylor attends several auctions weekly to stock his booths.

Bachman Reflects On Auctioneering

If you get to bury one family member, you probably get to bury the remaining family members," Bachman said.

Personality also plays a significant role in auctioneering success.

Bachman said, "You got to know when to clown around and when not to. You got to ad lib in order to get the best price."

Bachman has seen many changes during his 39 years as an auctioneer.

"Some things that weren't selling for anything then bring fabulous prices today," he said.

Auctioneers learn what is valuable "by being around." And, Bachman said, "The public lets you know when they bid (high)."

Bachman considers himself a general auctioneer who easily switches between selling livestock and farms to charity events.

"I love them all — everyone is great. Everyone and every day is different. It's always something new and challenging to work at and I get to meet a lot of people," Bachman said.

When he first starting auctioneering, he wrote down the name of the bidder and the bidder paid on the spot. In the 1970s, it became common practice to assign numbers to registered bidders. It made the clerk's job easier, but Bachman recalled that some of the old-timers resented needing to use numbers instead of their names.

"When I was 16 years old, I was a nickel man at an auction," Taylor said. That meant that any item that did not get a bid, Taylor automatically got it for a nickel. He soon discovered it could be quite a profitable business.

Now, he often works as the $5 man for high end catalog shows, where he garners some great finds.

"People at high end shows often don't bother bidding on middle or lower end merchandise, so I get it for $5," he said.

The best $5 buy he ever had was a box that contained a bottle he resold for $1,100. That was four years ago. While it doesn't happen often, Taylor said it is common to buy a number of items for $20 and resell for $80-$90.

Bachman Reflects On Auctioneering

"Now we graduated to the computer age. I love it. All my help loves it," Bachman said of the ease with which each bid can be entered into the computer and the data used for easy settlements.

Not all the changes have made things easier.

"More laws are in effect, and you need to abide. Laws govern real estate and require disclosure of things like lead paint. Auctioneers need to be aware of it all," Bachman said.

Depending on the type of sale, Bachman uses the assistance of three to seven staff members. Estate sales require him and his staff "to do everything — clean, sort, get trash out, clean up debris when over, mop up, and make things presentable," Bachman said. In some instances, family members play an active role in sorting and preparing for the event.

Some of the behind-the-scenes work includes deciding on an advertising program to get the best coverage. Preliminary work continues even on auction morning, when it is decided how to display furniture in the yard.

"The auction part itself is the quickest part. You put more time into it before and after the auction," Bachman said.

Some of the preliminaries require checking site maps, meeting with attorneys, and real estate showings. Every sale is different. Livestock sales require catalogs, tents, and sale rings.

"I like helping youth. You've gotta do things for charity. You can't always be working," Bachman said of the reason he volunteers considerable time to 4-H, FFA, and church-related auctions.

Auctioneers have more competition today. There are lots of guys, but still a lot of work. Bachman has every Saturday scheduled through the fall season and some weekday auctions.

He believes it's important to empathize with the sellers. He said, "Realizing that I'm disposing of a person's livelihood within five hours, that everything they own will be dispersed, makes me want to please them, to have them be happy after the sale."

The percentage charged for a sale varies. Bachman said, "Everybody sets their own fees. It's hard to compare. Values play a role. Costs are less if the sale is larger."

Another thing that changed during Bachman's career is the infiltration of female auctioneers.

Bachman said, "There are some good women auctioneers. A lot of old-timers frowned on women auctioneers at the beginning, but I will say this: women are never at lost for words. They can talk fast."

Sandra, Bachman's wife, has served as clerk throughout the years.

Bachman has three daughters.

He said, "I thought one would become an auctioneer, but that never happened, even though they can talk fast."

The drawback to a career in auctioneering is that "many people don't like those long hours and the weekend work. When other people are going away and having a good time, we're working," Bachman said.

In 2001, Bachman was inducted into the Pennsylvania Livestock Association Hall of Fame. He is well-known and appreciated for providing auctioneering services to 14 4-H and FFA livestock sales annually. He sells at more than 90 auctions annually.

For more than 20 years, Bachman has served on the Lebanon Area Fair board where he vice president; board member of the Lebanon Valley Expo Corporation, which is the governing body of the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds; and as a Farm Show commissioner.

"I like helping the youth. You've gotta do things for charity. You can't always be working," he said.

At one time, the Bachmans collected glass, china, and furniture, but when they moved a few years ago, they decided to have a sale and share their collection.

"I don't want to pack away collections. I display some behind glass that has meaning. Other than that, I'm not into collecting. I appreciate nice things, but I see enough full homes when selling," he said.

Auctioneers should not bid on the items they sell. But if one is a good auctioneer, Bachman said, he will call people he knows have an interest in collecting certain items. People travel from auction and often leave absentee bids. Auctioneers treat absentee bids as fair as if the buyer was in front of them.

Another method buyers may use if they are unable to attend a sale is to call a person they know is attending the auction and let them bid.

Bachman believes it is more difficult to become an auctioneer today. More schooling is required. You need to be more knowledgeable and know products.

"You can't just stand on a box and start selling," he said.

Although Bachman works as a sole operator, he sometimes solicits the help of other auctioneers to help.

"A sale requires a lot of talking. After six or seven hours working in dust, and in all kinds of weather conditions — cold, hot, windy — you feel it," he said.

Sound systems used today ease the requirements of talking loudly to be heard over the auction din.

Although some novices think all auctioneers sound the same, Bachman disagrees. He said, "Everybody has their own style. I can stand with my eyes closed and can tell who the the auctioneer is."

Oberholtzer Recalls Quarter Century Of Farm Sales

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

SMOKETOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Mahlon Oberholtzer has some stories to tell from his 25 years of selling farms and homes in the area.

The realtor from Smoketown has seen the gamut — from speedy transactions between highly-motivated clients, to challenging deals that took up to eight years to complete.

One of Oberholtzer's most memorable experiences happened a number of years ago when he got an urgent call from a dairy farmer in the middle of the growing season.

"A man called our office in early July and said, 'I'm done farming. If someone gives me cash for the cattle and equipment, I'll finance the farm,'" Oberholtzer recalled.

Oberholtzer fortunately had a "tailor-made" buyer in mind. He contacted him immediately and settlement papers were signed within a few days.

Conversely, a recent settlement took a full eight years to accomplish. As part of the process, Oberholtzer found himself at numerous township meetings to help bring about the rezoning and special approval needed to complete the deal.

After years of working through diverse situations and dealing with a wide range of personalities, Oberholtzer has certainly learned a lot about selling farms. Perhaps he's learned even more about human nature.

For families considering selling a farm, the first thing they should do is have "a good serious session with their accountant to understand details about taxes and how the money will be handled," Oberholtzer advised.

A big part of the challenge is dealing with the emotions of parting with a farm into which they've "put a lifetime of blood, sweat, and tears."

For those considering buying a farm, they need to evaluate their goals as far as they are able, he said. The property and its location will need to meet financial, social, church, emotional, and schooling needs.

"As a realtor, my main job is to fine-tune their thinking so they can make an intelligent decision," said Oberholtzer.

After a family has decided on a farm property that would fit their needs, putting together the money frequently becomes the main concern.

"Financing is the biggy," Oberholtzer said. He's seen various means to help potential buyers realize their dream of owning a farm. For a dairy farmer, that could mean raising heifers to build a milking herd while working for another farmer, for example.

For many folks, the the ability to buy a farm means moving out of their home area to more affordable lands.

Mahlon Oberholtzer has been selling farms out of his home office in Smoketown since 1977.

The good news is that some parts of Pennsylvania and other states welcome new farmers, said Oberholtzer, who has had dealings in 25 counties throughout the state.

Dealing with people is the part about being a realtor that has brought Oberholtzer the most joy — and the most pain.

Through his job Oberholtzer has had the opportunity to offer clients his knowledge of local real estate practices and legal parameters as well as his negotiating experience in price and and other matters. He has also been able to help farmers develop cash flow plans to be successful on their new property.

"I think all the friends that I've made over the years have really been the biggest asset — the people who were happy with what happened (in the real estate transaction)," he said. Mutual trust plays a big role in those successes.

"People can also be the biggest thorn," Oberholtzer said, especially those "who back down on promises."

Oberholtzer recalled one seller who signed a listing agreement for his farm, but "when it came right down to it, he refused to sell."

That left the buyer hanging, and Oberholtzer had to absorb at least some of the blame for it, not to mention losing his commission on the deal.

Oberholtzer remembered an instance when a client "shook hands five times and said 'I'm a man of my word,'" and then backed out of the deal.

"When somebody lies to me, that's the most negative part of it," he said.

Another headache is when a seller tries to hide a flaw in their property, such an inadequate or nonexistent septic system. Those kind of "surprises" can be bad news for a realtor, Oberholtzer said.

In some cases where the seller fails to disclose negative aspects of the property, the question "How much should the realtor know?" can be tricky, he said.

Selling or buying a property through a realtor versus an auction has advantages and disadvantages depending on the situation, according to Oberholtzer.

A transaction though a realtor "is a far better environment when it comes to contingencies," such as a buyer needing to sell another property before settling on a new one, he said.

One the other hand, a buyer who is able to meet the terms, has no contingencies to worry about, and is able to handle the stress of a fast decision on sale day could do all right at an auction.

Tax-deferred exchanges — designed to eliminate capital-gains tax for the seller — are also difficult to set up in an auction, Oberholtzer noted.

The auction does offer a quick settlement as long as the buyer meets all the terms of the sale. And in some circumstances, Oberholtzer has even recommended an auction sale over using a realtor.

"There certainly are properties that I would, and have, recommend going to auction," he said. These include potential "adversarial situations" on a highly competitive property.

Oberholtzer began selling real estate in 1977, after a number of years working as a construction equipment salesman.

The real estate field has seen a lot of changes since then, not only in the computer technology that allows rapid information transfer, but also in the sheer amount of paperwork involved.

"We used to have a one-page sales agreement," Oberholtzer said. "Now we've got 18 pages — plus four pages of disclosure statements, a business relationship agreement, and a consumer notice.

"There are a lot less realtors around than there used to be because of the complexity of the requirements."

prospective bidders with information to help them in their buying decision. Also known as ringmen, bid consultants, bid spotters, or groundsmen.

•BID CALLER - The person who actually "calls," "cries or "auctions" the property at an auction, recognizing bidders and acknowledging the highest bidder. Commonly known as the auctioneer.

•BID RIGGING - The unlawful practice whereby two or more people agree not to bid against one another so as to deflate value.

•BIDDER NUMBER -The number issued to each person who registers to bid at an auction.

•BIDDER PACKAGE - The package of information and instructions pertaining to the property to be sold at an auction event obtained by prospective bidders at an auction. Sometimes called a bidder packet or due diligence package.

•BIDDER'S CHOICE - A method of sale whereby the successful high bidder wins the right to choose an item or items from a grouping of similar or like-kind properties. After the high bidder's selection, the item is deleted from the group, and the second round of bidding begins, with the high bidder in round two choosing an item which is then deleted from the group and so on, until all items are sold.

•BOOKKEEPER OR CLERK - The person who is responsible for accounting and paperwork at an auction sale.

•BROKER PARTICIPATION - An arrangement for third-party brokers to register potential bidders for properties being sold at auction for a commission paid by the owner of the property or the auction firm.

•BUYER'S BROKER - A real estate broker who represents the buyer and, as the agent of the buyer, is normally paid for his/her services by the buyer.

•BUYER'S PREMIUM- An advertised percentage of the high bid or flat fee added to the high bid to determine the total contract price to be paid by the buyer.

(Turn to Page 75)

Oberholtzer Recalls

He noted that the term "realtor" is a trademark word that binds agents to strict code of ethics set down by the National Association of Realtors. A "real estate broker" is not necessarily a realtor, he pointed out.

Oberholtzer has adapted to using computers as a tool of the trade. He routinely takes a digital camera with him to take pictures of farms and homes. If a buyer calls him about a property, he can send photos and other information via e-mail in a matter of minutes.

One of his favorite stories is of the time he sold a farm to a man who was living several thousand miles away.

"A guy called from the boonies of Alaska and said he saw the ad (for a farm) in Lancaster Farming. I sent him a video (of the property), and he called back and said, 'I want that farm.' On the basis of that video, he flew here and signed the papers."

•CAI - Certified Auctioneers Institute. The professional designation awarded to practicing auctioneers who meet the experiential, educational and ethical standards set by the Auction Marketing Institute, Inc.

•Caravan Auctions- A series of on site auctions advertised through a common promotional campaign.

•Carrying Charges - The costs involved in holding a property (real estate) which is intended to produce income (either by sale or rent) but has not yet done so, i.e., insurance, taxes, maintenance, management.

•CATALOG BROCHURE - A publication advertising and describing the items and/or property(ies) available for sale at public auction, often including photographs, property descriptions, and the terms and conditions of the sale.

•CAVEAT EMPTOR- A Latin term meaning "let the buyer beware." A legal maxim stating that the buyer takes the risk regarding quality or condition, unless protected by warranty.

•CLERK - The person employed by the principal auctioneer or auction firm to record what is sold and to whom and for what price.

•COLLUSION - The unlawful practice whereby two or more people agree not to bid against one another so as to deflate value or when the auctioneer accepts a fictitious bid on behalf of the seller so as to manipulate or inflate the price of the property.

•COMMISSION - The fee charged to the seller by the auctioneer for providing services, usually a percentage of the gross selling price of the property established by contract (the listing agreement) prior to the auction.

•CONDITIONS OF SALE - The legal terms that govern the conduct of an auction, including acceptable methods of payment, terms, buyer's premiums, possession, reserves and any other limiting factors of an auction. Usually included in published advertisements or announced by the auctioneer prior to the start of the auction.

•CONTRACT -An agreement between two or more persons or entities which creates or modifies a legal relationship.

•COOPERATING BROKER- A real estate broker who registers a prospective buyer with the auction company, in accordance with the terms and conditions for that auction. The broker is paid a commission only if his prospect is the high bidder and successfully closes on the property. Also known as a participating broker.

•CRITICAL PATH - Sequence of key tasks to be done by auction contractor or other designated parties on specified dates, leading to desired goals.

•DUAL AGENCY - The representation of opposing principals (buyers and seller) at the same time.

•DUE DILIGENCE- The process of gathering information about the condition and legal status of assets to be sold.

•ESTATE SALE - The sale of property left by a person at his or her death. An estate auction can involve the sale of personal and/or real property.

•GRADUATE, PERSONAL PROPERTY APPRAISER (GPPA)- The professional designation awarded by the Auction Marketing Institute to qualified property appraisers who meet the educational and experiential requirements of the Institute and who adhere to a strict code of ethics and standards of practice.

•GROUNDSMAN - Also called bid assistants.

•HAMMER PRICE- Price established by the last bidder and acknowledged by the auctioneer before dropping the hammer or gavel.

•LISTING BROKER - A real estate broker who has a listing on a property and cooperates with the auction company by allowing the auction agreement to supersede his/her listing agreement.

•MARKET VALUE - Refers to real estate to be sold. The highest price in terms of money which a property will bring in a competitive and open market under all conditions requisite to a fair sale, the buyer and seller, each acting prudently, knowledgeably and assuming the price is not affected by undue stimulus.

•MEMORANDUM - Sometimes also referred to as a "Bidder Acknowledgment," or 'Broker Acknowledgment," the memorandum is signed by those parties either on the auction floor or in the contract room.
